IN EXCELLENT SPIRITS

No doubt there are some heroic souls who can be cheerful and optimistic under the most distressing physical conditions, but in the great majority of cases good spirits are mainly dependent upon good health. Therefore if you are feeling dull and "humpy" and inclined to take a gloomy view of things it is very probably because you are not quite fit. Perhaps the liver is out of order, and nothing leads to irritability and jadedness more than a disordered liver. Dyspepsia and constipation also have a very lowering effect on one's outlook on life. Now as Beecham's Pills have a splendid effect upon all the digestive and excretory organs they never fail to promote the happy, cheerful frame of mind. Indeed, one of the reasons why Beecham's Pills are so popular with all classes is just because they have such a wonderfully cheering influence. If you are feeling down and despondent take a few doses and you will soon be in excellent spirits.

* "One thing made perfectly clear by these Lists is that, as the number of students presenting themselves for examination increases, the amount distributed in awards diminishes. The lists for 1921 showed a reduction of 209 in awards, and of £1,196 in money, as compared with 1920. This year's lists show a further reduction of 54 in awards and of £1,018 in money, as compared with 1921. There is a decrease of twenty in First-class Exhibitions in the Senior and Middle Grades (Boys), and of six in Second-class Exhibitions in the same Grades."

UNIVERSITY ENTRANCE SCHOLARSHIPS.
In each of the two years, 1920 and 1921, three of these valuable prizes were won by Senior Grade Students of St. Brendan's Seminary. Owing to the postal breakdown full details of this year's examination are not yet available, but an equal or even greater success is confidently expected.

Thirty-three Million pounds worth of Irish money is sent abroad every year to buy piece goods, apparel, etc., from the Foreigner.

Women of Ireland, at least one-half of this is your work, and we are sure you will agree with us that it must discontinue. If even one quarter of this appalling sum were spent in your own country, think of what wealth and work it would bring to Ireland. The remedy is in your own hands. Buy nothing but Irish cloths, and refuse to be put off with plausible and inferior substitutes. We are the oldest and largest Manufacturers of Dress Goods in Ireland, and make everything from the soundest and most fashionable Tweeds to the finest Serges, Coatings, Gabardines, Venetians, Whipcords, Voiles and Cashmeres, in the most beautiful colourings that can be produced. Ask your Draper for Dinsmore Dress Goods, and insist on getting them.

TO-DAY'S PROSPECTS.

DRAKE'S EASY VICTORY

WILD MINT WINS THE EXNING STAKES.

The delightful conditions of the Cesarewitch week were continued to the end, and, with the Middle Park Plate as the attraction, most of the visitors remained over. It was rather disappointing that so many of the crack two-year-olds were not in the race. For instance, the meeting of Town Guard and Drake would have been interesting. However, the last-named was left with an easy task. He is a most commanding juvenile, as big almost as a three-year-old, standing as he does well over 16 hands. Whether he or Town Guard is the best two-year-old of the year is, of course, a matter of opinion which cannot be decided until next season, but there is little doubt that the present is a vintage year, so far as the juveniles are concerned. It was not seriously considered that anything now had a chance of beating Drake, and so it proved, for he was not extended. Very rightly, Paola was taken as second best, and, though she readily accounted for the others, she was probably not within 10lb. of the winner.

Mr. Frank Curzon brought off a coup of the old-fashioned sort with Black Fairy in the Two-Year-Old Plate. She had been a much talked-about filly all the week, but the fact that an unfashionable jockey like Chalmer had the mount accounted for the comparatively long price. It need only be added that she jumped off in front, was never headed, and finished six lengths ahead of Terror.

The run of bad luck which has attended Mr. Sol Joel's stable was continued in the Mile Selling Plate. Woodley had been running in much better company, and was regarded very much as a certain winner, but in a close set-to could only finish third. Another that was supposed to be a cut above plating class was the favourite, Clackmannan. The fear about him was that he might break a blood vessel. He did not do this, but found one too good in Gold Coast. Stingo is apparently unreliable, or, judged by Isle of Wight, he would have fulfilled expectations in the Exning Welter Handicap. At the same time there was every justification for fancying the winner, Wild Mint, who had to undergo the ordeal of an objection. Bessema was probably feeling the effects of her previous severe race with Pogrom when letting her stable down badly in the Southfield Plate, which Donoghue won on a comparative outsider, Young Pole.

LINGFIELD.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME AND SELECTIONS.

The Second October fixture proved an uncommonly successful function from all points of view, but the remarkable type of weather which accompanied the racing must have largely contributed to the satisfactory result. The list of departures yesterday to Lingfield comprised less than a score of horses, consequently, unless the provincial stables come to the rescue, the size of the fields to-day will be largely disproportionate to the strength of the entries, which were of all-round excellence. The October Nursery contained nearly eighty subscriptions originally, but runners for it from Newmarket are likely to be few. Even so, the winner may emanate from headquarters, as I have excellent accounts of the present well-being of Priory and Troon, but whether either of them will prove capable of beating Compiler we have to learn. The presence of Taylor's pair in the field for the Autumn Oaks will quite spoil the affair, as these fillies have it between them. Leighon Tor should win it. Full selections are appended:—

October Nursery—Compiler or Alignment.
Cage Plate—Uncle Bones.
Lingfield Oaks—Leighon Tor.
Rustic Stakes—Bart Snowball.
Grinstead Handicap—Persse's best.
Non-Stayers' Plate—The Night Patrol.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

The Stewards of the Turf Club have granted Mr. P. Podger a licence to train at the Curragh.

The jockeys, G. Walsh and J. A. Brennan, left London on Thursday for South Africa.

A general meeting of the Turf Club will be held at the Stand House, Curragh, on Tuesday next, after the second race.

The weights for the Free Handicap for two-year-olds will be published in the English Racing Calendar next week.

The Tralee Race Meeting, fixed for October 25th and 26th, and the Limerick Meeting, arranged to be held on November 8th and 9th, have been abandoned.

Stamnos, Snow Ball, Shotmaker, Brave Lass, and Broken Vow have been struck out of the Irish Cambridgeshire, which will be run for at the Curragh November Meeting.

The Australian Davis Cup team arrived at Auckland yesterday from America. In an interview Patterson intimated that business would probably prevent him from taking part in the Davis Cup games next year, and added that he thought there was little chance of retrieving the trophy while Tilden and Johnson were playing.

Surprising though it may seem, quite a number of people backed the 100 to 1 Cesarewitch winner, Dragoon, both on the course and in London on Wednesday. Several layers in Tattersall's, in consequence, either did no good, or lost on the race, and if rumour is right, one well-known bookmaker in London had "all the gilt taken off the gingerbread" when he accepted an s.p. wager of £100 each way.

GOLF.

ENGLISH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP.

MISS WETHERED RETAINS TITLE.

Miss Wethered, who wrested the English Ladies' Championship from Miss Cecilia Leitch three years ago, and retained her title last season, achieved her third triumph in the event yesterday at Hunstanton, defeating Miss Stocker in the final over 36 holes by 7 and 6.

The success of the champion was well deserved, her play into the wind being particularly strong, and it is worthy of note that in surviving the earlier stages she retained the rather fine record of never having been beaten in an 18-holes championship match.

It was an ideal day for the final match. The weather was glorious, but a strong wind called for skill. The champion displayed this more than any of her rivals. There was just a chance at one time that Miss Stocker, whose golf was learned on the east coast, would hold the champion, but Miss Wethered, after being held on the outward journey, in the second round went right away, and with one of the brilliant flashes which characterised her play throughout the week, ran right away from her plucky challenger, and took three successive holes to remove all doubt as to the result.

In the morning round the champion played exceedingly well, but it was not till the match turned into the wind that her superiority was really obvious. Miss Stocker played pluckily, and had to contend with bad luck, as well as the fine play of her opponent. Miss Wethered finished 5 up, but she had to thank several long putts for her big lead. Miss Stocker hit the back of the hole on several occasions with long putts, and her play near the greens was as good as that of the champion.

It was in the long game that Miss Stocker was outclassed. Miss Wethered took the lead at the third hole, where Miss Stocker fluffed her second, but she lost the short fourth to the challenger. At the fifth Miss Stocker was bunkered from the tee, and lost the hole. The sixth was magnificently played. Both were on in 2, and the champion holed a seven-yarder for 3. Miss Stocker then sank one of three yards for a half. At the next she hit a bad tee shot and picked up. This made Miss Wethered 2 up, and she turned with the advantage.

Her better play against the wind enabled the champion to become 4 up at the 14th, but she lost the next owing to an overstrong putt, and halved the 16th and 17th. To the 18th Miss Stocker unluckily ran into a bunker, and she had to play the odd on the green. The champion was down in 5 to 6 to finish the round 5 up.

Miss Wethered was out in 36 and round in 74, while Miss Stocker took 39 to the turn, and approximately 82 for the round.

Miss Stocker opened the second round well. Miss Wethered hooked her first drive badly, and was short with her approach, Miss Stocker winning the hole in 4 to 5. Both were on the second green in three, but the champion took three putts, and Miss Stocker won to reduce her deficit to three holes. The next five holes were halved as the result of golf which was more steady than brilliant. Then Miss Wethered took command again, and won the 8th and 9th for a five holes advantage at the turn.

Then the champion played, as she invariably does, against the wind. She won two of the next three holes for the match. Result:—

Miss Wethered (Worplesdon) (holder) beat Miss Stocker (Sheringham), 7 and 6.

Waddell, 79, 1, 78; Colonel W. K. Tillie, 79 (plus 1), 80; R. M'Connell, 80, 1, 79; G. W. Welch, 82, 1, 81. The tie between Tillie and M'Connell was won on a toss by the former. A mixed foursomes (9-hole heats) attracted over 80 players, and in the final Miss B. Gardiner and W. F. M'Connell beat Miss M. Young and J. Hinds—2 and 1. ANGLING.

CAPTURE OF A LARGE PIKE.

While fishing in Lough Sheelin recently Mr. Godfrey Kilroy hooked a pike weighing 27½lbs. He was "played" for two hour and ten minutes, the distance covered being about three miles. A rod was used and a red-gold-silver spoon. For the last half-hour the fish was "played" in total darkness. It was impossible to see the line, the strain on the rod and the pull of the fish being the sole guide. Landing him was a matter of great difficulty, and achieved more by a sense of touch. Dense rain fell during the entire time.

TO-DAY'S MATCHES.

With the exception of Blackrock College, all the Dublin senior teams have matches to-day. Trinity, who made such a promising start last Saturday, oppose Bective Rangers at Donnybrook, and this match is likely to prove the best of the five. Lansdowne visit Sydney Parade to meet Monkstown, but the latter side, unless showing considerable improvement upon their last Saturday's display, cannot have much chance against the cup holders, who will field a strong side. Wanderers will have Clontarf as visitors at Lansdowne road, and the other senior games are Loyola v. University College, at Terenure Park, and Palmerston v. Old Wesley at Milltown. All matches start at 3.15.

HAMILL "RETIRES" FROM INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL.

M. Hamill (Manchester City and ex-Belfast Celtic) has declined to play for Ireland against England at Birmingham next Saturday.

In reply to the intimation from Mr. Watson, secretary of the I.F.A., that he had been selected, he wired as follows:—"Thanks for invitation to play v. England, but having decided to retire from International football, cannot accept.—Mick Hamill."

The vacancy will be filled by R. McCracken (Crystal Palace).

CHANGE ON THE IRISH XI.

Hamill (Manchester City) has intimated that he will not play for Ireland against England at West Bromwich next week, stating that he is retiring from international football. McCracken (Crystal Palace) will fill the vacancy.

I.F.A. APPEALS COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Irish Football Association Appeals Committee, held last night, William Savage (Linfield) was suspended for one month for ungentlemanly conduct in a recent match. Savage had been selected as centre forward for the Irish League against the Scottish League next Wednesday.

INMAN INCREASES HIS LEAD.

Inman further increased his lead over Falkiner when the game of 16,000 level was resumed at Orme's, Manchester, yesterday. Recording 222 (full), 182, and 185, he returned an aggregate of 667 against 516. Falkiner's best breaks were 215 and 100. Interval scores:—Inman, 14,001; Falkiner, 10,366.

Inman proved in capital form in the evening, and totalled 667 to Falkiner's 333. Inman quickly made progress with 173, Falkiner replying effectively with 132 and 130. The latter brought 181 from the ex-champion, while he went further ahead with 170 and 65 (unfinished). Closing scores:—Inman, 14,668; Falkiner, 10,699.

SMITH AND NEWMAN'S CLOSE FINISH.

There was more level play at Leeds yesterday in this match. Smith finished the morning session with a lead of 173, obtained chiefly through a fine all-round break of 383. Newman's best effort was 303, made principally by top of the table play. There seems a prospect of a very interesting finish to the match. Interval scores:—Smith (in play), 14,000; Newman, 13,827.

At night Smith made his unfinished break of 130 into 214. Newman then took the lead with a brilliant run of 422, but failed at subsequent chances. Smith added 143, and, profiting by Newman missing an easy top of the table hazard, ran to his points with an unfinished 169. Closing scores:—Smith (in play), 14,667; Newman, 14,452.

There have been some practices, although not many, during the past fortnight, but the first real test comes to-day, when the season formally opens. What it will be like, of course, is difficult to say yet.

The Senior Division is on the small side, with only six teams composing it, but one wonders whether it is not better and stronger thus than it was last year when the teams were more numerous, but less reliable, both in keeping fixtures and in the style of play.

Only one Senior side really will be missed this season, viz.—Royal Hibernians one of the stalwarts of the game in this country almost since its adoption in Dublin. In a sense, Garrison may be said to replace them, and this team will include Lieutenant Cork, one of the finest forwards extant. Parslow, who aided him not a little, has gone with Royal Hibernians to England.

Rumour has it that Monkstown will be the shining light this season; always strong at half and back, they have gathered in some badly-needed forwards, and so they must be a strong side. Their game to-day with Dublin University should be a trial of both teams, for Trinity takes a lot of beating. It is said that they will not be as strong as last year. Another good match will be that at Foxrock between Rovers and Railway Union, as both are pretty much as they were last season.

TEAMS.

Railway Union—J. Hand; J. Purcell, V. Tompkins; J. Black, W. Chiddick (capt.), J. Ryan; J. Peatt, C. Sully, V. Sully, H. Sully, and P. Gillespie. Meet Harcourt street 2.0.

Pembroke Wanderers—Little; Morris, Hirst; Moran, Pierce, Knight; Griffin, Hall, Woodward, Cuthbert, and Clancy.

GAELIC ATHLETIC PASTIMES.

INTER-COLLEGIATE COMPETITIONS.

(BY PAT'O.)

Last season the Leinster College competitions aroused much interest in the schools, and encouraged the Organising Committee to further endeavour. Gaelic games are more popular in many educational centres than they have ever been, and last year's rivalry will be renewed at the early re-opening of the winter season's programme.

Ample material for healthy competition exists in the Leinster Colleges. In Dublin County alone five colleges have strong Gaelic teams—Clondalkin, Terenure, Belcamp, Dunleary, and St. Enda's. Other colleges will also come into line.

Last season's dual winners—St. Kieran's, Kilkenny—are stronger than ever; following in close order come Finians, of Mullingar; Mount St. Joseph's, Roscrea; St. Mel's, Longford; and Multyfarnham, Westmeath. Wexford has two full teams at New Ross College and St. Peter's, Wexford. With St. Thomas's, of Newbridge, and St. Patrick's, Carlow, most interesting games are certain. Now that native pastimes have got a place on the college curriculum, students are taking kindly to these manly games. There is no reason for antagonism to other branches of sport—there is ample room for all. A more all-round sporting spirit is becoming daily manifest between the votaries of different codes.

On Saturday, 21st inst., a meeting is being arranged for Dublin, where all interested in college competitions will be very welcome. Inter-provincial competitions will be held in the spring, and Leinster's selected will meet the best talent in the South and West, where Galway, Rockwell, and Cork Colleges are devoting much attention to Gaelic games.

For Croke Park to-morrow two highly interesting inter-county hurling matches are listed. At 1.45 Dublin Juniors meet the second string from the famous hurling county of Kilkenny. Dublin's recent form is quite good, but the Normans are expert caman-wielders.

At 3 o'clock the long-awaited meeting of Kilkenny and Wexford will materialise. Many an exciting game has been provided by these neighbouring rivals. Kilkenny have made a generous selection; old clubs like Mooncoin and Tullaroan are represented, though Gerseybridge—as might be expected from recent successes—figures strongly in the selection. "Fifteen years ago Kilkenny were the stylists" in Irish hurling. Recent [illegible] with Cork, the "stylists" have [illegible] reorganisation has brought a level, capable team together, who look forward to this season's championship with confidence. If Wexford travels at full strength a great game ought to ensue, and many Gaelic enthusiasts will avail of the first Sunday excursion to the metropolis for many months.

I cannot commend Dublin teams for punctuality. If people are kept waiting half an hour after scheduled time for the team's appearance, we cannot expect a continuance of their patronage. Keatings were lax in this direction last Sunday.

Semi-finals and finals of the seven-a-side tourney will attract good gates, for the teams remaining in are very evenly matched, and all have big followings.

Cork hurling ties are being resumed to-morrow. The athletic grounds in the lower park are undergoing special preparation, and the County Committee, at this week's meeting, struck an optimistic note concerning their future programme.

The waning season notwithstanding, handball courts are full. Ballymun, St. Audoens, and Clondalkin have matches every week-end, and many young players of promise have appeared. During his recent visit to Dundee, Mr. J. J. Kelly, the junior champion, made a strong impression. His hard, low tosses and vigorous returns have all the snap behind them so necessary for a prospective champion. Without the steadiness of Pemberton or the finish of Lyons, the young player has remarkable energy, and carries a finishing swing in either hand. With [illegible] in the offing, packed galleries will be the order at the various courts when the season re-opens. Mr. T. Weldon's popular court has now new galleries, and many city men make the weekly visit, with good health-giving results.

St. Kevin's deserved their great win last Sunday in the Junior Hurling Schools' final. The sixteens handled the ash with all the skill of old hands. I am glad that at this week's meeting of the N.A.C.A. Committee the subject of organising clubs came into important place. Cross-country running will be given a fresh impetus under the new organisation, and local harrier clubs are already in full swing.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS

PROPOSED GALWAY CATHEDRAL.

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Galway issued a statement yesterday to the clergy, giving particulars of the amount in hand for the building of the new cathedral. He states that at the moment building conditions are impossible, but that they could not hope to be ready, even when peace is restored, unless work is at once commenced on preliminaries. The Bishop requires the clergy to use their influence to obtain bequests from people of means. With the co-operation of the clergy and people, he hopes, in the course of the next eight years, to increase the sum in hand to £93,000, when it will be possible to build a section capable of serving as a cathedral.

INTERMEDIATE RESULTS.—In our advertising columns to-day appears a list of successes at the Intermediate examinations, of the students of St. Brendan's Seminary, Killarney, and Wesley College, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. The Rockwell College successes appeared on September 15.

DUBLIN POSTAL SERVICES.—It was learned yesterday, from inquiries made in authoritative quarters, that delays in local postal deliveries in Dublin were due partly to the arrears of work caused by the postal strike, and to a heavy delivery of American mails, especially printed matter. Within a few days it is hoped that services will be reduced to normal.

CONNAUGHT.

FISHERMEN DROWNED.—While out fishing for herrings on Thursday night, William Gill and Peter Faherty, of Barna, were drowned off the Barna coast, Co. Galway.

DRINK SUPPLIED TO SOLDIERS.—Several publicans in Boyle were fined £20 at a military court yesterday for serving drink to soldiers of the national army, contrary to the order of the Commandant. In one case the fine was £30, and an order was made to close the premises.

ULSTER.

£10 FINE FOR CRUELTY TO HORSES.—George Davey, 51 Brougham street, Belfast, was fined £10, with 20s. costs, at Belfast yesterday for cruelty to five horses. A witness produced the remnants of a seven-inch board, which, it was stated, had been taken from a manger, and the contention of the prosecution was that its gnawed and splintered condition was due to the fact that hungry animals had eaten the wood.

CARTERS' STRIKE SETTLED.—Londonderry carters' strike has been settled. The men have returned to work, their wages being reduced by 1s. a week. The master carriers have agreed to be represented on a board to determine a basic rate for the six counties.

The Postmaster-General was awarded £300 at Londonderry Quarter Sessions for destruction of telegraph wires.

The "record" price of 23s. a hundredweight ruled for perennial grass seed at Aughnacloy market yesterday.

The funeral of Commandant Peter Doyle, of the national army, who was shot when leaving a mission service at Enniscorthy Cathedral on Tuesday, took place yesterday amid signs of public mourning.

At Ballymena Petty Sessions yesterday, Mr. R. W. Harris, Toome; Mr. James A. Henry, Ahogill, and Mr. W. J. M'Ginley, Ballymena, were sworn in as Justices of the Peace for the County of Antrim.

From the North Wall yesterday 400 cattle were shipped to Glasgow and 492 to Greenock. The London and North-Western Railway Company had to run an extra steamer to Holyhead yesterday to cope with the large number of cattle for shipment.

Mr. Nicholas S. P. Waring, for twenty years manager of the Provincial Bank at Ennis, died yesterday, aged 66.

The mail car from Longford to Dundalk was stopped yesterday by masked and armed men, who stole some letters.

John O'Neill, 18 Engine Alley, was summoned at the Dublin Police Court yesterday for selling milk to two retailers which was deficient in fat. Defendant stated that he was sixteen years in business, and though his milk was tested twice a week there never was a complaint. The case was dismissed.

At the weekly meeting of the Royal Irish Academy of Music minutes of the "Board of Studies" meeting were read, with recommendations as to the test pieces for the annual examinations in December.

THE LATE MISS UNA O'CONNOR.—On Monday next (her birthday) Requiem Mass will be celebrated at St. Paul's Retreat, Mount Argus, at 10 a.m., for the repose of the soul of Miss Una O'Connor, who died on the 5th inst., at her residence, Appian Way, Dublin.

KILLARNEY CARAVAN.

150 CARTS IN PROCESSION.

A message dated Tralee, Wednesday, says that the farmers of Killarney, acting in the interests of the general community, "pooled" their available transport, which was formed into a procession of a hundred and fifty miscellaneous farm carts and vans, and travelled the twenty-five miles to Fenit.

Here the carts loaded foodstuffs from vessels at the quays, and then, without rest, made the return journey. It was deemed advisable to furnish a strong military escort, and, indeed, the convoy was frequently alarmed by shots fired at long range.

No real attack was made, however, and the procession arrived back in Killarney thirty hours after it had set out, having covered fifty miles.

HERMIONE LECTURES.

The annual course of lectures on Art, established in memory of Hermione Duchess of Leinster, will be given at Alexandra College, Dublin, on the afternoons of October 24, 25, 26, and 27, at 4 o'clock. The Council of the College have appointed as lecturer Mr. S. C. Kaines Smith, lecturer in Art at Magdalene College, Cambridge, who is known as the author of "Greek Art and National Life," "Looking at Pictures," and other works on Art. He is also the editor of an attractive series of handbooks on British Artists which is now appearing.

In the present course Mr. Kaines Smith will lecture on "Three Spanish Painters." El Greco is the subject of Lecture I., Velasquez of Lectures II. and III., and Goya of Lecture IV. The series will be illustrated by photographs shown by limelight.

At the opening lecture the chair will be taken by the Provost of Trinity College.

FLAX AND HEMP TRADE WAGES.

The Flax and Hemp Trade Board of Great Britain has sent a notification to the Minister of Labour that, after considering the one objection lodged with them, they have varied the minimum rates of wages effective for certain classes of female learners employed in weaving, by attaching a condition to their employment in accordance with the provisions of their notice of Proposal "H. 14, dated 8th June, 1922."

The Board have asked the Minister to confirm the minimum rates as varied, and to bring them into operation on the earliest practicable date.

Should the variation be confirmed by the Minister of Labour notification will be sent to all employers in the trade who are known to the Trade Board.

THE WHITEHAVEN EXPLOSION

Giving evidence at the Whitehaven pit disaster inquiry yesterday, Sir Richard Redmayne, formerly Chief Inspector of Mines, said that the explosion at the Haig pit was pre-eminently a gas explosion, accompanied by distillation of coal.

It was very desirable that experiments should be made in regard to the conditions existing in collieries naturally wet throughout, and some method must be devised which would prevent an explosion being carried along by means of distillation, which might exist to a greater extent than was realised.

The inquiry was adjourned.

KILLARNEY CARAVAN.

150 CARTS IN PROCESSION.

A message dated Tralee, Wednesday, says that the farmers of Killarney, acting in the interests of the general community, "pooled" their available transport, which was formed into a procession of a hundred and fifty miscellaneous farm carts and vans, and travelled the twenty-five miles to Fenit.

Here the carts loaded foodstuffs from vessels at the quays, and then, without rest, made the return journey. It was demeed advisable to furnish a strong military escort, and, indeed, the convoy was frequently alarmed by shots fired at long range.

No real attack was made, however, and the procession arrived back in Killarney thirty hours after it had set out, having covered fifty miles.

FLAX AND HEMP TRADE WAGES.

The Flax and Hemp Trade Board of Great Britain has sent a notification to the Minister of Labour that, after considering the one objection lodged with them, they have varied the minimum rates of wages effective for certain classes of female learners employed in weaving, by attaching a condition to their employment in accordance with the provisions of their notice of Proposal ".H. 14, dated 8th June, 1922.

The Board have asked the Minister to confirm the minimum rates as varied, and to bring them into operation on the earliest practicable date.

Should the variation be confirmed by the Minister of Labour notification will be sent to all employers in the trade who are known to the Trade Board.

THE WHITEHAVEN EXPLOSION.

Giving evidence at the Whitehaven pit disaster inquiry yesterday, Sir Richard Redmayne, formerly Chief Inspector of Mines, said that the explosion at the Haig pit was pre-eminently a gas explosion, accompanied by distillation of coal.

It was very desirable that experiments should be made in regard to the conditions existing in collieries naturally wet throughout, and some method must be devised which would prevent an explosion being carried along by means of distillation, which might exist to a greater extent than was realised.

The inquiry was adjourned.

CITY CRIMINAL SESSIONS.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

The Recorder of Dublin resumed the criminal business of the City Sessions yesterday.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C. (instructed by the Chief Crown Solicitor), prosecuted.

The prisoners pleaded guilty to receiving.

Mr. Gleeson (instructed by Mr. Brady) appealed for leniency on behalf of the accused owing to their youth and delicate health.

Prisoners were put back for sentence.

BICYCLE THEFT.

Defending counsel urged that the evidence of identification was not conclusive.

The Recorder paid a tribute to the courage that had been shown by Mr. Dillon in seeking to safeguard the property of his employers, and said that the evidence was clear as to the identification of the prisoner. He urged on the jury that the claims of justice should be enforced in the city, and said that if the jury were not convinced in such a case, then farewell to the administration of justice.

The jury found a verdict of "guilty," and sentence was deferred.

The 1922 Crop

White's Wafer Oats

From the Oat Field direct to the Table.

Your Grocer has it—or can get supplies

Order a packet TO-DAY and enjoy porridge in perfection. The flavour is delicious, and the quality is fully up to the unsurpassed standard of previous years.

A few weeks ago the contents of the packets were standing in the glorious oat fields of Ireland, which produce oats which for flavour and bulk are celebrated throughout the world.

To the exclusive processes used in our mills are due the wonderful aroma and purity which make WAFER stand out as the most delectable cereal dish of the breakfast table.

Only oats of the first grade are used in its manufacture, and these are put through a multitude of purity ensuring processes before they reach the hermetically sealed packet.

White's Wafer is "The Cream of the Crop," and "The Best Course, of Course."

A temporary Edifice has been erected on the site secured for the New Church, which is badly needed in this locality.
It is already crowded, and the Shrine has aroused a deep spirit of Devotion to Our Lady of Lourdes, with most beneficial results among the people.
The Accommodation afforded by the Temporary Structure is inadequate. The Administrator strongly appeals to the Catholics of Dublin and of Ireland for the means to undertake the building of the New Church. The district being one of the most densely populated and poorest in the city, little pecuniary aid can be expected from it.
The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass will be offered EACH WEEK for Subscribers.
Subscriptions will be thankfully received by any of the Clergy, or by

A Political Crisis.

England is in the throes of a political crisis. During the past week her newspapers have been absorbed in the prospect of an early general election. Yesterday Mr. Chamberlain made an important speech at Birmingham. It is expected that to-day, at Manchester, the Prime Minister will put his fate to the touch, "to win or lose it all." A couple of years ago such a crisis would have had exciting reactions in this country. Now, however, the Irish people are regarding Britain's tumults with a calmness which, no doubt, seems strange to our politicians of the older school. The Free State is not yet in being; but already an aloofness born of the consciousness of national independence has begun to assert itself. Of course, many of the higher issues of Irish politics will continue to be dominated by the decisions of British statesmanship. England's wars, whether Ireland throws herself into them or stands apart, may affect Irish liberties and must affect Irish economics. If tariff reform comes again to be an issue at a British general election, Ireland will have a very intimate interest in the result. On the whole, however, England's domestic politics have ceased to have a vital interest for Southern Irishmen. Henceforward their own problems and the transactions of their own Parliament will claim the chief share of their attention. Even now Mr. Lloyd George's position presents itself to most of us as a human drama rather than as a problem in statecraft. So, for many years, Canada and Australia have been accustomed to regard British politics. Ireland is beginning to acquire the Dominion mind.

The present crisis in British politics is due to an uncommon cause. Usually a Government is attacked on account of its collective policy. In this case the attack is concentrated on the character and methods of the Prime Minister. His enemies ignore his magnificent services to England and to the Empire during the Great War. Their charge is that his personal supremacy in the Cabinet has become an urgent danger to the State. A large section of the Unionist Party is in revolt, and it is said that, if Mr. Chamberlain's influence fails to avert a breach, this section will march out of the Coalition under the leadership of the Earl of Derby and Mr. Bonar Law. There can be no question that some part of the indictment against Mr. Lloyd George is true. His gifts of persuasion too often have induced his colleagues to forget their responsibilities to the country. His genius for easy, but superficial, compromise in the peace settlement has bequeathed a legacy of trouble to the future rulers of Europe. His refusal to leave foreign affairs in the hands of the experts has brought England to the verge of war in the Near East. All these things are proper material for criticism and proper causes for discontent. We are inclined to think, however, that the present attack will fail by reason of its indiscriminate ferocity. It is absurd to declare that Mr. Lloyd George has committed Great Britain to a ruinous imperialism—that she ought to "get out" of Mesopotamia and Palestine and must defend her rights against nobody. Personal hatred of the Prime Minister has achieved the miracle of turning Unionist "die-hards" into "Little Englanders."

The English people like fair play and a good fighter. Mr. Lloyd George, with his back to the wall, is a redoubtable fighter, and his speech at Manchester to-day may cause some of his enemies to revise their notions about his imminent downfall. He retains, as Mr. Chamberlain showed yesterday, the confidence of his Unionist colleagues in the Cabinet. The Unionist malcontents in the Coalition must be prepared, therefore, to accept the double responsibility of splitting not only the Coalition, but the Unionist Party. Moreover, not even the most frenzied shoutings of a hostile Press can drown that small voice of reason which insists on asking: "If Mr. Lloyd George goes, who will succeed him?" It is almost certain that neither the Unionists alone nor the Liberals alone could form a strong Administration, with an adequate majority in the House of Commons. The alternatives would be the triumph of Labour, with its active policy of communism, and a conflict of groups which would spread weakness and confusion through every department of national affairs. The Coalition ought not to be destroyed until some other form of stable government is in sight. Mr. Chamberlain suggests that it shall be kept together until the general election and that efforts shall be made to replace it with some sort of working arrangement between the Unionist and Liberal Parties. It is possible that the Prime Minister may develop this suggestion in his speech at Manchester.

France and the Mark.

While Europe's eyes were fixed on Mudania, the German mark began to tumble rapidly towards worthlessness. At the beginning of the present week the rate of exchange in Berlin had fallen to nearly 13,000 marks to the pound sterling, and, although it has recovered appreciably within the past few days, a still further collapse is anticipated by well-informed observers. Naturally, the condition of the mark exchange is of first importance to the Allies, and a hurried conference was called in Paris yesterday to discuss the situation. M. Poincaré presided, and among the Ministers who attended the meeting were M. Barthou, the new French representative on the Reparations Commission; M. Lasteyrie, the Minister of Finance, and M. Reibel, Minister for the Liberated Regions. Sir John Bradbury, the British delegate to the Reparations Commission, and one of the shrewdest men of affairs in Europe, has drafted a plan to check the fall of the mark and generally to restore some sort of stability to German finances. It was considered yesterday in Paris; but, apparently, it has failed to find favour with M. Poincaré. The plan is in two parts. It proposes, as an immediate remedy for German ills, that the Government of the Reich shall be granted a five years' moratorium in respect of all cash payments; and, as an ultimate cure, that the whole system of German finance shall be re-organised under Allied control. The latter part of Sir John Bradbury's proposals, we are told, will receive the "careful consideration of all the interested parties"; but the suggestion of a moratorium is "inadmissible." The policy of France has not changed since last August, and the concessions which were made then by the Reparations Commission cannot be extended. No decision of any kind, however, can be taken until after the Brussels Conference, the date of which has been fixed provisionally for the end of next month or the beginning of December. By that time almost anything may have happened. If the Allies propose to help Germany, they ought to help her at once. If they do not propose to help her, of course, nothing further need be said; her final collapse will be merely a matter of time. The provisional moratorium which was conceded by the Reparations Commission in August will expire next February. Unless in the meantime some attempt is made to restrain the flight of the mark, it will have joined the rouble and the krone in utter bankruptcy, and the last hope of an indemnity will vanish.

Undergraduates' Bills.

The extravagant habits of the undergraduate are an old theme, and in commenting on it in Convocation Dr. Farnell, the Vice-Chancellor of Oxford University, scarcely can have imagined that he was remedying the evil. There are always wealthy undergraduates at Oxford and Cambridge who will live according to their means, and upon whom the tradesmen look as a legitimate source of revenue. They pay top prices, and get unlimited credit generally because they are too lazy to pay cash. Then there are the undergraduates who go to college to do a maximum of work on small allowances not easily provided by their self-sacrificing parents, and loyally fulfil their part of the bargain. Somewhere between these two types comes the young man whose allowance is reasonably large, but not large enough to enable him to "keep his end up," as the saying is, with the monied young men of his college. To such the unlimited and easy credit extended by the town shopkeeper is a temptation to live beyond his means. It seldom results, however, in more than the presentation of bills which the parent pays with only a few growls of perfunctory protest if the young hopeful has satisfied expectations in the matter of his scholastic attainments. Only when the expected class or the desired degree is not forthcoming does the indignant parent really give tongue; and in this case he is more than likely to condemn the rapacity of the tradesman and the inefficiency of the university's methods of tuition in one and the same breath. It is not unnatural, perhaps, that the defenders of hallowed, but slightly antiquated systems, should seek to lay the entire blame upon the vendors of credit of auroreal waistcoats and selected vintages.

Clothes and Health.

In declaring that the low-necked blouses affected by women are as healthy as they are becoming, Professor Leonard Hill, the Medical Research Council's Director of Applied Physiology, may be uttering the purest of truths. His pious wish that the Prince of Wales would jettison his collars and set the fashion in low necks for men is hardly likely to be realised, no matter how convincing a case he may make for the hygienic advantages of the change. Women, as a matter of fact, do not expose their pretty skins to the elements because the practice is healthy, but because they rightly believe that they look nicer in that way. With the exception of the matinée idol, man is quite indifferent as to how he really looks in his clothes. His only idea is not to look conspicuous. The changes in women's fashions are always due to inspiration and in those of men to evolution. Comfort counselled the introduction of the garment now known in sartorial circles as "plus fours." As for hygiene, it has yet to be proved that any sort of garment is more healthy than another. Ninety per cent. of the world's female centenarians have died in red flannel petticoats. On the other hand, nudity is admittedly a healthy condition as soon as the practitioner has accustomed himself to it. What doctors condemn is a sudden change to unaccustomed conditions. Neckless blouses are not pneumonic unless they are alternated with fur collars. In a word, the case against thick clothes and thin clothes—against many garments or few—is hygienically unproven. The doctors will continue to influence our tailors' bills only to the extent of their own.

CHAMBER MUSIC.

BRAHMS AND BEETHOVEN.

The third season of chamber music concerts in aid of St. Ultan's Hospital opened yesterday with a very full attendance at the afternoon concert in the Engineers' Hall. Public-spirited artists are arranging to perform distinctive works from the great composers during this season, and the interest with which yesterday's long programme was followed indicates the need for this kind of music-illustration.

The Brahms' Quartette (Opus 26) was well interpreted, the rich, flamboyant ensembles being particularly striking and the many details telling of artistic insight and discrimination. This work is so instinct with style that it leaves a lasting impression on the mind. The piano part is, perhaps, too heavy at times, but the accent yesterday was consistently good and well maintained, even when furtissimo.

It was in the slight instances of strings heard apart from the piano that one realised the intensity of Brahms' harmonic sense. These players translated it delightfully, both balance and tone really good to hear.

In the Adagio the theme in single notes and the undulating rhythms of the piano made the movement. It was, however, in the B flat Trio (Beethoven) that the piano came into its own. Here the player gave the passages most lucidly, dropping into quick changes of touch and rhythm with immediate appeal. The Trio was given with studious care, and was most enthusiastically received.

The players were Miss Lorna Thompson (violin), Mr. Joseph Schofield ('cello), and Mrs. O'Connell Miley (piano), who also, with the addition of Mr. George Brett (viola), had given the Brahms' Quartette.

Miss Mary Maguire sang two groups of songs with charm and musical sense. In the 17th century Wekerlin, "Les quinze aus de Rosette," and "Immer leise wird mein Schlummer," from Brahms, the changing tones were rich and accurate glimpses of the sense of the poetry.

OBITUARY.

MR. ALEXANDER PHILLIPS.

We much regret to announce the death of Mr. Alexander Phillips, which occurred yesterday at his residence, 16 Kenilworth square, Dublin, after a short illness. Mr. Phillips was one of the oldest and most highly respected journalists in Ireland. He came to Dublin from Londonderry about forty years ago, when he joined the reporting staff of the late Daily Express. Some years afterwards he become chief reporter of that journal, and was appointed the Dublin Correspondent of the Press Association, a position which he filled with great efficiency for nearly thirty years. Twenty years ago Mr. Phillips joined the staff of The Irish Times, and afterwards acted in the capacity of chief reporter. His long career of professional service was laid in one of the stormiest periods in Irish history. His duties brought him into close touch with successive Viceroys and Chief Secretaries, by all of whom he was held in very high esteem.

Mr. Phillips had a remarkably high sense of professional honour, and was as conscientious in his work as he was straightforward and honest in all his dealings. His pen helped to record the whole history of Ireland's transition from the old to the new political régime, and few living Irishmen have had a more varied experience of public affairs than that which fell to his lot. He was, indeed, one of the land-marks of Irish journalism. His qualities of faithful service were an asset to his profession, and his loss will be felt deeply by his colleagues of the Irish Times.

NEW FLOATING DOCK FOR SOUTHAMPTON.

The London and South Western Railway Company yesterday placed an order with Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth and Co., Newcastle-on-Tyne, for the construction of a 60,000 tons lifting-power floating dock at Southampton. It will be 96 feet in length, and can accommodate the largest vessels afloat.

LONDON LETTER.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

Mr. Chamberlain seems to have made a judicious and, in many ways an effective, speech at Birmingham. His contrast between the factious attitude adopted by Mr. Asquith and the other "Wee Frees" during the Near East crisis and the loyal support given by the Unionist leaders to the Liberal Government in 1914 was, to some extent, justified, though the circumstances of the two cases were not quite identical.

He was quite within his rights also in pointing out the dangers of letting in a Labour Government, with its revolutionary views on property and finance, though this part of his argument was, to some extent, discounted by his insistence that in the new Parliament no single party would have a majority and that, consequently, this country would continue to be governed by some sort of Coalition. It is not easy to see the wealthy business men who form the backbone of the Independent Liberal Party acquiescing in the capital levy and all the other economic nostrums of the Labour programme.

All the same, and probably with intention, Mr. Chamberlain avoided the real point which is exercising the minds of Conservatives to-day. It is not so much to the policy of the present Government that a great number of them object as to its chief. To quote the conclusion of this morning's leader in The Times—all the more effective from its moderate tone—"We believe it to be the truth that in no important international negotiation will the word of England be taken at its face value, unless there is a complete change in the methods by which national affairs have been treated during recent years, and that no such change is feasible while the present Coalition holds office under the present Prime Minister."

Mr. Chamberlain makes no direct reply to this challenge, but the inference to be drawn from the compliments that he paid to Mr. Lloyd George in the early part of his speech is that he himself sees no reason for a change in the headship of affairs. And that is why, I am afraid, he will fail to arrest the growing split in the Conservative ranks. A large section of the party—in the country probably the largest—is determined, come what may, not to support another Lloyd George Administration.

THE PREMIER'S PLANS.

The Prime Minister paid a visit to the King at Buckingham Palace this morning, but it is understood that the call was simply one of farewell, since the King is going to Sandringham for some weeks, and it will be some time before there is an opportunity for another meeting. Mr. Lloyd George later left for Manchester for his speech to-morrow. He went to Mobberley Hall, Cheshire, and will drive from there to-morrow to the Reform Club for the luncheon. His party included Mrs. Lloyd George, Miss Lloyd George, Mr. McCurdy, Sir William Sutherland, Sir Edward Grigg, and Mr. J. T. Davies.

It is understood that Mr. Winston Churchill intends to make some special references to Ireland in his speech at Bristol next Tuesday, while he will also deal with the Near East question and the domestic situation. Another interesting speech may be expected on Thursday, when the Lord Chancellor is to address the members of the Constitutional Club. As the Club is largely composed of those country Conservatives whose discontent has largely led to the present crisis, and as Lord Birkenhead is supposed to be one of the strongest Unionist supporters of the Prime Minister in the Cabinet, some piquant exchanges may be anticipated.

Labour is very much concerned about the present state of the political world. It thinks that a general election is imminent and that it might have an opportunity of returning a large number of members to the House of Commons. But it will probably be unable to put up a contest in more than three hundred and fifty constituencies, though it is said to have four hundred and fifty potential candidates.

LABOUR'S CABINET.

At the same time, the Labour headquarters at Eccleston square are said to have a possible Cabinet neatly drawn up in case it should be needed. This is said to include the names of Mr. Clynes, Mr. Adamson, Mr. Henderson, and Mr. Ramsay Macdonald. Lord Haldane is down for the Lord Chancellorship, Mr. Patrick Hastings, K.C., is to be offered the Attorney-Generalship, and Mr. Hemmerde the Solicitor-Generalship. There are a number of other names not so generally known, and it is certain that several of the suggested appointments would not meet with warm approval in the Labour ranks.

The meeting of the Canadian and British Ministers and experts, who are to frame the terms and legislation regarding the removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle, will meet to-morrow at the Colonial Office. A representative of South Africa is now expected to attend the conference, and it is anticipated that the Bill, when introduced, will place all the Dominions on an equality of treatment, though Canada is the most interested party.

The British Dairy Farmers' Association has a "record" entry for its show at the Agricultural Hall next week. The entries number 10,339, including 3,208 pigeons and 4,398 poultry. There is a show of 515 cattle, a figure which has never been previously approached, and speaks well for the present rivalries among the milking breeds. Mr. W. Brown, who has been steward of the Working Dairy since 1894, will again supervise the activities of the dairymaids, whose entries in the butter-making contests number 141. Some important agricultural conferences are to be held during the show week.

NEW PICTURES.

The 39th exhibition of the Royal Institute of Oil Painters opens at 195 Piccadilly next Monday, when a very interesting collection of pictures will be on view. The number of exhibits has been kept as low as possible, and, following the example of the Hanging Committee of the Royal Academy, the painters have placed all the pictures so that they may easily be seen. A picture which may attract as much attention as any is "The Derby, 1922," by Sir John Lavery. Sir William Orpen has a "Portrait of a Lady," and Mr. Lander sends a fine portrait of Miss Alanah Harper. Sir David Murray has a typical work in "Constable's Mill and the Lock at Flatford." A very fine study of still life, entitled "The Round Globe," by Mr. H. Davies Richter, attracted much attention at the private view to-day.

The story that the arrival of a dozen heavy trunks from Berlin at the ex-Kaiser's residence at Doorn preludes a coronation of his bride after the wedding ceremony does not sound very probable. The ex-Kaiser has never been crowned himself, either as King of Prussia or as German Emperor, and it is, therefore, unlikely that he would think it necessary to crown his wife. Of course, as German Emperor, he was simply head of the German Confederation of Princes, and no coronation ceremony was considered necessary. As King of Prussia there was a suggestion several times that he should be crowned with all the old Brandenburg pageantry, but the suggestion never bore fruit.

FUTURE OF THE COALITION.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN ON LABOUR AS THE COMMON FOE.

UNIONISTS TO CONTINUE PACT WITH LIBERALS?

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S "TRIUMPHAL" JOURNEY TO THE NORTH.

THE political situation in Great Britain will be clarified as the result of the speeches of Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Chamberlain.

Speaking at Birmingham yesterday, Mr. Chamberlain pleaded for a continuance of the Coalition. He asserted that he had pursued a consistent course, and that Mr. Lloyd George had acted loyally towards his Unionist colleagues.

MUST DEFEND THE CONSTITUTION.

This was a time when all the conservative elements in the country must combine in the defence of the Constitution. Direct action was threatened, and if Labour—even the moderate section—were returned to power at the next election, the industries of the country would be doomed.

Regarding the Near East, the Unionist leader said that the Government's objects were to prevent the war from spreading to Europe and to preserve the freedom of the Straits. This object had been achieved.

CHEERS FOR MR. LLOYD GEORGE.

Mr. Lloyd George, who speaks to-day at Manchester, experienced what an eye-witness describes as "a triumphal procession through the villages" last night on his nine-mile journey from Macclesfield Station to Mobberley Hall, where he stayed the night as the guest of Mr. H. N. Bardlay.

Along the route hundreds of people, many of them carrying flags, assembled and cheered vigorously. At one or two points they thronged so closely around the car as almost to bring it to a stand-still.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S PLEA.

COALITION NECESSARY FOR COUNTRY'S SAFETY.

Speaking at Birmingham yesterday, Mr. Austen Chamberlain said that at the moment not only the foreign policy of the Government as a whole, but the action and position of the Unionist leaders in the Government were the subject of much criticism, not always of the most friendly or most generous character.

Speaking under great responsibility, he was happy to know that in all that he had done and said since he came into his present position he had acted with the full assent of his Unionist colleagues in the Cabinet. He claimed that in the advice which, supported by his colleagues, he had given to his party, he had pursued a consistent course.

Mr. Lloyd George had worked with him in perfect harmony of political aim, and with no difference of political principle on any occasion. Mr. Lloyd George had acted with perfect loyalty towards his Unionist allies. It was not, nor was it pretended now, that any question of principle divided them, or was likely to divide them in the near future. On the contrary, the issues before the country, which were daily becoming more clear, were not the old dividing issues, but new issues which united them.

DANGERS AHEAD.

He submitted that these were not days in which they should magnify differences or assert claims. They were days when it was their duty to rally all the constitutional and conservative elements of the country to the defence of the Constitution, and of that social and economic order which had made the country what it was, and on which its prosperous development depended.

Within the last few weeks the threats of direct action have been raised again. They were to be governed by the political strike. Was that a peril before which Constitutional parties should devote themselves to pressing personal claims and party differences? He knew not when an election would come. When it did come the new House of Commons would be very different from the present one, if through their dissensions the Labour Party obtained a majority.

He warned them that if that happened—and it would only happen through their own fault—it would not be the moderates of the Labour Party who would prevail. Direct action would triumph over a Government in which the leaders, as Mr. Clynes explained, must take instructions from a caucus or mass meeting. Even if the moderates prevailed, was their programme so innocent and harmless that they could afford to give it full play for the next four or five years? It included a capital levy (which would be the doom of industry in circumstances like the present), the repudiation of the full interest to holders of the National Debt, and the nationalisation of the country's great industries.

UNITY ESSENTIAL.

He did not pretend to say how in what particular circumstances, and under what conditions co-operation between themselves and their present Allies could best be maintained in a new Parliament, but he said with all the earnestness of a great conviction, and with any influence that his experience and—might he say—his services might give him with his Party that at such a moment union should be their first consideration—union in the face of a common foe—and that it would be criminal to allow personal ambition or narrow party jealousies to sacrifice the interests of the country and to betray the great causes which they, as a Party, had cherished and maintained, and which, if abandoned or betrayed by them, could be sustained by no other force within the realm.

He would make one further prediction. If the advice which was given him by those who were his natural and most competent advisers was not absolutely wrong, there would be no possibility that in the new Parliament any Government could be formed, except by a Coalition drawn from more than one of the old parties. Let them see to it that it was the constitutional and Conservative Coalition which prevailed.

NEAR EAST.

During the last few weeks there had been moments when the danger of an attack on our forces in the Near East had appeared imminent, and the position had been all the graver because the complete unanimity, which prevailed among the Allies during the war and in the preparation of the terms of peace, had been weakened, and because the Kemalist forces had been encouraged by indications of a divergence of policy, and under the elation of their victory over the Greek Armies, to try conclusions with the Allies.

With regard to the policy of the Government, they had been neutral as between the Greeks and Turks, but they had had two great objects in view. They had been quite ready to recognise the result of the Greek defeat in Asia Minor, and to restore Constantinople to the Turks when a definite peace was signed with the Allies. They had been ready, with their Allies, to secure by common influence the peaceful and orderly transfer of Eastern Thrace up to the Maritza to the Turks, but they had been determined to prevent the war which had devastated Asia Minor from being carried into Europe—(cheers)—to save Constantinople from the fate of Smyrna, and to preserve the freedom of the Straits, which was the chief fruits of the Allies' victory in the war with Turkey.

No men could be more anxious than the King's Ministers to secure these aims by peaceful means, and to co-operate in every measure with our Allies. They were prepared, if need arose, to defend on behalf of the Empire that freedom of the Straits which was consecrated by the Empire's blood.

POLICY SUCCESSFUL.

He could not speak at this moment with careless optimism or too great confidence, but he believed that their policy had been successful. If so, it would be because the Government from the first firmly, but temperately, expressed its will, and pursued with unanimity the simple objects which it set before itself, because they had been singularly fortunate in the judgment, courage, and tact of their military and civilian representatives in Constantinople, and because of the skill, patience, and dignity with which Lord Curzon had represented Great Britain. It would not be because of any help they had received from the leaders of the Opposition, the only effect of whose language could be to weaken the Government's authority, to encourage the Kemelists in their pretensions, and to present the Empire to France not as an Ally and equal, but as a humble satellite in the orbit of French policy.

"COALITION BOUND TO END."

LONDON CLUB VIEWS ON MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech was regarded in London political circles, says the Press Association in a message last night, as offering a basis of general agreement among Unionists—that of the support of the Coalition up to the General Election, without any bargain as to the subsequent relations of the parties. It is a powerful appeal, which, if it leaves the Diehard group unmoved, is expected to have a marked influence among the majority of the party.

The Central News Political Correspondent takes the view that the speech was much what was expected.

"Mr. Chamberlan has left the stirring stuff for Lloyd George at Manchester," is a colloquial comment which sums up the general impressions. The speech is regarded as intended to give pause to the restless spirits in the Unionist Party.

It suggests to them that, before they break away from the Coalition, they must look ahead and reflect on what will be the probable condition of parties in the next Parliament.

It is pointed out that Mr. Chamberlain's declaration that it would be criminal to break up the Coalition cannot be read alone. That statement is qualified by his remark that he does not pretend to say in which circumstances and conditions co-operation between the present Coalition parties can best be obtained in a new Parliament.

This is interpreted as an indication that Mr. Chamberlain realises that the Coalition, on its present basis, is bound to end, but that it must be succeeded by a working arrangement with the Coalition Liberals, because the Unionists cannot expect to have an independent majority in the new House.

Mr. Chamberlain's assertion to the perfect relations which exist between him and Mr. Lloyd George is known to be justified. At the same time, many of his followers fear that they will lose their seats if they are identified with Mr. Lloyd George any longer.

The two speeches are expected to hang together, however, and judgment on Mr. Chamberlain's is suspended until it can be read in conjunction with the one Mr. Lloyd George is making to-night.

PREMIER CHEERED.

"I AM GOING TO APPEAL FOR FAIR PLAY."

Wiring from Macclesfield last night the Special Correspondent of the Press Association states that Mr. Lloyd George had wonderfully enthusiastic greetings during his journey from London to the North.

When the train stopped at Stoke a large crowd on the platform clamorously besieged the windows of his saloon.

Responding to a burst of cheering and persistent demands for a speech, the Prime Minister said:—"It is very kind of you to come here to give me a friendly greeting on my way to my native city to defend our action in the East, which has brought peace to Europe. I know the British public—the public that loves fair play above everything—and I am going straight to the British public to appeal for fair play. I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

At Macclesfield he was received by the Mayor and Corporation and a number of M.P.'s, and after a difficult passage through the cheering throngs, he left for Mobberley Hall.

On his journey to Manchester to-day, the Prime Minister motors through nine different towns.

A reception will be held at the Reform Club before the luncheon, at which Sir Edward Rhodes presides, and proposes the toast of the "Prime Minister."

Salford and Blackpool will be visited by Mr. Lloyd George after the luncheon, and, motoring to Preston on Sunday morning, he returns to London by the 8.30 train.

MR. CLYNES'S REPLY.

LABOUR'S CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS.

Mr. Clynes, speaking at Reading last night, said that Mr. Chamberlain's declaration that day would deepen class antagonisms and render further disservice to the Throne and constitutional practice.

The Labour Party was as constitutional as any other body. Bolshevism was produced in Russia through the suppression of popular liberty, and rebellion could be fomented in this country by Ministers seeking to put the Labour Party outside the pale of constitutional action.

"JUGGLING OPPORTUNIST."

COLONEL PAGE CROFT AND THE PREMIER.

Speaking at Boscombe last night, Colonel Page Croft, member for Bournemouth, said that Britain could not preserve the friendship of her Allies or retain the Empire if such a juggling opportunist as Mr. Lloyd George continued to mismanage their affairs.

Mr. Lloyd George had remained in office by squandering the wealth of the country in doles and relief. They wanted definite Empire policy to solve unemployment and end waste. This would only be achieved by rallying electors to chase the incompetents from office.

Speaking at Glasgow University yesterday in support of Sir John Simon's candidature for the Lord Rectorship, Lord Pentland said that it was time the Coalition had gone, and they had a party in power with fixed principles.

PLOT TO BLOW UP SCIENCE COLLEGE.

REPORTED DISCOVERY IN DUBLIN.

REASON FOR CLOSING THE BUILDING.

The closing of the College of Science, Upper Merrion street, has caused considerable inconvenience to students. The building has for some time been occupied by various Government offices, and it is stated that a plot to blow it up had been discovered.

This, it is understood, is the reason given for the step which has now been taken.

Temporary buildings have been found for the purpose of lectures and teaching, but the students are deprived of the use of the laboratories, which are very essential to their work.

A meeting of the Students' Union has been held for the purpose of urging on the Government the necessity of re-opening the buildings. At this meeting one speaker suggested that in approaching the Government they should, at least, be ready to offer an assurance, or undertaking, signed by every student, that they would not use their position for the purpose of furthering any activities inimical to the Government.

A deputation of students from the College of Science waited on the Minister of Agriculture yesterday at the Provisional Government Office to ascertain if it were possible to have the College re-opened.

The deputation explained the seriousness of the position from the students' point of view, especially third and fourth year Engineering and Chemistry students.

The Minister, in reply, stated that the College had been closed on the advice of the military authorities, and he could not say when it would be re-opened. He further stated that alternative accommodation was being provided where possible.

In conclusion, he expressed his sympathy with the students, and stated his willingness to aid them as far as lay in his power.

The deputation, having thanked him, withdrew.

STILL THE PEOPLE'S IDOL.

HINDENBURG TO STAND AS PRESIDENT.

Marshal Hindenburg, at the pressing request of the German National People's Party, has expressed his willingness to offer himself for election as President of the Reich, says a Reuter Berlin wire.

LINER PASSENGERS SAFE.

BOATS PICKED UP BY RESCUE SHIPS.

All the passengers and crew of the American liner, City of Honolulu, have been picked up by the American Shipping Board's cargo steamer, the West Farralone. The City of Honolulu was afire from end to end when the last man left, and shortly afterwards the vessel sank.

The weather was calm, and the boats were rowed in the direction from which help was expected. Ten hours later the West Farralone picked up the first lifeboat, and later found all the others. A yacht, Casiana, stood by while the passengers and crew were leaving the doomed ship.

The West Farralone has circulated a wireless message saying that there have been no casualties, and that she is steaming for San Francisco.

MARIE LLOYD'S WILL.

REPORT THAT SHE DIED ALMOST PENNILESS.

According to one account yesterday, says our London Correspondent, although Marie Lloyd earned more than £250,000 while she was on the halls, she lived up to every penny she made.

One member of the family stated that in actual cash she leaves but a few pounds, and that is what was left out of her last week's earnings, while her furniture and other belongings will only realise a few hundred pounds.

He added that "when her outstanding liabilities, which are believed to be considerable, are discharged, it is doubtful if there will be enough to pay the beneficiaries under her will."

"She had a whole string of pensioners, whom she had paid a fixed weekly sum, whether they had earned it or not. They used to come to her every Saturday night," said another of her friends yesterday.

Mr. John Wood, Miss Marie Lloyd's brother, however, denies that she died almost penniless.

"She has left a will dealing with certain property, which includes a large house and its contents in Finchley road, valued at over £6,000, and also the contents of the house in Woodstock avenue, worth £3,000," he stated.

RATHENAU MURDER TRIAL.

ACCOMPLICE FORGIVEN BY VICTIM'S MOTHER.

LEIPZIG, Friday.

There was a most dramatic moment at to-day's hearing of the Rathenau murder trial, when a letter from Rathenau's mother to Techow's mother, written shortly after the crime was committed, was read to the Court. "In the deepest grief," she wrote, "I extend my hand to you—you, the most pitiable of all women. Tell your son that I forgive him in the name and the spirit of my murdered son. May God forgive him, too, if he makes a full and open confession before the earthly tribunal and repents before God.

"Had he known my son, who was the noblest man on earth, he would sooner have turned the weapon upon himself. May these lines bring peace to your soul."

On being asked this morning what he had to say on his own behalf, Techow declared: "I have told the Court the full truth. I have deeply reproached myself for my action and I await just punishment for my deed."

It is expected that the Court will pronounce its sentence to-morrow.—(Reuter.)

GREEKS TO SIGN PACT.

ISMIDT INVADED "BY MISTAKE."

M. Simopoulos, the Greek High Commissioner in Constantinople, has been instructed by the Athens Government to sign the Mudania Convention.

Complete calm prevails in Thrace. The moral of the Greek troops is stated to be excellent.

Telegrams have been received in London showing the excellent effect produced on Moslem feeling as a result of the Near Eastern agreement among Mohamedans in India, Persia, and Afghanistan.

It is learned from Constantinople that the Turkish force which penetrated the new neutral zone north of Ghebzeh (Ismidt area) consisted entirely of cavalry. The Turkish Commander informed the British officer who went to investigate that he was within the Turkish zone. It would seem, therefore, that a mistake may be at the bottom of this breach of the Convention.

Hamid Bey, the Angora representative at Constantinople, has been instructed to inform the British Headquarters that an officer will present himself at Ghebzeh station on Sunday, at 10 o'clock in the morning, to proceed to the demarcation of the line agreed upon.

A meeting of the High Commissioners and Generals at the British Headquarters yesterday morning discussed details in regard to the evacuation of Thrace.

Allied Missions will be sent to Eastern Thrace on Sunday with contingents of troops to see that the Greek troops evacuate the country in an orderly manner. Proclamations will be issued calling on the people to continue their avocations, and help the authorities at this critical time by their orderly conduct.

CHEMIST'S SHOP ROBBED.

Four armed men who visited the chemist's shop of Mr. J. J. Doyle, 363 North Circular road, at 8.15 last night, took one-and-a-half dozen bandages and £18 5s. in cash from the till.

DUBLIN AMBUSHES.

There were two ambushes in Dublin yesterday. National troops were fired at in Mary street and at Westland Row. There were no casualties.

The death has occurred in Montreal, at the age of 58, of Major-General Sir John Wallace Carson, director of the Union Bank of Canada.

PLIGHT OF THE MARK.

REPARATIONS HITCH FORESHADOWED.

FRENCH IGNORE THE SIGNS.

STILL OPPOSED TO LONG MORATORIUM.

French Ministers met in Paris yesterday to discuss the effect of the fall in the mark on reparations. The Ministers also discussed Sir John Bradbury's plans for reorganising Germany's finances.

So far as the proposal that German finance should be directed by Allied experts, the Ministers announce that it will receive "careful consideration."

In the matter of the proposed five years' moratorium in respect of all cash payments, the Ministers say that this is "inadmissible" and that the policy of France is not to extend the concessions already granted by the Reparations Commission.

NO FURTHER RELIEF.

FRENCH ATTITUDE UNCHANGED.

The following official statement was issued in Paris yesterday:—

An important conference took place this morning at the Quai d'Orsay, under the presidency of M. Poincaré, for the purpose of examining the attitude to be adopted by the French Government with regard to the further collapse of the mark and its effect upon the payment of reparations.

There were present at the meeting M. Louis Barthou, the French representative, and M. Mauclerc, the assistant French representative, of the Reparations Commission; M. de Lasteyrie, Minister of Finance; M. Reibel, Minister of the Liberated Regions; M. Peretti Della Roca, Director of Political Affairs; and M. Seydoux, Assistant Director of Commercial Affairs.

The proposal of Sir John Bradbury will be given very careful consideration by the various interested parties. All that part of the proposal which includes a plan for establishing financial reform in Germany involves complex measures, the efficacy of which depends upon the good-will of Germany. It will be a long undertaking, the result of which cannot materialise at an early date.

"The constructive proposal of Sir John Bradbury, which accompanies it, of granting a moratorium to Germany of five years' duration for all the payments in respect of cash appears to be inadmissible to the French Government, because it prejudices the future and also the prosperity of Germany for too long a period for the Allies to have any serious basis for calculation.

"In a general way the attitude of the French Government has not been modified since the London Conference of August last. The Reparations Commission, having taken only a provisional decision applying only to the payments of 1922, and not having reached a decision regarding the financial reform to be required of Germany, is confronted with a new aspect of the question. Nevertheless, it appears logical, and it is, without doubt, the opinion of interested French circles, that all decisions of the Reparations Commission in this connection should be suspended until the Allied Governments have examined, if not settled, the whole reparations problem at the Brussels Conference, which is expected to meet at the end of November, or, at the latest, at the beginning of December."

FALLING MARK.

LEGISLATION USELESS.

BERLIN, Friday.

Notwithstanding the Government regulations against speculations in currency the financial outlook is regarded in industrial and commercial quarters as gloomy. As to the efficacy of the regulations, the Lokalanzeiger states that once the Government measures are known, it is possible that the mark will still further depreciate to a considerable extent. In authoritative circles it is feared that the regulations will be made a pretext for illegal currency transactions.—(Reuter.)

AIR VOYAGE THRILL.

MACHINE MISSES HOUSES BY HAIR'S BREADTH.

BEAUVAIS, Friday.

An aeroplane engaged on the mail service from London to Paris made a forced landing today at Menil Coateville, owing to its rudder having broken. The inhabitants were greatly alarmed to see the machine miss houses by a hair's breadth as it came down. There were six British passengers and a mechanic aboard, but none was injured. The machine was partly embedded in the ground.—(Reuter.)

PILLION GIRL TO GO?

"ENDANGERING HUMAN LIFE."

The Lady of the Pillion is feeling concerned lest she should be banned, says our London Correspondent.

This uneasiness arises as a result of some remarks made by the Chairman of the Hampstead Bench, Dr. J. MacDonald Brown, on the subject of pillion-riding dangers.

"I wonder," said Dr. MacDonald Brown, "when the public will get accustomed to recognising that this is a very dangerous custom. It is perfectly monstrous the accidents that are taking place now.

"I think a man who takes a girl or companion on the pillion is committing a crime; it is endangering human life.

"Recently the Ministry of Transport was reported to have announced that the number of pillion accidents was insufficient to warrant official action. Is this, however, the view of the general public? There is a strong feeling in several quarters that some sort of restrictive legislation should be enforced."

SALTING BEER.

DOCTORED DRINK KILLING THE TRADE.

Doctored drink far more than the coming temperance campaign is likely to reduce the consumption of alcohol in Great Britain, says our London Correspondent. It is no wonder that beer-drinking is on the decline when the poor quality of the liquor provided is considered.

In a certain town in Kent the draught beer to be bought at certain publichouses is noticeably salted in order to stimulate thirst.

The foremost firms have reputations to preserve, but the local beers had no flavour or body.

It is declared that unsavoury and unwholesome liquids are killing the Trade more effectively than all the attacks of temperance reformers.

The truth is that the modern chemist is too clever. Beers can be manufactured at low costs from material in which hops and barley are totally absent.

CHINA'S NEW PEACE MENACED.

It is reported in a Reuter telegram from Shanghai, that Foochou has been captured, after fierce street fighting, by General Hsu Chung-chi, supporting Dr. Sun Yat-sen. The capture of the town follows sporadic fighting in Fu-chein province, in which General Hsu endeavoured to oust the Tuchun. The situation is now serious. Both the Peking and Canton Governments are contemplating sending expeditions to oppose General Hsu, as the latter's successes may lead to an attempt to restore Dr. Sun's influence.

[Foochou, at the mouth of the River Min, is the capital of Fu-chien province, and has a population of 630,000. It is one one the principal tea markets of China.]

BACK TO WORK.

PESSIMISM IS A SIN.

REASONS FOR HOPE IN IRELAND.

GOVERNMENT'S EFFORTS SUCCEEDING.

Addressing the Leighlin Synod at Carlow yesterday, the Bishop of Ossory referred to the state of Ireland.

"The country," he said, "is still infested with roving bands of lawless men, and outrage and robbery are matters of constant occurrence. Many of our people have suffered severely under these conditions. Some of them have been driven from their homes and lands. I suppose there are few, if any, of our people who entirely escaped molestation.

"The crying need of our country at the present time is a stern dealing by those in authority with outrage and crime and the re-establishment, at whatever cost, of conditions of stability and the security of property.

"Indeed, until the young men are brought to see that robbery and murder, for whatever motive committed, are deadly sins against Almighty God, it is hard to see how there can be peace in Ireland.

FACING DIFFICULTIES.

"But still I have not lost hope in our country. The authorities, under the most tremendous difficulties, have formed and trained an Army and a Civic Guard, and are doing their best to establish order. The vast majority of the people are quiet and law-abiding, and the members of different religious denominations are living side by side on the best of terms, and doing all that they can to help one another. (Hear, hear).

"I think that nobody can deny that the new Dail Eireann has made an excellent start. I have been greatly impressed by the tone of the debates in the Dail, and the very high level reached in many of the speeches. (Hear, hear).

"My brethren, I do not urge upon you to try and look upon the bright side of things. Hold on to faith and hope. Let us remember that pessimism and despair are sins against God, and that hope is a great Christian virtue. Let us try to believe, even in these dark days, that God loves us still, and that in all this confusion He is working out His plan, and that the end will be good.

"And let us do what we can, each in his own neighbourhood and position, to work for righteousness and peace in the spirit of forbearance and love, remembering that scorn and hatred are of the Devil, but love is of God, and he that loveth is born of God and knoweth God."

STIFF COLLAR FETISH.

PRINCE OF WALES TO SET FASHION IN LOW NECK SHIRTS?

Professor Leonard Hill, director of the Department of Applied Physiology of the Medical Research Council, lecturing at Brighton in connection with the Health Week, said that the talk of pneumonia blouses for women is all nonsense.

"Women are much healthier and much more beautiful in low-necked blouses," he declared. "I only wish that the Prince of Wales would come out with a low neck, and so start a fashion to rid us men of those horrible, tight, unhealthy stiff collars."

Children, he added, are shamefully overclothed. As long as it is not looking blue or shivering, a baby should be left in the open air naked.

All our legislators are given cold feet and hot heads because the air comes from the floor in the House of Commons—hence all our troubles.

DARING BANK ROBBERY.

£50 IN NOTES SNATCHED FROM THE COUNTER.

A daring attempt at robbery was made at Barclays Bank, Collingwood street, Newcastle.

Just before closing time, when several depositors were at the counter, two respectably-dressed men entered.

While one attracted a clerk's attention the other seized a bundle of fifty £1 notes from the counter.

They made a bolt for the door, but were at once pursued. One man was caught, but the other got away.

IRISH WITNESSES.

LONDON ACTION OVER BILL OF EXCHANGE.

A number of witnesses from Ireland are to be called in the case of Cox v. Jones, Lind and Co., and others, which was mentioned yesterday before Mr. Justice Rowlatt in the King's Bench Division, London.

Mr. Rentoul asked that a date might be fixed for the trial of this non-jury case over a bill of exchange.

He said that the defendants, who were acceptors, were all gentlemen resident and carrying on business in London.

Very serious issues of fraud were raised by the defence, and it would be necessary to bring a good many witnesses over from Ireland for the hearing.

His Lordship said the case was a long way out of the list for trial, and it had better be mentioned again when it was in the week's list.

"DRY" SHIPS RULING.

CREWS TO BE ALLOWED NORMAL SUPPLIES.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

Regarding the provisions of the prohibited law authorising the seizure of offending foreign ships and liquors aboard them, Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, is inclined to the view that these "extreme penalties should only be invoked when the officials are convinced that the liquor in question is destined to enter the United States illegally."

Officials here expect that in the enforcement of the law, the "rule of reason" will be applied. In the case of ships whose crews were accustomed to have wine served with their meals, a certain amount of wine was necessary, and would, therefore, probably be allowed to enter. Liquors in excess would be sealed up.—(Reuter.)

CO. SLIGO ROBBERIES.

AN EX-M.P.'S HOUSE ENTERED.

Armed robbers have been active in different parts of Co. Sligo.

A score of them entered the village of Bunnanadden on Thursday night, and forced their way into the shop and residence of Mr. John O'Dowd, ex-M.P. The members of the household were ordered to remain in one room, and an armed guard was placed at the door, while the other robbers ransacked the place. Three bicycles, a sum of money, and large quantities of tobacco, cigarettes and whiskey were stolen.

The robbers also entered the establishment of Mr. P. J. McDermott, where they expected to get a considerable sum of money. Mr. McDermott, however, managed to escape through a back window with the key of the safe. Foiled in their object, the robbers did considerable damage to the premises.

IRISH TRADE OUTLETS.

Mr. H. W. Ede, Irish Traffic Manager of the London and North-Western Railway and Steamship Company, at the North Wall yesterday, controverted statements contained in the speech of Mr. Marshall Stevens, M.P., at the meeting of the Trafford Park Estates, Manchester, on the previous day, and denied that "the English and Irish railways combined had, during the past generation, precluded independent steamship owners from the advantages of through rates. Mr. Ede said that independent steamship companies using the port of Machester have through rates in operation.

AGAINST MUNICIPAL TRAMS.

The Bristol City Council yesterday rejected the report of the Tramway Option Committee, recommending the purchase of a tramway undertaking from a private company.

Cardinal Bourne was yesterday received in audience by the King of Italy in Rome.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

UNIONIST LEADER'S "POOR BEST"

MAY CAUSE A PARTY SPLIT.

The Times of to-day says:—When the Prime Minister speaks at Manchester to-day it is to be hoped that he will produce something more estimable than Mr. Austen Chamberlain's speech at Birmingham. Mr. Chamberlain doubtless did his best, but it was a poor best. Such importance as his words may possess lies rather—as we have already suggested might be the case—in their probable effect upon the Conservative Party than in their intrinsic wisdom or truth.

His speech was not wise, nor was it fair; and in parts it was directly misleading. He seemed to be labouring under a feeling of scarcely suppressed irritation—an irritation explicable enough in view of his personal position and of the predicament of the Government, but which, nevertheless, deprived his utterance of the balance and solemnity he vainly sought to give it. We should be greatly surprised were it to help him or the Prime Minister, though it may perhaps help the Conservative Party to make up its mind that a leader who is so blind to realities, or so contemptuous of them, can hardly be a safe guide during the present crisis in its fortunes.

Indeed, no surprise would be felt should it appear within the next few days, or even hours, that Mr. Chamberlain's attitude had convinced some members of the Government that action, which they are understood to have contemplated as a possible necessity, ought no longer to be delayed. Mr. Chamberlain revealed himself as an uncompromising Lloyd Georgian. In view of his close association with the Prime Minister, that may be to his credit as a man; but in view of the revolt of important sections of his party against the Prime Minister, it cannot add to his usefulness, or to his authority as a Conservative leader.

If the sagacity of taking a course that may—though we trust it will not—split the Conservative Party into equal fragments is very doubtful, what is to be said of Mr. Chamberlain's deliberate attempt to conjure up the spectre of revolution, "direct action," a "capital levy," and repudiation of the national debt in order to present the Labour Party as a terrible menace which Conservative divisions would render real?

The Labour Party may be a danger. Many of its aims are unsound, and efforts seriously to give effect to them might be disastrous. If some sections of the Party have coquetted with Bolshevism, have they been entirely alone in this respect? Is the record of the Prime Minister, with whom Mr. Chamberlain has worked "in perfect harmony of political aim," and "with no difference of political principle on any of the issues that have come before us," entirely blameless?

We are constrained to admit the force of some of the arguments brought forward against the Government by Mr. J. R. Clynes at Reading last evening, and while we disagree with most of the views which he and his Party advocate, we believe there is enough sound sense left in England, and among English working men, to check dangerous labour tendencies. We hold, moreover, that the way to discourage those tendencies is not to alienate reasonable adherents of that Party by the foolish and exaggerated denunciations in which Mr. Chamberlain indulged.

FIGHT WITH WILD BOARS.

EXTRAORDINARY SCENE AT A RAILWAY STATION.

Wild boars still infest the forest lands of France, and yesterday a score of them invaded the little railway station of La Chapelaude, near Montluçon (Allier), states the Paris Correspondent of The Times.

A train was due, and the platform was crowded with passengers, who fled in terror. Recovering their courage, and arming themselves with pitchforks and any other weapon which came to hand, they returned to the station, and, opening a counter-offensive, put the savage invaders to flight.

One of the boars, however, charged the crowd and upset several men before he was pinned to the station wall by a horse trainer, and done to death by a pitchfork. His feet were presented as a trophy to the wife of the station master.

GERMAN COMPETITION.

EVIDENCES OF A DECLINE INCREASING.

A Trade Correspondent writes in The Times: Evidences of a decline in German competition are increasing, and this is reacting favourably on a number of British industries. Buyers at home and abroad, disappointed by the difficulty in securing deliveries or firm prices from German producers, are again turning for supplies to this country. Exports continue to show a steady, if slow, expansion, while those of coal are well ahead of pre-war quantities.

DOCTOR'S ALARM.

FEARS ANOTHER SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC.

Following a fatal case of smallpox in London this week, Dr. Caiger, the Chief Medical Officer for Infectious Diseases of the Metropolitan Asylums' Board, has offered a serious warning.

"The last epidemic we had in London," he said, "was during the Boer War, when, in the course of eighteen months, about 10,000 cases passed through our hands. The public has forgotten what smallpox means, and if they don't look out they may be forcefully reminded.

"Since the epidemic of 1901 smallpox has made many sporadic attempts to get a hold, but it has always been defeated owing to the vigilance of the sanitary authorities, assisted by that section of the population—I am sorry to say a diminished proportion—the vaccinated section.

"If the public want to be absolutely protected, all they need to do—and it is all they can do, for the sanitary authorities attend to the rest—is to see to the state of their vaccination, and if they have not been vaccinated since childhood, or not at all, the sooner they have it done the better.

"In the present state of neglect of vaccination," Dr. Caiger added, "with only 45 per cent. in London undergoing the operation, if we have no epidemic it is for the simple reason that the sanitary system has been so much improved, and that health authorities are so quick on all cases of smallpox."

EXPENSES OF IRAK.

PROGRESSIVE REDUCTION ANTICIPATED.

Reuter's Agency learns that King Feisul has telegraphed to the King expressing his gratitude at the conclusion of the Treaty between Great Britain and Irak. The text of this Treaty has been communicated to the Allies and to the League of Nations.

In regard to the suggestion that the agreement implies an increased expenditure, it is pointed out that the result will be quite the contrary. A financial agreement is being drawn up in accordance with Article 15 of the Treaty, which enables the British Government to dispose of certain works of public utility, constructed at the expense of the British Treasury, to the Irak Government.

Although the term of the Treaty is twenty years, this does not imply that the British Government will be spending money all that time. On the contrary, it is expected that the expenditure will fall, and eventually some of it will entirely cease.

The Treaty does not, as it is thought in some quarters, come to an end when Irak becomes a member of the League of Nations. It is the mandate that comes to an end at that period. It has already been promised to the Irak Government that His Majesty's Government will give every assistance to bring about the inclusion of Irak in the League.

CLONDALKIN INQUIRY.

NEW DEVELOPMENT.

OFFICER UNDER ARREST.

EFFORTS TO PROCURE ATTENDANCE.

The arrest of a commissioned officer of the national Army in connection with the deaths of three young men whose bodies were found near Clondalkin last Saturday morning was announced at the resumed inquest yesterday.

At the conclusion of the evidence for the State, Mr. J. O'Byrne, who appeared (instructed by Mr. M. A. Corrigan) for the Government, said:—

"Statements were made to the police authorities which would tend to incriminate an officer of the National Army. As soon as this matter was brought to the notice of the Government, they at once communicated with the Commander-in-Chief of the Army, with a view to having that officer placed under arrest, and I understand that that officer has since been placed under arrest, in order that the charge against him and the whole matter may be fully investigated."

It was stated by Mr. M. Comyn, who, with Mr. W. B. Black and Mr. Alex. Lynn (instructed by Messrs. Little and O'hUadhaigh), appeared for the next-of-kind and for "G.H.Q. I.R.A.," that the officer in question was Lieutenant Joseph Dalton, whose brother, Commandant-General Dalton, is in charge of the National Army in the Cork area.

Mr. O'Byrne, however, did not admit that this was correct, and there was no official confirmation of the statement.

Subpœnas against Lieutenant Dalton and other officers were asked for by Mr. Comyn—against Commandant-General Hogan, who was stated to have ordered the removal of the bodies from Tallaght Camp to the City Morgue; Commandant O'Connell and the Command Adjutant at Portobello.

The evidence on behalf of the next-of-kin and "G.H.Q. I.R.A." will be taken up when the inquest is resumed on Monday next.

At yesterday's proceedings Superintendent Prenderville represented the Civic Guard and Captain Ennis the Criminal Investigation Department, Oriel House.

WHERE INQUEST WAS HELD.

Dr. R. Brennan, Coroner for South County Dublin, presided at the inquest, which was held in the Reading Room of the Carnegie Library, Clondalkin.

There were about a hundred people in the small, low-ceilinged room, whose white-washed walls were decorated with framed and unframed maps. Soldiers of the National Army and members of the Civic Guard, in uniform, were dotted here and there among the spectators, and there were about half a dozen young women present.

Two very broad tables placed together at the head of the room, in front of the red and green tiled fireplace, accommodated the Coroner—who occupied a high oak chair, with his back to the empty grate—the barristers, solicitors and Press. The tables were partly covered with two pieces of red and black drugget, and when dusk fell a couple of oil lamps were placed on the table, the electric light being switched on later.

The doorway was blocked by a crowd of standing spectators, and the much-needed ventilation was secured by flinging wide some of the small-paned, narrow windows. While the daylight lasted one glimpsed through the open spaces, the boughs of trees waving gently in the sunlit breeze.

The three young men into whose deaths the inquiry was being conducted were:—

Edwin Hughes (17), 107 Clonliffe road, Drumcondra;

Brendan Holohan (17), 49 St. Patrick's road, Drumcondra, and Joseph Rogers (16), 2 St. Brigid's road, Drumcondra.

The first witness was Dr. Frederick Ryan, who had been examined at the previous sitting. He produced bullets extracted from the bodies.

In cross-examination, he gave it as his opinion that, judging from the direction of the bullets, the shots were fired whilst the victims lay on the ground.

SERVING SUMMONSES.

A DIFFICULTY.

Superintendent Prenderville, of the Civic Guard, stated that he had served summonses on Miss Julia Gauran, Charles Murphy, Laurence McGuire, Daniel O'Mahony, Ignatius Duggan, James P. Loughlin, William Roache, Patrick Monahan.

Mr. O'Byrne—Did you receive a summons for Lieut.-Commandant Charles Dalton?

Witness—Yes, but that has not been served. I called at Portobello Barracks, but I did not get beyond the gate.

Mr. Comyn—It may be necessary for me to apply for an adjournment in order to secure the attendance of this witness.

Answering further questions, Superintendent Prendergast said that he had not received a summons for Lieut.-Commandant P. O'Connell.

Did you receive a subpœna for Lieutenant Lowe and Lieutenant Kelly? No.

The Coroner—I arranged that that should be served through the Dublin Metropolitan Police.

Mr. O'Byrne—That was served on the Adjutant-General, and both men are here.

Mr. Comyn, at this stage, asked for summonses for a man named Rogers, whose Christian name he did not know, but who lived at 152 Clonliffe road; for Lieut.-Commandant O'Connell, and for two men named Kennedy.

The Coroner intimated that on the necessary particulars being furnished he would issue the summonses.

The discovery of the bodies of Hughes and Holohan on the roadside near the village of Red Cow at about 7 o'clock on Saturday morning, was described by Patrick O'Brien, 8 Bluebell, Inchicore. It was between dark and daylight at the time, and he did not know whether they were dead or asleep or "had drink in them." He saw no blood.

Michael Freeman, Clondalkin, who left his home about 8.30 on the Saturday morning in question to go to work at Inchicore, told how he passed the two bodies, thinking they were men sleeping by the roadside.

A GOVERNMENT CAR.

Joseph Tyrell, Clondalkin, who was cycling to work in the city the same morning, was more inquisitive than either of the other witnesses, and stated that on closer examination he saw that the two men were dead. Upon making this discovery, he at once rode into the city and reported the matter. On the way he passed, near Lamb's factory, a Government car, containing men. A man was standing by the car, with a revolver in his hand, and as soon as Tyrell approached he got into the car. Witness reported the discovery of the bodies to the men in the car, and they said that it was all right, or something to that effect.

In cross-examination by Mr. Lynn, the witness said that he did not meet a Government car at that hour any morning previously except during the attack on the Four Courts.

In further cross-examination, Tyrell said that he did not know whether the vehicle could be called a lorry or a car, but there was seating accommodation for about thirteen or fifteen. There would be at least eleven men in the lorry that morning. There was none of them that he could see in uniform. He thought that they were tradesmen going to Baldonnel. He spoke to the man in the centre of the driver's seat, and he was answered by a man at the back. The man who answered him seemed very excited, and the man to whom he first spoke did not seem to understand what he said.

James Langan, who also saw the bodies, stated that he saw no signs of a struggle. He lived in the district and heard a large number of shots between 12.30 and 3 o'clock that Saturday morning.

TWO BODIES FOUND LYING ON THE EMBANKMENT.

Fionan O'Driscoll, Inspector, C.I.D., Oriel House, stated that on last Saturday morning he was with a party of men in and about the city. He had a motor tender, and left Oriel House about 6 or 6.15 with five men, Inspector Baxter and the driver and two prisoners. In the vicinity of Inchicore, between 7 and a quarter-past 7, they met Mr. Tyrell, while the car was stopped owing to engine trouble, and Tyrell made a statement to him, as a result of which they went out along the Clondalkin road. They came to where there were two bodies lying on the side of the road, with Mr. Langan standing beside them. The bodies were lying on the left-hand side of the road as one went towards Clondalkin. They were lying side by side on the embankment—one man on his back and the other, the smaller man, on his left side. Both appeared to be dead. Witness went through the pockets of the tall man to see if he could get anything to identify him, but failed to do so.

Mr. O'Byrne—Did you find other things?

Witness—Yes.

Mr. O'Byrne—What were they?

Mr. Lynn—I cannot admit that. These bodies were removed without authority from the area under the jurisdiction of the ——

The Coroner—These bullets and papers are supposed to have been found on the deceased.

Witness—They were found in the pockets of the taller man.

Mr. Lynn—I object to the question.

Mr. O'Byrne—He objects before he hears what the question is.

Mr. Lynn—The question has been asked concerning these bullets. The bodies were removed illegally from the area of this Coroner.

The Coroner said that that was so.

Mr. Lynn said that something was being produced which was supposed to have been found on the bodies seven hours after the boys were shot. That might do all right in an investigation in another court on another charge, but here they were investigating the cause of death. The bodies were found on Saturday morning, and were shot on the previous night. He wanted to know was it competent for counsel to introduce such things or articles at all.

SEARCHED ON THE SPOT.

Mr. O'Byrne (to witness)—Did you, yourself, search the body there and then lying on the road?

Witness—Yes.

Did you, there and then, get some things in his pockets? Yes.

Do you produce here and now the objects which you found in the pocket of the man? Yes.

Please produce them.

Witness handed in a sheet of typewritten foolscap, headed in large letters drawn in black ink:—

"To all whom it may concern."

The body of the document, which was read, was as follows:—

"Any persons employed in the Free State forces, either in mufti or in uniform, found in the vicinity of Drumcondra on or about Sunday, October 8, shall be shot at sight.

"This warning applies to the murder gang, otherwise known as the military intelligence department and so-called C.I.D. men, or to any persons who have been giving information.

"Also to any persons found giving information or helping same.

(Signed)

"Irish Republican Defence Association.

"(Drumcondra Branch.)

"Warning.—Any person found disfiguring or destroying this notice shall be drastically dealt with."

The witness also handed in two spent cartridges which, in reply to Mr. Byrne, he said he found on the road, about a yard from the body. He found a pencil (produced) in the tall man's vest pocket.

William Donegan deposed that on the Saturday morning in question he was out with the tender. Inspector O'Driscoll's story of what occurred was accurate, save that he did not mention that witness assisted in searching the body of the tall man. Witness found two rounds of ammunition (produced), which he handed to Mr. O'Driscoll. He also found a silk handkerchief, a toilet comb, and a pair of kid gloves.

To Mr. Comyn, witness said that the name of the man whom he searched was Edward Hughes. He did not find any photograph, pocket book, or addresses in the pockets. He searched the right-hand side of the body, whilst Mr. O'Driscoll searched the left-hand side, and he did not believe that Inspector O'Driscoll could have found a pocket book without his knowledge. The two cartridges which witness found were what was known as .38 parabellum, and so were the two empty cartridge cases found near the body. These cartridges were used in parabellum revolvers. Witness had seen such weapons with the Volunteers, but they were not officially used by the Army, nor had witness seen any such weapons in Oriel House. He thought that the instructions where to go were given by Inspector O'Driscoll to the driver before they left Oriel House, but he did not hear the instructions given.

Mr. Comyn—In the case of men killed where you found them, would not you expect blood about the place?

Witness—There was a possibility that the blood was in the grass under the bodies.

Mr. O'Byrne—You did not move the bodies?

Witness—No.

WHAT THE SERGEANT SAW.

Sergeant Thomas J. O'Keeffe, Civic Guard, who was in uniform, said that he was stationed in Lucan. On Saturday morning a telephone message was received at his station from Kilmainham Dublin Metropolitan Police Station, about 8 o'clock, in consequence of which witness and 2 Guards—Meehan and Kennedy—proceeded on bicycles to Red Cow. He arrived where the bodies were lying, about 8.45. Three soldiers of the National Army, who said that they came from Tallaght Aerodrome, had arrived before him. Witness did not search the bodies, but remained with them until Dr. Lee arrived with the ambulance, when the two bodies were taken away in that vehicle. Subsequently Guard Meehan and the witness examined the grass where the bodies had been lying, and the ground in the vicinity, but found no traces of blood.

Mr. Comyn—Found nothing?

Witness—Found nothing.

In consequence of what a Miss Mary Nolan, who lived close by, shouted across the road to witness, he went into the quarry, and there found a man who appeared to be dead. The man had a bullet wound behind the left ear, and from what he saw of the clothing he assumed that bullets had entered through the clothing. Witness sent Guard Kennedy after the ambulance to report the discovery of the third body, and an ambulance from Dublin arrived shortly afterwards and took away the remains of the third man in the direction of Dublin. Witness examined the ground where the third man was found lying on his back on the slope, and found blood on the clay and on some metals. He saw Father Clune pick up a spent cartridge case.

In reply to Mr. Black, witness said that he now knew that the tall man was Edward Hughes, and the small man was Houlihan. The man in the quarry was Rogers. He found a considerable quantity of blood near Rogers's body, but no blood where the other bodies were.

Mr. Black—Did it not strike you as an extraordinary thing that there was no trace of blood where the two bodies were, although there was a lot of blood where Rogers was?

Witness—Well, no, it did not.

AN ABSENT OFFICER.

SAID TO BE UNDER ARREST.

At the adjournment,

Mr. Comyn said that Captain Dalton could not be served with a subpœna, and was stated to be under arrest. They might have to get a habeas corpus for him, but they must have him in any case.

The Coroner asked the officer of the Court if it would suffice to give him a summons.

The officer of the Court said that that would do. He said that he had already a summons for Mr. Dalton, but could not see him that morning.

At 2 o'clock the proceedings were adjourned with the intention of resuming at 3 p.m., but it was 3.35 before the inquest was re-opened.

FATHER CLUNE'S EVIDENCE.

The Reverend Stephen Clune, Chaplain of the Monastery, Clondalkin, stated that on last Saturday morning he was sent for to go up to Red Cow, where he found a man, who looked as if he was dead, lying in the quarry. A Civic Guard asked him to put his hand inside the man's coat and feel the warmth. When witness felt the warmth over the heart he administered the last rites of the Church. They were supposed to administer the last rites if there was a chance of the person's being alive.

Patrick Meehan and James Kennedy, members of the Civic Guard, stationed at Lucan, gave evidence bearing out that already given by Sergeant O'Keeffe.

It was stated at this stage that Lieutenant Martin, who was one of the witnesses, was in hospital in Portobello, and unable to attend.

Corporal Patrick Whelan, national Army, at present stationed at the Pumping Station, Clondalkin, said that on Saturday morning Lieutenant Martin came to him and gave him certain directions, in consequence of which witness, accompanied by Private Keogh and Private Reilly, went down to Red Cow, arriving there about 8.50. They found two bodies lying on the side of the road, with a good crowd of women and children standing around. Witness did not examine the bodies, but remained on guard with his two men until Dr. Lee came along with the ambulance. Dr. Lee was one of the officers attached to the Tallaght Aerodrome. Witness knew nothing about the finding of the third body. He searched the place, but could find no marks of any tussle, or any trail of blood.

In reply to Mr. Lynn, the witness said that it took him about seven minutes to get across the fields from his station to where the bodies were lying.

NIGHT SHOOTING.

MISS NOLAN'S EXPERIENCE.

Privates Arthur Reilly and Joseph Keogh gave corroborative evidence.

Miss Jeanie Nolan, Red Cow, Clondalkin, related that on the previous Friday night, between twelve and one o'clock, she was awakened by shooting. She knew the time, because she heard the clock strike twelve some time before it. She thought that the shots were at the back of the house. That would be in the direction in which the bodies were found. There were a number of shots—a dozen or more—continuing for, it might have been, a quarter of an hour. She heard cars passing that night—she thought it was about half an hour after the firing. On the following morning she heard about the two bodies being found on the roadside. Her niece, Molly Erritty, aged about ten, who lived with her, came running in from the field at the back of the house, close to the quarry, and told her about something she had seen in the quarry. Witness then went out and shouted across to Sergeant O'Keeffe.

The Coroner, having read over the witness's deposition, asked—Were there twenty shots fired that night.

Witness—I could not say.

In further reply to the Coroner, witness said that she could not say in what direction the cars were going that she heard that night.

Vincent Lee, First Lieutenant in the national Army, stationed at Tallaght Camp, stated that, on hearing about the discovery of the bodies, he and Surgeon-Probationer Brown went to where the bodies lay by the roadside, arriving there about 9.30. Witness felt the bodies to see whether they were hot or cold, and found both of them cold and stiff. He only felt their hands. He thought that they were both dead. He had both of them placed on stretchers, put in a Crossley tender, and taken back to Tallaght camp, where he had the bodies placed in the mortuary, and personally searched the clothes of both bodies.

WHAT WAS FOUND.

"Did you find anything?" asked Mr. O'Byrne.

"Yes, I did."

"Well, what did you find?"

The witness produced a small brown leather bag, unlocked it, and took from it three small cloth bundles.

He detailed the articles found on the tall man. They comprised:—

A cigarette case, a wristlet watch, stopped at 7 minutes past six, a pair of fur-lined suede gloves, a pocket tool-case of metal, with the contents, a set of brown horn rosary beads, a small pencil, a cigarette holder in case, a pocket comb in case, a tie pin, five keys on a piece of string, £1 2s. 4½d. in money, a collar clip for soft collar, and a grey silk handkerchief.

A knife (produced) was subsequently handed to witness by one of the first aid men in Tallaght Camp as having been taken by him from Hughes and put on one side.

In Houlihan's clothes were found:—Rosary beads and medal, a small packet of cigarette papers, a paper-covered story, a small blue pencil, portion of a guard, 10d. and a white handkerchief.

While searching the clothes of Hughes, who had been found lying on his back, witness found that his back was slightly warm. That was the only place he found any heat.

Mr. O'Byrne asked how long a body remained warm after death.

Witness—The human body after death is wholly cold in from twenty to twenty-four hours, but that varies according to the conditions.

Mr. O'Byrne—Was the fact that there was heat in this body consistent with the man's having been dead for 7, or 8, or 9 hours?

Witness—Yes.

THE THIRD BODY.

HAND SLIGHTLY WARM.

The medical witness then described the manner in which he was apprised of the third body. It was from 50 to 60 yards from where the other two bodies were found. The left hand was slightly warm. He had the body conveyed to Tallaght Camp, and when he got back he found the men searching the body as it lay in the mortuary. The following articles were handed to witness as having been found on the body of the dead youth, Rogers:—

One packet of Player's cigarettes, containing one cigarette, and with a small hole through the cardboard case; an Irish matchbox, containing five matches; a small paste-brush, an indelible pencil, 4s. 7½d. in cash, a pencil-case, three handkerchiefs.

The doctor added that he saw several wounds in the bodies. Some time afterwards one of the officers in the camp told witness that he had received instructions from General Hogan, Wellington Barracks, to have the bodies removed to the City Morgue, and that he had rung up for an ambulance to come to Tallaght Camp for them. When the ambulance took away the bodies witness went in it to the City Morgue. On Sunday evening he was handed a telephone message telling him that the bodies were being brought back, and they arrived at the camp between four and five o'clock.

In reply to Mr. Comyn, the witness stated that the officer who instructed him to have the bodies removed to the City Morgue was Captain Weddick, Tallaght Camp.

Mr. Comyn—And a subpœna would find him there?

Witness—I presume so.

The witness was cross-examined as to the position of the bodies on the roadside. He said that he had not looked at the inscription on the medal attached to Hughes's body.

Mr. Comyn—Well, as far as I can make it out in this light, the inscription on this medal is: "I will spend my Heaven doing good upon earth."

WHERE WERE THEY SHOT?

After further questions, Mr. Comyn asked—Do you think that these men were killed on the spot where they lay or not?

Witness—I do not think they were.

You think that, having received their wounds, they must have been laid there? Yes.

Mr. Comyn—I put it to you that the man Rogers was wounded to death before he reached the quarry, having regard to the fact that there was no blood anywhere about the quarry except one smudge about six feet up—that is, that he was wounded somewhere else and brought to the quarry?

The Witness—It is quite possible.

Mr. Comyn—From what you saw in the case of Rogers, are you of opinion that Rogers had been wounded unto death somewhere else than where he was found then, in the quarry?

Witness—I cannot give an opinion. I gave two hypotheses—that he was wounded somewhere else and placed there, or else he was wounded there and died there.

Surgeon Probationer Valentine Brown, attached to Tallaght Camp, gave similar evidence to that of Dr. Lee.

Lieutenant James Kelly, national Army, Tallaght Camp, who was in charge of the tender that went to remove the two bodies, said that he made no examination of the place or the bodies.

WHY THE BODIES WERE REMOVED.

MILITARY EXPLANATION.

Captain Michael Weddick, national Army, Tallaght Camp, stated that he was an Adjutant in the 1st Regular Battalion, 2nd Dublin Brigade. When the bodies were brought into the camp he rang up General Command, Commandant-General Hogan, for instructions regarding the bodies, and was given instructions by the Commandant-General, and acting upon those, caused the bodies to be removed from the camp to the City Morgue.

Mr. Comyn—Of course you know that if a man is murdered or lying dead there is to be an inquest?

Witness—Yes.

And where did you think that the inquest was going to be held? I had not the slightest idea.

Was not the camp at Tallaght a good place to hold it? I believe it is the custom to hold the inquest in the nearest place, and Tallaght Camp is not the nearest place.

Was it a fact that you did not want to have the Tallaght Camp mixed up with it at all? No; it was not that. My reason for getting these bodies removed to the City Morgue was, first, that I wanted these men identified. That was the principal thing. We did not know anything about them; they were picked up on the road by our troops. I wanted them removed somewhere where the people would not be coming out six or seven miles to view the bodies.

You really did want to have them sent into the city? No; I wanted them sent into the city for purposes of identification.

Then, was it you that formed the judgment that the bodies were to be removed? Not the slightest. I asked for instructions, and I had to carry them out.

They were to go into the Morgue for identification. How did you know that they were Dublin boys?

The witness said that they had a number of Clondalkin and other local boys in the camp, and as none of them knew the dead men he came to the conclusion that they came from the city.

Did many of the local boys in the camp view the bodies?—Half a dozen or thereabouts.

You had Clondalkin boys in the camp. Did you ask them to go and view the bodies before you sent them into Dublin for identification?—No, I did not.

How did General Hogan become aware that they were Dublin boys?—I do not know what he knew.

WATCH AS A CLUE.

Further pressed, witness said—I can remember now that I mentioned to General Hogan that on one of the bodies was a watch with a monogram and the word "Drumcondra" on it.

Mr. Comyn—Who showed you the watch with the monogram?

Witness—I happened to be there when it was taken from the body.

Sergeant Michael Smartt, Medical Corps, national Army, Tallaght Camp, was next examined.

In reply to Mr. Black he said that he wrote the description of the bodies for the Press, for purposes of identification. He had described Hughes as 28 years of age.

Mr. Black—How did you come to make this mistake in the age of a boy of seventeen?

Witness—Pure and simple guess work. I guessed it. I chanced it.

Could you tell whether that paper is parchment?—I am not a judge of paper, but in my opinion it is not parchment.

Mr. Comyn examined the paper and said that the watermark, "Swift Brook," was on it.

Mr. O'Mahony, of Tallaght, said that he went to the quarry on Saturday morning at about a quarter past eleven.

In the quarry, at the side, it seemed as if a man had tried to struggle upwards. There were marks of a man's heel in the clay, which was soft, and about five feet up the side of the quarry there was some blood on the rock. Amongst some nettles at the bottom there was a pool of blood about five inches in circumference.

In reply to Mr. Comyn, the witness admitted that the footmarks he saw might have been made by any of the people who were on the scene before he arrived.

WHY AN OFFICER WAS ARRESTED.

MR. O'BYRNE'S STATEMENT.

Mr. O'Byrne said that the only thing he wanted to say before he sat down was that a statement had been made to the police authorities which would tend to incriminate an officer in the national Army. As soon as this matter was brought to the notice of the Government they at once communicated with the Commander-in-Chief of the Army, with a view to having that officer placed under arrest, and he (Mr. O'Byrne) understood that the officer in question had since been placed under arrest, in order that the charge against him and the whole matter might be fully investigated.

Mr. Comyn said that he was rather surprised at the statement which had been made by his learned friend, and at the course which had been taken by the Government in reference to this particular officer. He asked for a subpœna for that particular officer to whom Mr. O'Byrne referred.

Mr. O'Byrne—I have not named any officer.

Mr. Comyn—No, you have not; but I think my friend, and I think the jury, will remember that when the name of a certain officer was mentioned this morning, and when I stated that I wanted to have a subpœna served on that particular officer, whose name was mentioned, I think Mr. O'Byrne stated that he was under arrest.

Mr. O'Byrne—Mr. O'Byrne did not state anything of the kind.

The Coroner—The message I got was that he was under arrest.

Mr. Comyn—Then it was the Coroner who stated it.

The Coroner—One officer.

QUESTION OF HABEAS CORPUS.

Mr. Comyn said that his friend had said that statements had been made to the authorities which tended to incriminate a certain officer, and that the officer in question had been arrested for the purpose of having the charges against him investigated. If a man was guilty of a crime—the crime of murder, or larceny, or any other crime—the proper tribunal to investigate the charge of murder, in the first instance, was the Coroner's jury, and in the case of larceny the Petty Sessions Court. Now, he wanted that officer there. He had got a subpœna from the Coroner to be served upon that officer. If the officer was under arrest he would not be able to serve him with that subpœna, but he could get a habeas corpus, ad testificandum against the officer. He wondered was it intended that he should be put to that trouble, because if so he would have to apply for a long adjournment of that inquisition.

It would be open to the officer when he came there to refuse to answer questions, on the ground that they might incriminate him. He required that officer, and he would not proceed further with that inquisition until he knew whether he was to be compelled to go for a habeas corpus to produce him. And that was not the only officer whom he wished to produce there. He had asked for subpœnas for another officer, and probably he would have to ask for subpœnas for three or four officers, and also for a lady. He was sure that his friend, Mr. O'Byrne, would facilitate him. He would ask for the production of the lady, Miss Sandross, of 147 Clonliffe road, Commandant O'Connell, Lieutenant Dalton, General Hogan, and the Command Adjutant.

Mr. O'Byrne said Mr. Comyn seemed to him to misconceive the position, and he did not, nor did the Government, for which he appeared, desire to burke inquiry of any kind. Mr. Comyn and he had come to an agreement that morning as to the course that inquiry would take. They agreed that he (Mr. O'Byrne) should open and produce all the formal evidence which had been produced. He had exhausted that evidence. Having finished that, the arrangement was that Mr. Comyn was then to go into his case, and prove his case in the ordinary way, and that at the end of Mr. Comyn's case he (Mr. O'Byrne) should be at liberty, if it became necessary, to go into further evidence. Mr. Comyn now told them that he had applied for, and had not obtained, subpœnas. Mr. Comyn must not assume beforehand that those witnesses, or any of them, would fail to answer to their subpœnas. But if, when the time arrived, any witnesses failed to answer, then there were other means, which Mr. Comyn knew quite well, for compelling their attendance.

ONLY ONE ANSWER.

Mr. Comyn—There is only one answer to that. I have already been told that Commandant Dalton is under arrest. That is the man I want among the first witnesses I want to produce, and I cannot get him without a habeas corpus, unless the Government will produce him.

Mr. O'Byrne—I have certainly not stated that Commandant Dalton is under arrest.

Mr. Comyn—Well, I was told that he was.

The Coroner said that the only thing he had was a message.

An officer of the Court stated that the subpœna had not yet been served upon Commandant Dalton. He had very little time that morning, as he had to serve nine summonses in the city, and be out there at eleven o'clock. It was not very easy to get into Portobello Barracks, and not very easy to find every officer there. He received a telephone message from the Adjutant-General, who told him that if the summons was served it would be all right, and that one officer was under arrest.

Mr. Comyn then applied for the subpœnas.

The Coroner said that he would hand them to the officer in Court.

The proceedings were afterwards adjourned until 11 o'clock on Monday, having lasted from 11 a.m. to 6.40 p.m., with a mid-day interval of an hour and a half.

BELFAST UNEMPLOYED.

BREAKING UP BATTLESHIPS PROPOSED.

With a view to the relief of unemployment, the Belfast branch of the Engineering and Shipbuilding Trades Federation suggested recently that the directors of the two local shipyards should purchase condemned warships and have them broken up by local labour.

The directors have rejected this proposal, which, they say, would involve them in financial loss. The highest price that they could get for scrap metal is £2 10s. a ton, and it would cost £5 a ton to break up a ship. In England and Scotland the breaking up of battleships had led to so many disputes that the work had been abandoned, and it is probable that all the ships on the Admiralty's list will be sent to Germany for breaking up.

At a meeting of the men, it was explained that a representative of Messrs. Workman, Clark and Co. had interviewed Sir James Craig and Mr. H. M. Pollock, and suggested to them that in order to absorb the unemployed his firm was prepared to lay down the keel of a 10,000 ton vessel, and build the ship at the cost of labour and material, with no profit, if the Northern Government would give the firm a guarantee against loss. A reply had been received from the Government to the effect that it could not see its way to agree to the suggestion.

RAILWAY WAGE REDUCTIONS.

THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILLION MEN AFFECTED.

Nearly three-quarters of a million of railway employés, of all grades, throughout Great Britain are faced with the prospect of a reduction of 10s. a week in their rates of pay.

The position was discussed for several hours yesterday by the Executive of the National Union of Railwaymen, who were summoned to receive the report of their Negotiating Committee on the railway companies' proposed modifications of the national agreement. The Council adjourned without reaching any final conclusions.

Mr. Cramp stated subsequently that the companies' proposals did not affect the standard week's wages; but, if put into effect, it would average, in his opinion, a reduction of about 10s. a week in gross earnings.

It is probable that the negotiations may extend over several weeks.

COAL TIPPERS' WAGES.

A joint conference was held in London yesterday to discuss an application by the employers for a reduction in coal-tippers' wages throughout England and Wales of 20 per cent. immediately and a further 20 per cent. on January 1. After a four and a half hours' sitting it was announced that a new basis had been arrived at, having relation to the cost of living, and that this will be recommended to the men for acceptance.

EVILS OF CLASS WARFARE.

CRITICISM OF IRISH LABOUR.

SOCIAL CREDIT AS A REMEDY.

In a paper on "Community Rule versus Class Dictatorship" at the Catholic Truth Society's Conference in Dublin yesterday, Mr. James Hughes flung out a challenge to the Irish Labour Party. He emphasised the evils of class warfare. Another speaker described the Irish Labour Party as a party without ideals and lacking a constructive programme.

The Bishop of Clogher (Most Rev. Dr. McKenna) presided.

Mr. Hughes began by saying that they owed it to their self-respect as Christians, but still more to the great institution of the Church, to face resolutely those evils which were playing such havoc with their people, and to endeavour to produce a solution worthy of their pre-eminence in dogma and philosophy. He pleaded for concerted action as against a policy of drift; for radical treatment as compared with the doctoring of sores; for informed, intellectual effort, in contrast to reliance on the simple Christian conscience.

He denied absolutely that the social question was a matter for the working class alone. It concerned everyone outside trade union ranks as well as inside. Dealing with the position in Ireland, he said that class rule was a grave evil, whether it be the veiled dictatorship of a propertied minority or the avowed rule of a proletarian majority. The social gospel of the German Jew, Karl Marx, was here installed in Labour's place of honour, and was in possession of the Labour field.

THE COMMUNIST PARTY.

At present a small group called the Communist Party of Ireland were its official exponents. Officially the Labour movement had no connection with Communism, and, in fact, the test question of affiliation with Moscow had never even been raised. The tactics adopted were negative and obstructive. There was a persistent refusal to accept responsibility for anything constructive or helpful, and a constant readiness to attack the proposals of others. The Labour chiefs were teaching their followers to think of themselves as a nation within a nation, a people apart, whose interests were diametrically opposed to the interests of everybody else. To mention this view point was to expose its unsoundness; but the suggestion that it was founded on a bias, conscious or unconscious, in favour of Marxism, gave at least a foundation of reason for what otherwise looked like folly.

If it were true that the ultimate object of the Labour movement was the welfare and happiness of its members, then Labour in Ireland must get ready to re-export Karl Marx to Palestine or Russia, and take its place in the Irish community on terms. While the Labour Party was fiddling with fallacies, and turning its back on its responsibilities, its members were dying of hunger in a fertile land. There was no future for the working man as such, except as a factor in an economic democracy. There was no hope for Labours' success until it dropped the pursuit of the will-o'-the-wisp called power, and settled down to its own job, the concrete problems of scientific reconstruction.

COMMUNITY RULE.

THE SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

By the term community rule, he meant such an organisation of society, political and industrial, as would render it impossible for any one element or type of individual to over-ride the human rights of any other section of citizens, and which would make it easy for any minority to assert its rightful claims in an effective manner. In such an order of society all classes would share the power and responsibility of government, and have guaranteed to them in return free access to the necessaries of life—food, clothing and shelter.

How could Catholics afford to be backers of the Darwinian principle—the survival of the fittest—as applied to human affairs? Yet was not society run on that plan? Did not the strong crush out the weak, and were not thousands of Irish Catholics now without food, clothing, or shelter? That was the result of our commercial system, but that system was not from God—it was from man and from non-Catholic man at that. The organised community must dictate industrial policy while leaving the onus of carrying out such policy on the operatives engaged in the industries concerned.

At present the building policy, for instance, was decided by the master builders, and, despite an enormous demand, no houses were being built. Was it unjust, then, to suggest that the community should step in and assume the responsibility of getting houses built, even if they had to take the means necessary to that end—namely, the regulating of building finance? Justice and morality were surely more sacred than high finance or builders' profits. It was the present system that was wrong, not the people who ran it.

He suggested, therefore, that the Government should be requested to appoint a commission, on which the Government, Labour, and the Church would be represented, whose function would be to carry out a social survey, to get and collate information on the following subjects:—Occupations of the people; incomes; property held; living conditions; physical and educational fitness; charitable institutions and benefit societies; total value of their transactions; social and industrial organisations; natural resources and possibilities of immediate development. With these facts thus determined, the country could be taught to see Ireland as she really is from year to year—the Ireland of fact; and this knowledge would give the maximum chance of success to remedial legislation.

The present industrial and commercial system was equally indefensible from the social and the Christian point of view. It was "up to" organised Labour to table a national substitute, and in the effort to evolve this and get it adopted Labour was entitled to, and would receive, immense help from all other elements in society that were conscious of the defects of the present system.

AN ECONOMIC PROBLEM.

Rev. Dr. Coffey (Maynooth) said that he considered the paper of Mr. Hughes a thoughtful and valuable contribution towards a right solution of the social and economic question. He welcomed that part of the Free State Constitution which promises to replace the old party system of Government by a more rational and business-like system. It was on economic conditions and economic forces that our future political and social well-being was going to depend. The Irish people could go terribly astray unless two things could be clearly proved to them—first, that the actual class-war between employed and employers was not only un-Christian, but downright foolish and idiotic; and, secondly, that there was another and alternative line of action, the line of quite friendly and intelligent co-operation, which was not only Christian, but had the additional advantage of being quite feasible, and within the domain of practical politics. If these two things could be made plain to the masses of the Irish people, or, at least, to the leaders of the conflicting classes, then in the best interests of Ireland they ought to be made plain to them.

The class war between employed and employer was uneconomic and foolish, because it was based upon an utterly erroneous assumption—namely, that industry could not produce enough to go round, and that one class could not be well off except at the expense of some other class. That was a disastrous mistake. It was not production, but distribution, that had broken down, and neither employers nor employed were responsible.

The leaders of the wage-workers were right in saying that their actual wage failed to purchase a reasonable share of the product of industry; but they were wrong in saying that the employers could afford to give a higher wage without raising the prices of the products. The employers, on their side, were right in saying that they must raise the price if they raise wages, for wages go into cost, and they must recover their costs to avoid bankruptcy; but they were wrong in saying that the wage ought not to rise when prices rise, for the wage-worker must live.

The employers and the employed alike were the victims of a banking and financial system which, of its very nature, tended to paralyse industry, to throw the workers out of employment, and to make it impossible for the employers—that is, the owners and administrators of plant, machinery, and processes—to keep the industrial machine going. It was the financing system that was wrong, and so wrong that those who had control of it could not possibly secure an equitable distribution of the product of industry by means of it. He suggested that the alternative to that system was the system proposed by the advocates of the Social Credit movement.

LABOUR-CONSERVATIVE PROTEST.

Mr. William Davin said that he was regarded by a section of the Irish Labour movement as a representative of the Conservative element within that movement. His object was to defend that section against the charges and misrepresentations made by Mr. Hughes. He looked upon the advocates of the extreme doctrines that were being advertised as remedies for present evils as disappointed cranks, who would run away from work if it were offered to them. (Laughter.)

There were in Ireland 300,000 persons out of work, and, in his opinion, it required no commission to discover that fact. It was deeply to be deplored that members of the Labour Party had associated themselves with the irregulars and destroyed businesses from which they had derived their livelihood. That action was mainly due to the demoralisation which had infected almost every section in this country. Mr. Hughes was wrong in saying that the Irish Labour Party had no policy and no programme. It was the only party in the recent elections that put a definite programme before the electors, and it was the only party that had since acted up to the pledges given by it to the electors.

LACK OF IDEALS.

Mr. Frank Sweeny warmly commended the address of Mr. Hughes. He said that it would entitle him to a hearing in any assembly of his fellow-countrymen; and half of the significance of the occasion lay in the fact that, speaking from his experience, he declared that the labourer in this country was without constructive ideals, relying solely and absolutely on a pure negation—a gospel of hate. If the policy of the Labour Party in this country consisted solely of class war, the gospel of Karl Marx, or the dictatorship of the proletariat and war on the employer—if that was the policy that guided the operations of the Labour leaders, then he considered that Mr. Hughes had thrown down the gauntlet, that he had challenged Labour—a challenge which the Labour leaders could not, and ought not, be allowed to evade.

MYSTICISM.

At the afternoon session, the Rev. Peter Finlay, S.J., presiding, Professor John F. W. Howley, M.A., read a paper on "Mysticism in Every Day Life."

A discussion followed, and Mr. James Britten and Mr. Stephen Harding, of the English Catholic Truth Society, briefly addressed the meeting.

MORAL ANARCHY

NEED FOR REVERENCE AND OBEDIENCE.

"Unless we get back to our reverence for life we may put up the shutters and attach crêpe to the shut doors of civilisation."

So said the Rev. Father Gannon, S.J., in the course of an address on "Moral Anarchy: a World Phenomenon," delivered at a meeting of the Catholic Truth Society in the Dublin Mansion House last night. The pre-war phenomena of moral anarchy around them, he continued, was only a product of the larger world anarchy. Men were everywhere restless and eager for change. The reason was that the soul of man was deprived of its natural food—religious truth. Hence, life and its meaning were misunderstood. There was a scramble for the husks of swine, and consequent war of each on all.

He then examined the world's attitude towards truth, emphasising the vogue of the lie, the cult of the propaganda, and the bewilderment of men's minds. What place had God in the modern world? Yet, without Him, what basis was there for law or any ethics? Then there was the revolt of youth against all authority and restraint. Sanctity of life had gone, and was replaced by a brute insensibility to human pain.

There had been a loosening of all old ideas about justice. The result was not Communism, but common robbery and the jumping of claims. A new philosophy had arisen on the question of sexual purity—the denial, simply, of the obligation of the Sixth and Tenth Commandants, codified in Divorce Courts, etc. Science was enlisted, and art, literature, and fashion made hand-maidens of licence.

What about the great Commandment of the New Law—love of God and neighbour? Charity in private intercourse was impossible when men were all drunk with political poison.

There was little hope for European civilisation, except supernaturally. Faith could sustain them no matter what happened.

THE CASE OF IRELAND.

Why was Ireland, following the high hopes of a year ago, now in the Slough of Despond? It was hard to explain, in spite of all that had been said and written on the matter.

Salvage operations alone remained. They were not concerned with political salvage there, but moral salvage was their concern. They demanded the restoration to their country's life of the Decalogue, with all it involved, and the precept of mutual charity, whatever political system might emerge. They must get back to the moral law as interpreted for them by their authorised moral guide. They needed peace and unity so that they could go about their business with security.

Mr. Michael Hayes, M.A., in proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, said that they in Ireland had no double dose of original sin. When they thought of the conditions under which so many thousands of families lived in Dublin it could not be said that the moral character of the people had disappeared.

They in Ireland had faults in their character arising from their peculiar history. The whole national impulse for centuries had been in one direction—destruction of the foreigner and foreign influence. They must, therefore, not be too critical or despairing if the change from a particular state of affairs was accompanied by strange and terrible happenings. They might deplore them, but there was no cause for despair.

He thought that a development in Ireland of an Irish spirit would make the country a separate, spiritual, and cultural entity in the world, no matter what political label was attached to it.

DUE TO IGNORANCE.

Very Rev. W. Moran, D.D., seconded. He said that much of the present trouble was due to ignorance and misunderstanding. There was a defect somewhere in the moral training of the young in Ireland, which should be taken into consideration with a view to remedying it, now that the educational system was in the melting pot. Obedience was the most urgently required of all the virtues in Ireland, and if they had moral obedience it would help to smooth out many of their difficulties. The erring portion of their countrymen should have time to go back and make a fresh start. In order to restore the Ten Commandments they must procure the obedience of all the people to their legitimate authority both in Church and State. Until they did that they would have very little else but anarchy.

The Most Rev. Dr. MacKenna, Bishop of Clogher, who presided, said that they must do their utmost to stop things which were happening at once. It must be made clear that such doings would not be tolerated. They gave their ancient enemy an opportunity of laughing at them. They had set up their own Government, and that Government must be reverenced and obeyed. If they did that and obeyed their bishops, then anarchy, so far as it existed in Ireland, would disappear.

MISHAP WITH REVOLVER.

WOMAN SHOT DEAD IN LONGFORD.

A distressing accident occurred in Longford on Thursday night, when Mrs. Anne Phillips, of Water street, was shot dead.

Lieutenant Mullens, of the national Army, had just returned from Ballymahon, and was spending the evening with Mrs. Phillips, who was his cousin. He was about to sit down in the kitchen, when his revolver caught in something and was discharged. The bullet struck Mrs. Phillips in the head, and she was killed instantaneously.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

PRICES IN DUBLIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Your leader to-day in supporting Mr. Darrell Figgis's motion for the establishment of a Committee to inquire into "profiteering" will receive the approval of all consumers; but we must not overlook the fact that the evil is not a new one, and that the cost of living in Dublin has long been greater than that in England. In the recently published "Diaries" of Sir Algernon West there appears (p. 179) a letter written in 1893 by the Private Secretary to the then Viceroy. The following passage is significant:—

"I find in my own experience that, though the common necessaries of life can be and are produced here cheaper than in England, it is far more expensive to live in Dublin than in London. It is a perpetual battle—petty extortion in every direction, the sense that the hand of every man is against you; so that it often ends in surrender from sheer weariness of prolonging the struggle. It is this short-sighted greediness of gain, coupled with the singular aptitude for combination which is so marked a characteristic of the Irish character, that makes living in this country so difficult and kills industrial enterprises."

Sir Herbert Jekyll, who wrote thus nearly thirty years ago, is an experienced administrator, and subsequently became Assistant Secretary to the Board of Trade. He might have added that "the singular aptitude for combination," to which he referred, has not shown itself prominently so far as the Dublin consumer is concerned.—Yours, etc.,

THE COLLEGE OF SCIENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I think that it is time that public attention should be drawn to a recent Government Order, the carrying out of which has caused great inconvenience to about 400 students, and which, if prolonged, will become a very serious matter for those who are nearing the completion of their courses. I refer to the closing down of the Royal College of Science in Merrion street. The reason for the order appears to be that the Government considers that the students are a source of danger to its Ministers and their offices.

If we grant, for the moment, that this is so, two courses are open:—(1) Turn out all the students, or (2) move the Government to the Castle or to the Marlborough Street Training College (now empty). Either of these courses will ensure the safety of the Government, in so far as the students are concerned. The second alternative inconveniences nobody; but the Government has chosen the first, with the result that the students are now spread over five different buildings in the city (procured through the energy of the College staff) in an attempt to carry on their work.

The theoretical and lecture work of the College is being carried out under great difficulties in these various buildings; but the practical work is at a stand-still, engineering workshops and chemical laboratories being unobtainable. The final year of most of the College courses consists very largely—in fact, almost entirely—of practical work, and consequently fourth year students are "held up." If this state of affairs continues much longer, it will be impossible for them to complete their courses by the end of the present session. For a great many of them this is a most serious matter, as it means that it will be an additional year at least before they will be in a position to start their professional careers.

Surely something could be done to induce the Government to allow these students to continue their work and to make it realise that the closing down of educational establishments is not the best way of encouraging education in Ireland.—Yours, etc.,

"FOURTH YEAR STUDENT."

COLONEL GRACE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—May I add to what you said of Mr. Richard Langrishe that he was the direct descendant of Colonel Richard Grace (of the Courtstown family), who defended Athlone against the Williamite army until he was slain? Macaulay does not mention him, although he writes fully of less notable people. He fought for Charles I. in England, but came back to Ireland when the King placed himself in the hands of the Scots. Here the Parliament offered three hundred pounds for Colonel Grace's head. He was the last important person who held out against Cromwell in Ireland, and when all hope was over he was allowed to embark for the Continent with 1,200 men. They joined the Spanish service. Afterwards what remained of them fought in the French army, and Colonel Grace commanded an English battalion under Marshal Turenne at the siege of Dunkirk. At the Restoration he accompanied the Royal Family to England, and the Act of Settlement named him "to be presently restored" to his estates on account of his "faithful services at home and abroad." He also got grants of Crown lands "in consideration of his faithful indefatigable services in the late wars both in England and Ireland, and his faithful and constant adherence and important services beyond the seas during the Usurpation until the King's Restoration." He was a friend of Ormonde and against the Confederates. King James II. gave him a further pension of £300 a year in consideration of his services, losses, and the inadequate recompense he had received. He was made Governor of Athlone. When Douglas summoned him to surrender he fired his pistol, saying, "These are my terms, and when provisions fail I will defend till I eat my boots." He executed ten of his soldiers for violating the protection given by King James to Williamites in the neighbourhood.

The first member of the Society of Friends that came to Ireland mentions Colonel Grace in his diary. William Edmundson's house at Rosenallis was burnt by some hundreds of Rapparees, and he and his two sons were carried off bare-legged and bare-headed. "One of them lent me, at my request, one of my old blankets to lap about me." They were taken through rough places, mire and water to the knees, in cold weather; their bare legs and feet were sore hurt and bruised with gravel, stones, and bushes. After great hardship and danger they got to Athlone. He says: "We were taken to the Castle, where Colonel Grace and the Council met. I came in with my old blanket lapt about me; the Governor asked my name and where I lived. I told him I was old William Edmundson. He stood up, with tears in his eyes, and said he was sorry to see me in that condition, for he knew me well, having been at my house. The Governor spoke roughly to the lieutenant, and asked him what he brought us there for. He answered with this excuse, that the Rapparees were about to hang us, and he brought us there to save our lives. The Governor said if he had them there he would hang them, so committed us to the custody of Captain Francis Dunn, and soon sent us a loaf of bread, a piece of beef, a bottle of drink, and 20s. of brass money. Colonel Grace durst not release me, for many eyes were upon him, because he was kind to the English." He fell at Athlone on the 20th of June, 1691, and is buried there. His long epitaph gives a summary of his history.

Mr. Langrishe's geniality and kindness in giving antiquarian information to whomsoever sought it will be long remembered. The members who joined the antiquaries while Kilkenny was the home of the Society are fast dying out. Many of them lived to a great age.—Yours, etc.,

STOCKS CLOSED STRONG.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Friday.

Stocks opened irregular. A break of 20 points in Standard Oil of New Jersey encouraged traders to work for a reaction, but the buoyancy of Mexican Petroleum, Equipments, Studebakers Shares, Mercantile Marine Preferred, and various high-priced specialities ultimately rallied the list. Other encouraging factors were the easier money rates, the strong technical position and favourable business prospects, and the market closed strong.

one of the colleges of Oxford, which appeared recently. The learned writer was commenting on present discontents, and offered the following as an opinion and a contribution towards their solution:—

"Such high wages are exacted by trades unionists and other servants, such lavish doles have made people so insolent and so indolent, that the recipients will not work, except as, when, where, and with whom they please. . ."

It is to be hoped that in this country the great majority of the class misrepresented by this writer would repudiate such an attitude towards three-fourths of their fellow-citizens, but we must recognise that a great many, who might claim to be leaders of society, are frequently animated by such an attitude, and consequently fail utterly to solve our present discontents. Rather should we approach this subject in the spirit of a famous writer, who pointed out that "The only thing that makes you divine is the Spirit that lives in every heart alike . . . , and there is no difference in the divinity of the Spirit, but only in the stage of its manifestation."

IRELAND'S CASE.

If in considering an economic policy for Ireland we examine the world around us—and especially Great Britain—the more inexplicable the economic problem becomes.

Here we have a nation capable of producing in enormous quantities everything which modern civilisation demands as essential for a comfortable individual, and yet their citizens by the hundred thousand lack even bare necessities.

The Lancashire man who can make shirts and wants boots, and the Nottingham man who can make the boots and wants shirts—both lack these goods, and stand idle, as the only hope of their getting even a paltry share of their own products depends, they are told by their leaders, on sending the goods—to Russia, or Timbuctoo!

If the wretched recipients of the "lavish doles" complain, economic laws are solemnly evoked; the undesirable habits of slum dwellers are pointed out; expansion to the Colonies vaguely praised, and the idea generally conveyed that if the poverty-stricken would kindly take themselves off the face of the earth there might be a little more elbow-room for really desirable members of society. All this is nonsense. The new economic policy—Irish or otherwise—will simply refuse to accept these assertions at their face value.

A financial system with idle raw material, idle factories, idle workers, and unlimited demand and opportunity for turnover, which fails to set the machinery of exchange in motion, will simply be scrapped as no longer serviceable, and other methods will be adopted. It is desirable to emphasise this fact at this, the beginning of our national housekeeping.

THE PRESENT SYSTEM.

The present financial system is obviously failing to "deliver the goods" to those who make them at anything like the potential capacity of the productive system, and the world is looking for a remedy. Happily, it exists.

Whatever the attitude of Labour in Great Britain may be, Irish Labour has not the slightest intention of being sacrificed to any system of economics, and, although the remedial measures proposed may be unsound, we must definitely recognise that Irish Labour—or three-fourths of the citizens of our nation—intends to have a fair share of the fruits of its labour.

Labour may be the blind Samson of society, but unless a definite programme is laid down enabling the majority of our fellow-countrymen and women to lead decent and soul-satisfying lives, it is quite capable of pulling down the pillars of society by misguided efforts to attain that perfectly legitimate objective.

First let us get rid of that old chestnut: "There is not enough to go round." There is not enough money or purchasing power, but what about the things the money stands for?

The fundamental fact of the present situation is the enormous technical ability we possess of producing goods—amply sufficient to provide for each citizen and to make them comfortable and self-respecting members of society.

That a certain number will drink, or gamble, or fritter away their birthright is inevitable. Bred in the surroundings and under the conditions hitherto ruling during the lifetime of our present citizens, the percentage will be heavy, although nothing like as heavy as some of our "high-brows" might have us believe.

It will be part of the price we must pay for tolerating the abominably inhuman conditions to which the present system condemns such numbers.

Take any technical process of production, the difficulty is always to find customers with money; never to satisfy the demand.

Long before 1914 we possessed these instruments of production, yet in the interval between 1914 and 1919 the technical ability to produce goods increased over 50 per cent., according to the well-known statistician, Mr. Edgar Crammond, whose statements were corroborated by the Editor of the Times Engineering Supplement.

It has been calculated that the textile industry of Great Britain and Ireland, working full time for three weeks, could produce all the textiles required by the inhabitants of these countries in one year. Allowing an error of 100 per cent., or even 200 per cent., in this calculation, it is obvious that we possess the technical ability to provide every citizen with an ample supply of these goods. With the aid of modern machinery at present lying idle in Dublin 450 people can produce over 6,000 yards per week of a great variety of towels, tablecloths, etc., and yet the great majority of

THE NEW ECONOMICS.

Supply and Demand—The Fallacy of Loose Thought—The Consumer's Place.

(BY "CREDIT REFORMER.")

At a time when all our social values are in a state of flux, and the landmarks of yesterday must be set aside as untrustworthy, and, indeed, outgrown, the question of an economic policy which will do justice between the various sections of our nation, and enable us to live in peace and harmony with other nations, must receive the careful and concentrated attention of our people.

Our people—and not merely political leaders, for an economic policy, to be successful, must be rooted in the minds of the people; must be adapted to their needs, and offer a suitable channel for their self-expression, in all the human relationships into which an economic element enters.

In approaching this subject it is essential to have such a policy founded on a sound philosophy of human relationships. At the outset, the old and the new outlooks on life must be distinguished, and here, as elsewhere, we may profit by the mistakes of others as well as by their successes.

As an attitude of mind to be carefully avoided, we might take as an illustration a sentence from a letter to the Press by the President of one of the colleges of Oxford, which appeared recently. The learned writer was commenting on present discontents, and offered the following as an opinion and a contribution towards their solution:—

"Such high wages are exacted by trades unionists and other servants, such lavish doles have made people so insolent and so indolent, that the recipients will not work, except as, when, where, and with whom they please. . ."

It is to be hoped that in this country the great majority of the class misrepresented by this writer would repudiate such an attitude towards three-fourths of their fellow-citizens, but we must recognise that a great many, who might claim to be leaders of society, are frequently animated by such an attitude, and consequently fail utterly to solve our present discontents. Rather should we approach this subject in the spirit of a famous writer, who pointed out that "The only thing that makes you divine is the Spirit that lives in every heart alike . . . , and there is no difference in the divinity of the Spirit, but only in the stage of its manifestation."

It has been calculated that the textile industry of Great Britain and Ireland, working full time for three weeks, could produce all the textiles required by the inhabitants of these countries in one year. Allowing an error of 100 per cent., or even 200 per cent., in this calculation, it is obvious that we possess the technical ability to provide every citizen with an ample supply of these goods. With the aid of modern machinery at present lying idle in Dublin 450 people can produce over 6,000 yards per week of a great variety of towels, tablecloths, etc., and yet the great majority of households in the city lack a sufficiency of these articles.

Shipbuilding is an industry well understood in Ireland, although we do not possess many ships, and figures of the world's ship-building capacity are astonishing.

Comparing the gross tons of shipping afloat in 1921 with 1914, "Lloyd's Register of Shipping" proves that the total world tonnage was increased during this period by 11,703,000 tons, or 27½ per cent. And yet, during that period, the shipping of the world was destroyed at an appalling rate—Lord Lee informed the Washington Conference that twelve million tons of shipping had been sunk during the war.

Notwithstanding this wholesale destruction the world's ability to build ships was so enormous as not only to make good these losses, but to leave the total increased by over a fourth at the end of the period.

Then we are told that these countries cannot feed themselves, and large quantities of their products must be exported in exchange for food.

Leaving aside the obvious fact that this does not apply to Ireland, whose principal industry is food production, we would remind our readers that Kuropatkin pointed out many years ago, in his book, "Fields, Factories, and Workshops," that Great Britain and Ireland could easily feed themselves.

It was not until the German submarines enforced the idea that an attempt was made to carry this out, with the result that the production of home-grown wheat, which in 1916 was only about eight weeks' consumption, was raised in 1918 to forty weeks' consumption out of the necessary fifty-two.

This was at a time when seven million of the young and strong were engaged in military and non-productive duties, and the rest of the inhabitants were turning out munitions on a scale unimagined previously.

As a matter of fact, any allotment holder knows the productivity of mother earth when it is a question of eating the products—selling them is quite a different matter. And so on through the various productive processes, whether it is hosiery machinery, with the aid of which one operator can turn out 150 dozen pairs of socks per day; cigarette-making machines turning out 50,000 per hour, or scores of labour-saving devices withheld owing to the natural reluctance of the workmen to render themselves superfluous and starve, or the equally natural reluctance of manufacturers to produce more goods, knowing the difficulty of selling their present production—the tale is always the same. An overwhelming ability to produce goods; a financial system which fails to distribute them. And goods which fail to find a user—i.e., a purchaser—are valueless.

THE "BIG THREE."

It is one of the paradoxes emphasised by the new Douglas-Orage school of thought that the consumer confers value on the commodity which he can consume. Capital for long claimed the major position; then Labour pointed to the absolute necessity of its contribution.

And now we find the consumer at last coming into his own, and we recognise that all three are absolutely necessary if any article is to be of value.

Coals on Dublin quay in certain quantities and at certain prices are valuable; the same coals, representing the same contributions on the part of Capital and Labour, if delivered in the middle of the Sahara, might merely constitute an ugly blot on the landscape.

A truism, certainly, but one which modern society forgets when important decisions are made.

The task of the new economics is to make demand equal supply; modern machinery has long since overcome the problem of making supply equal demand.

GOLF TOPICS.

The Best Match Player.

Who is the best match player among the Dublin professionals? The question has been debated often since Moses O'Neill jumped into prominence three years ago as the winner of the Moran Memorial Cup, a trophy which he still retains. As between O'Neill, Martin, Holley, Sullivan, Fred Smyth, and a few others, when at their best, there would, I should say, never be much. O'Neill, certainly, has been the most consistent in the annual encounters for the Moran Cup; but, nevertheless, I think that with a big issue at stake he would find his master in Martin in a struggle over 72 holes.

It is on the cards that the question of supremacy will be settled before long. I was speaking the other evening to a well-known golfer about O'Neill's failure at Sunningdale in the £750 tourney, following his remarkable practice round of Monday, in which he got to within a stroke of Jack White's record of 68 for the course. I discovered that this judge's faith in O'Neill as a match player was still unshaken. He thinks that O'Neill is the best match fighter among the local "pros." I contended that Martin had a claim to the distinction, and I know that the Milltown members think the same. If they are willing to back their opinions to the extent of putting up a side bet of £50 on behalf of the Irish champion for a match with O'Neill, over 72 holes home and home, with an extra 36 holes (neutral course), in the event of a tie, the match can at once be arranged.

The fact that only two Dublin professionals entered for the News of the World qualifying competition at Newcastle was commented on at the time. That only Holley and O'Neill went northwards was, however, not to be wondered at. The matter of expense enters largely into the "pros'" calculations when these big tourneys come up for consideration. That they find themselves unable to take their chances of qualifying, and, perhaps, having to undertake a journey to St. Andrews or Sunningdale, is a regrettable state of affairs. The Irish clubs ought to do something to remedy that.

For Irish professional golf, they have done next to nothing; the interests of our "pros" have been, as it were, handed over to the care and generosity of sportsmen like Sir Stanley Cochrane. Irish golf is under a heavy obligation to the "pros," who, as a body, are about the worst paid of the wage-earning community. What is greatly wanted is a fund, on which those who qualify for these big tournaments could draw for their expenses. Such a fund could be built up if every club gave an annual donation of £5. It would be a great help to the "pros," and would also be of considerable benefit to Irish golf.

TRAVELLER.

AIRMEN IN DUBLIN.

A Pioneer Flight in 1785.

Now that aeroplanes and airships have come so much to the front, it may be interesting to turn back the page of history, and to find, from Walker's Hibernian Magazine, how an air balloon was sent up from Dublin as far back as the year 1785.

It was a period of peace and prosperity to Ireland, alas, too rare.

An Irish Parliament was sitting in College Green, Grattan was the hero of the day, and under the skilful direction of James Gandon, the stately buildings of the Custom House were rising in picturesque grandeur along the quay. The Duke of Rutland, a young man of twenty-five, was Lord Lieutenant, and entertained lavishly at the Castle, seconded by his notoriously beautiful wife. The Duchess made the Circular road the Hyde Park of Dublin, as she drove along, smiling and bowing, with her six spanking ponies, her postilions, and her gorgeously attired outriders.

As a contemporary writer said:

"If you wish to see Her Grace,
The Circular road it is the place."

Nothing was wanted but a balloon ascent to add to the attractions of the spring of 1785.

And this was supplied by a certain Mr. Crosbie, who had spent time and money on perfecting his balloon. He attempted his first ascent from the new square of the barracks, but to the great disappointment of fifty thousand people who were assembled, it was a failure. This was on the 10th May, 1785; but two days later, on the 12th, he found that his balloon was sufficiently inflated, and he resolved to take his chance of a flight. It was then eight o'clock in the morning, and he had to wait till half-past one before his friends assembled. Two of them were appointed to determine his power of ascension; the boat was loaded with twelve stone of ballast, in twelve bags, a grapple and rope, a flag, a speaking trumpet, a compass, a barometer, a thermometer, and a basket of provisions. Mr. Crosbie got in, but unfortunately he was a stout man, and even when the ballast had been taken out, the balloon was too heavy; so not to disappoint the public, which had shown him such repeated indulgence, he generously offered to let a lighter person ascend in his place.

Numberless competitors crowded round, but Mr. Crosbie gave the preference to a young man called McGuire, whom he had promised to take with him as his companion, if he had taken one. So. McGuire prepared for the ascent; full instructions were given him, ballast was thrown in, and the balloon was about to be launched, when Mr. Crosbie returned, and eagerly desired to resume his seat. McGuire gave it up to him—a sacrifice on his part—and the balloon was again adjusted to the apparatus for inflation. After the last drop of vitriolic had been expended Mr. Crosbie made a second attempt to ascend. All the interior work of the boat was torn out, several feet of the balloon itself was cut off, ballast, provisions, and the last bottle of wine were ruthlessly thrown overboard, and still under these disagreeable and dangerous conditions Mr. Crosbie undauntedly determined to ascend.

The gentlemen who held the boat pushed it upwards with all their strength, but in vain. It rose a few feet, but fell again, with no small danger to Mr. Crosbie. Another gentleman of the name of McGuire, belonging to the Ordnance, jumped into the boat, and had he not been prevented by the spectators and Mr. Crosbie, would have instantly ascended, but Mr. Richard McGuire's claim was too strong to be resisted. Seven bags of ballast, a barometer, a thermometer, a flag, a speaking trumpet, and half a French roll, were put into the boat, and by throwing out four bags of ballast, he mounted as high as the roof of the barracks. Perceiving his danger, with the utmost presence of mind, he gradually emptied another bag, and proceeded majestically over the park. Another current of air carried him towards the sea, when, upon remarking the distention which had taken place in consequence of the rarified atmosphere, he endeavoured to relieve it by opening the valve. He pulled the valve rope gently, and kept his eye steadily fixed on the barometer, but perceiving that the mercury still continued to fall, he concluded that the valve had not opened, and upon applying greater force, the cord broke at the staple of the valve.

A CRITICAL FLIGHT.

Presently the balloon burst just above the cord which was tied round part of it. At this critical moment he made a note of the conditions of the thermometer and barometer—the barometer stood at 20 inches, and the thermometer at 32. . . His situation became more critical every minute—he was driving towards the sea, with but two bags of ballast, and a damaged balloon. Perceiving by the thermometer that the balloon, notwithstanding the fissure, still continued to ascend, he determined to let more gas escape. The balloon was too high for him to reach it with his arms, but fortunately he had in his pocket a small gimlet; the gimlet he tied to the flag-staff, and this latter he made fast to the speaking trumpet, and standing on the seat he was able to make several punctures, in consequence of which he descended with considerable rapidity into the sea, nine miles E.N.E. of Howth.

When his boat (car) took to the water his body was thrown out, but before his legs were cleared the balloon re-ascended so much as to make the ropes hold him fast by the ankles, his head lying in the water. Being an excellent swimmer he disengaged himself, and tried to grapple the boat (car). Failing in this he turned on his back, and after thirty-three minutes in this most critical situation he heard the cheer of a boat's crew: "Never fear, my lad, you are safe!" Turning on his face he saw the men at a distance of forty yards, holding out their hands. He swam towards them, and was taken up, very much exhausted, but quite collected.

"He was soon brought to shore," adds the chronicler, "where Their Graces the Duke and Duchess of Rutland received him with that politeness and good nature for which they are so justly distinguished. Their kind anxiety can never be forgotten by Mr. McGuire and his friends. He was brought to town in Her Grace's carriage by Mr. Uniacke, and set down at Dr. Usher's house, amidst the acclamations of thousands."

Among the spectators of this flight were Lord Henry Fitzgerald and his ill-fated brother, Lord Edward. They had their horses ready to follow the course of the balloon, and set off at full gallop across the country to pursue it. In his chivalrous impetuosity, Lord Edward lamed his horse, but Lord Henry, with Mr. Oliver and Mr. Thornton, got into Howth just as they saw the balloon descending with rapidity into the sea.

GERMAN MARKS.

Exchange and its Results.

(BY A RESIDENT.)

It is difficult for people in Ireland, accustomed as they are to pay fairly permanent prices for ordinary commodities, to realise exactly what life is like in a country where prices are doubled, perhaps, trebled, in a day. In Germany to-day the value of the currency stands at less than one five-hundredth of its pre-war value, and rapid fluctuations in the rate of the foreign exchange make the case of the German householder desperate indeed.

A locksmith here earns a weekly wage of some 3,800 marks, or about six shillings at the present rate of exchange. On that he has to lodge, feed, and clothe himself. Yesterday he had to pay six marks for posting a letter to England, to-day he must pay twenty. A tram to his place of business yesterday cost him nine marks, to-day he must pay twelve. Food has increased in price correspondingly within the last few days; butter now costs 380 marks per lb., which cost 300 marks last week; coffee, which last week cost about 620 marks per lb., now costs 700 marks.

THE RECENT FALL

Thus prices soar, while salaries rise more slowly. The only way in which the difficulty can be met, apparently, is by the printing of more paper marks. The currency in Germany is already too heavily inflated to bear this artificial relief much longer. Such an expedient is destroying the economic moral of a sober and far-seeing people.

Within the last few weeks the exchange rose with a sudden jump from 6,000 marks to the £ sterling (circa) to 12,000 marks to the £ sterling (circa). Let us examine some of the causes and the results of this sudden depreciation of the mark. A short time ago the Government permitted the brewers, and liquor manufacturers generally, to demand four times the price they have hitherto been allowed to ask for their wines, liqueurs, and beers. The result was that these men were encouraged to purchase large supplies of maize and cereals from abroad. One firm actually bought up in the last week no less than £200,000 worth of cereals—a very large sum for a German firm. These stocks must, of course, be purchased with foreign money, English or American, probably. Consequently, the demand for the £ sterling and the dollar increases, and the price of the £ or dollar rises correspondingly. Hence, we can understand in some degree the depreciation of the mark.

Now for the consequences. The fall in the value of the mark is accompanied by a corresponding increase in the price of all commodities, especially those which must be imported from abroad. Among the latter are coffee, tea, flour, cloth, and other things. Within the last month prices have risen enormously. Thus, butter has risen from 200 marks per ½ kilo to 380 marks; sugar from 35 marks per ½ kilo to 65 marks; potatoes from 2.50 marks per ½ kilo to 6 marks; flour from about 24 marks per ½ kilo to 56 marks, and so on for almost everything.

AN EASY WAY OUT.

In view of the mark's steady decline in value, the saving or putting-by of German paper money appears to the individual over here as foolish in the extreme. He is encouraged to spend all he earns so as to get some material return for his money, or else to buy foreign money with his weekly surplus. The latter alternative is too speculative for the majority, and the consequence is that nearly every wage-earner in Germany spends his or her earnings as quickly as they are got. Some buy all sorts of articles which will be of domestic use, others invest in clothes and equipment which in normal times they would never dream of wearing, and a great many, for the moment unbalanced by this orgy of spending which is so foreign to the thrifty German soul, spend their money in foolish frivolity and drink. Since the war a whole host of cabarets and drinking saloons, dance-halls, and other places where one is relieved of one's surplus cash, have sprung into being like a crop of mushrooms.

An ex-submarine officer with whom I had lunch a few days ago told me that one great way of benefiting by the decline of the mark was by running into debt! If one bought now, say, 12,000 marks' worth of goods when the exchange stands at 12,000, and then paid up in a couple of months' time, when the £ may be worth about 20,000 marks, the gain to the purchaser would be 8,000 marks—providing his salary has been correspondingly raised. Such a proceeding, however, as well as being absolutely immoral, is not without a considerable degree of risk; for no one can say for certain that the mark will not recover.

The officer of whom I speak is now a hard-working and capable business-man. He justified his scheme by saying that the shopkeepers are pretty certain not to lose no matter what happens. If they find themselves with a deficit, they simply raise their prices.

The cumulative result of all these side-effects of the fluctuating rate of exchange is the certain destruction of all economic balance. What may be a wise procedure for the individual becomes ruinous when applied to a whole nation. The Germans are steadily losing much of their thrift, and developing the spending habit. Whether they will be able to recover when the exchange finally attains stability is a matter for conjecture. But a few more years of spending and the thrifty character of the town-dwellers, at any rate, must be lost completely.

AUTUMN IN THE GARDEN.

Work for the Cold Days.

October is the merging of the old and new year for gardeners. We are still reaping, quickly and efficiently as we may, the harvest of our twelve months' work. Late apples and pears are being picked, graded, and stored; potatoes and roots lifted and clamped; onions hanked. These are pleasant enough labours in the sweat of our brow under the autumn sun; but there is a suspicion of frost in the air at nights, convincing us that winter is not far off, and the wise gardener now will take sober thought, and lay solidly the foundations of the next year's work.

A scheme for the rotation of crops—early and thorough breaking, sensible manuring of the ground clear at your disposal, with vistas of the future, pruning and cleaning of fruit trees as winter draws on—will be some result of your sober thought. Flower-beds and borders are demanding immediate attention, calling for a tidying up of their draggled finery. Leaves are disturbing the trimness of paths and lawns, golden and rich in promise of their future use to you, for leafmould is a good and true friend. Cold house, vineries, conservatories, all want making trim and snug for their next season's work. Chrysanthemums, anxious to know their winter quarters are ready, treading hard on the heels of belated and rather battered tomatoes, who have found this summer cold and unfriendly. Bulbs, not yet in bowls or pots, are reproachfully reminding us that they should be so.

A good month and a good season, surely, this season of mist and mellow fruitfulness. Satisfactory to reflect on all you are going to get done in the winter days, pleasant, short days, with their long evenings, and the comforting vision of a square of brown earth, fresh dug and warm in colour.

There is wet weather before you; muddy and penetratingly cold days, when the house and potting shed are almost, too, inviting a shelter; but of drudgery and monotony there is little in gardening. A perpetual onward change, transition from one stage of life to another, the amazing miracle of growth, maturity, and reproduction; Nature achieving its end, aided or impeded by the ingenuity of man. "I never finish, but I leave off at nights," as a charming old innkeeper's wife, who presided over an only too attractive wayside inn, said to me. That is it precisely; but as the reward of your unremitting care comes the quick and welcome material harvest of fruit and vegetables, fresh cut to eat. The garden's harvest is not of weeks' duration, but prolonged itself through every month of the year, or, rather, should do so, if the garden is a well-run concern and the succession thought out, and your borders that were a joy in January with Hellebores and early bulbs may yet be gay with Kniphophias, Michaelmas Daisies, and late annuals, Waescewicii, annuals, Alonsoa, with its charming slender scarlet spikes, grown as a half hardy annual, is very successful.

These are the joys and sorrows of the real gardener, the working gardener; but the owner of the vast, straggly garden, short of labour, short of funds and knowledge, beset by marauders, insect pests, old and diseased fruit trees, has a very different story to tell. These neglected gardens are sorry spectacles, horrible and moving to the gardener's eyes as is a child with dirty face and unwiped nose to any woman. That they are an increasing quantity all over Ireland to-day, spreading dirt and disease, is only too well known. But there must be a remedy for this usual tragedy, I feel sure, and the problem of the unwanted garden is a good one to tackle.

"HORTENSIA."

"A CORNER OF OLD DUBLIN."

Several correspondents have written to ask in what part of Dublin the photograph which we published last week under the above title was taken. The scene of the picture is a street off Dorset street, and the tall spire in the background is that of Findlater's Church.

BIRDS IN OCTOBER.

The Coming of the Wild Geese.

The crown of autumn has yet to come, for most of the trees are still green, but the first frosts have touched the late flowers with a chilly finger. In the Far North winter has already set in. In Greenland, Spitzbergen, Iceland, and even in Norway, Sweden, and the Tundras, the fierce grip of the Arctic has warned the birds to seek more temperate lands.

Already swarms of fieldfares, redwings, bramblings, foreign skylarks, starlings, sandpipers, knots plover, widgeon, woodcock, and jack snipe are coming into the country with favourable winds to cheer the heart of the bird-lover through the long winter months when he is bereft of his song birds. For our own summer visitors have now gone. The swallows left this district on the night of September 17th, when the wind gave them kindly help on the long they were sitting in companies of from fifty to a hundred on the fence, twittering of the days of change. With them were several spotted flycatchers, a very late date for these pretty little birds to remain here, for their usual season lasts only from May to August. They were a late brood, hatched out in a nest beautifully hidden behind the loose bark of an old elm tree near by. For three weeks or more the parent birds had been giving assiduous instruction in the gentle art of catching flies. To the babies a white butterfly had irresistible attractions, but the idea received no encouragement from the old birds, and it was always abandoned eventually for a less flamboyant, but more succulent, black fly.

By the middle of the month they were proficient on the wing, but insects were getting scarce. The swifts had gone before the end of August; the swallows were going, and the young fly-catchers sat beside them anxiously preening their wing feathers. In the morning all were gone.

About the same time the garden became alive with blackbirds, all moving southwards, and feeding as they went. A few days ago the chiff-chaffs were passing by singing softly. It was not the gay whole-hearted song of spring, when the woods ring with the clear "Chiff-Chaff, Chiff-Chaff" from early morning. The autumn song is a low "Chiff-Chiff" without the "Chaff."

A week ago, during a storm of rain and wind, the clouds lay in great banks along the mountains, and rolled up the valleys in swathes. The trees were bending and whipping their drenched branches against a background of flying cloud. Suddenly out of the mist, flying low and rapidly, came a flight of curlew, their long beaks and breast feathers clearly to be seen. They seemed perplexed with the low-lying fogs, and swerved and wheeled rapidly against the storm. If the late gales of autumn can embarrass so strong a bird as the curlew, what effect must they have on such morsels of bird life as gold-crests and warblers? Many a bird does, indeed, meet with an untimely death during migration, through sheer fatigue. I have found fieldfares on the mountains in autumn in flocks, so exhausted that they hardly tried to get out of the way of the pedestrian.

MIGRATION.

Much has been written on the subject of migration, but a great deal yet remains to be known about the movements of birds. Some time ago an aviator wrote to the Press saying that while flying at a height which was nearly the limit which it was possible for an aeroplane to reach, he saw birds flying so far above him that he could not distinguish their species. How did they exist at so great a height? Certain it is that we see only a minute portion of their great movements, for not only do some of them fly at a tremendous height, but many species travel chiefly at night. Sometimes according to the weather they fly at lower levels, and on still nights their wild far-off cries draw our hearts after them into the starry spaces of the night. The pace at which many birds fly is well nigh incredible. Swifts can, and often do, fly at the rate of two hundred miles an hour on certain stages. Dotterells, on their spring migration are said to cover the immense distance of two thousand miles from Africa to the Arctic Tundras between one sunset and sunrise. At Heligoland and the mouth of the Elbe birds are seen at this time of year passing in countless hosts for days together, and at night the lighthouses shoot their beams through air at times literally thick with birds.

Late in October the wild geese will be coming by, and for several days gaggles of them may be seen, especially in the early morning, making for the southern marshes and estuaries, where those that escape the fowlers will spend the winter. Last year great flights of Grey Lags came down near the Wicklow Morrough, where they get great feeding on the wide plains which are there so intersected with tidal waterways.

On the wilder seacoasts of the north and west the dainty snow-bunting will come in company with the purple sandpiper, who reared his young among the half-melted snowfields of Greenland, where his shy presence delighted ice-bound Peary.

THE RAUCOUS ROOK.

Among our more familiar and domestic autumn sounds the cawing of the rooks among the oaks and beeches, on a sunny October morning, is a never-failing joy. Soon after dawn they arrive in the woods and commence breakfast on the acorns and beech mast. Clumsy fellows they are, too, for the whack of many a fallen acorn resounds through the woods above the chorus of cawing. Be sure their bosom friend, the jackdaw, is right willing to help in the feast and the fun. The migratory habits of the rook are puzzling, and small parties of them appear to be continually moving about. Late in autumn some arrive on our East coast from Wales and Scotland, but movements on a small scale appear to take place at nearly all times of the year. Sad would it be for us if he was a true migrant, for we would miss his pleasant raucous voice, his wheeling flight at evening time, and his stately, if rolling, gait about our fields.

Chaffinches and starlings are flying in flocks from hedgerow to field, sure sign that the end of summer has come, while the faithful robin alone sings sweet and true of all our summer minstrels.

"Withal there came unto our needs
Woodcock and snipe when swallows go;
And now the water hen flies low,
With feet that well nigh touch the reeds,
And plovers cry about the meads,
And the stares chatter; certes, Sir,
It is a fair place all the year."

"THE QUEEN OF THE BALTIC"

Polish, German, or Free State?—A Visit to Danzig.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

"Where exactly is Danzig?" The inhabitants of Western Europe may well be forgiven for asking the question. I have already had to answer it at least a dozen times since my return to these latitudes, and on each occasion my reply has been the same; "Read the Treaty of Versailles."

On the agenda of the Peace Conference the old grey city by the Baltic did, indeed, figure no less conspicuously than Fiume, Lexhen, and Upper Silesia as one of those "apples of discord" whose ultimate gate it taxed all the ingenuity of Europe's leading statesmen to settle. Poland demanded it, as representing her only natural outlet to the sea. Germany urged that to tear this "purely German" town out of her body would be no less an outrage than, say, the separation of Calais from France. The Danzigers themselves meanwhile recalled the fact that during the greater part of the Middle Ages their city had been a virtually independent burgher republic, and invoked the right of self-determination.

The creation of a new Free State of Danzig, entrusted to the special care of the League of Nations, but having a loose connection with the Polish Republic under an arrangement providing for almost complete local autonomy, was the final way out of the difficulty. Even now, however, the last word does not yet appear to have been spoken, and the Baltic problem bids fair to occupy the attention of Europe again at no distant date. Videant consules! For those other than students of European politics too, however, a visit to Danzig is well worth the trouble.

A day's train journey from Berlin, a dash through the Polish "corridor" (meaning thereby the strip of land separating Central Germany from East Prussia), and we arrive at the Danzig Haupthahnhof, or central station. More likely than not the official who collects our tickets will be a Pole; the right of controlling the railway services within the Free State has been reserved to the Polish Republic, together with certain other privileges, but there is little of the Slav element in the old town as it presents itself to the visitors. Narrow, picturesque, ancient-looking streets, often with quaint stone balconies (the famous "Beischlage"), running parallel to the footpaths, enormous stone gates, with names that lead the imagination straight back to the Middle Ages, a grey market square (the "Lange Markt"), surmounted by a glorious "Rathaus" (town hall), and towering above all the huge squat spire of the Church of St. Mary—such is Danzig.

One of the oldest, proudest, most picturesque cities in the whole of Northern Europe, the largest port on the Southern Baltic, possessing, too, a history that is a romance in itself. Who founded this town, who ruled it, and how has it come to be what it is?

We first hear of it about the end of the tenth century—some twenty years before shield clashed against shield on the field of Clontarf—when the patron saint of the Polish people, St. Adalbert, first carried the Gospel into these northern wilds. It was a fishing village then, and its inhabitants were Slavs. Presently the German trader, and a little later still the German colonist, found their way to it. In the year 1311 the little settlement by the mouth of the Vistula fell into the hands of the Teuton Order, and a new town, a real town as towns then went, was reared on its site by that strange community of warriors, half monks, half knights, who were destined to colonise and rule the greater part of the Baltic regions for well over two centuries, until they sustained their terrible defeat at the hands of the Poles near the Masurian Lakes in 1410.

THE HANSEATIC LEAGUE.

The Teuton Order created Danzig, but it was as a member of the Hanseatic League that it first rose to greatness. When the Black Cross Knights were finally expelled from her walls (having developed from benevolent guardians into harsh taskmasters, and ultimately into greedy tyrants) Danzig became virtually independent. Her public buildings, her churches, the houses of her leading burghers, were among the finest in the north. Her merchant fleets were to be found on every sea then known; her ambassadors occupied the place of honour at the council of the Hanseatic League, and did not shrink from threatening with war potentates like the King of Denmark or the rulers of Poland. A Danzig Admiral, Paul Bencke, compelled English fleets to strike their pennants to him.

Even after the decay of the Hanseatic League, when the discovery of America and the rise of the maritime States in the West, Holland and Britain, opened a new chapter in the history of sea power, Danzig continued to remain a rich city. Her sufferings during the Napoleonic wars, and her final absorption by Prussia (1815), proved no more than the prelude to another epoch of prosperity. She is now a free city once more, flying her own flag, printing her own postage stamps (although not her own bank notes, which have remained German), and is fairly entitled to look forward to an even more prosperous future when the whole of the Southern Baltic trade will flow through her port.

THE FORESTS OF DANZIG.

She has more to offer to the visitor, however, than picturesque buildings and memories of former greatness. The surrounding country, if somewhat bleak in parts, has a sombre beauty of its own, and its huge forests rank among the finest in Northern Germany. There are hills, too, even though they are not as high as those in Connaught or the Wicklow Mountains, and the Baltic coast attracts crowds of holiday-makers every year.

Zappot ("the Monte Carlo of the North") and the pleasant suburb of Oliva, with its ancient monastery and delightful gardens, are not quickly forgotten. The new Baltic States, too, Lithuania, Latvia, Esthonia, Finland, not to mention Poland, are comparatively easy of access. The Western tourist eager to break new ground, and prepared to exist without Virginia cigarettes for a season (here, alas! we are compelled to touch upon the only drawback associated with these regions) might do a good deal worse than take a ticket to Danzig. There is no need to add that journeying in Central Europe nowadays is remarkably cheap, even second or first class. It is not every year—in these islands of ours at least—that one can travel three hundred miles (say, the distance separating London from Edinburg), for the equivalent of two shillings.

DUBLIN.

FUNDS MOSTLY SUPPORTED. BANKS QUIETER. GUINNESS AND TOBACCOS HIGHER. MARCONI SLUMP ON UNEXPECTED FRESH CAPITAL PROPOSALS.

The market on 'Change continued the generally improved trend of prices shown almost all the week, in spite of the usual desire to take profits. The new Debenture issue notified by the Marconi Company to provide extra capital came as a complete surprise, seeing the shareholders put up nearly £4,500,000 share capital at 200 per cent. premium a couple of years ago, and dividends since have been a bit disappointing owing to general trading conditions. Anyway, there was a rush of selling orders, and the price more than lost the recent recovery. Subsidiaries were also less firm, but these adverse market movements under such circumstances cannot always be commended, as they are based on assumptions that the new business extensions, for which the capital is required, will not pay for themselves. The Funds closed often with fair strength and some confidence, but without feature in price movements. National and Munster Bank Shares eased after recent strength. Royals were firm and Provincials wanted. Home Railway Pre.-Ord. Stocks were firm, with Great Southern Guaranteed strong and higher, but Ord. Stocks, though occasionally bid for, did not change hands. Guinness Ord. were firmer. Parent Tyre relapsed, but Dunlop Rubbers were rather better. Alliance Gas further rose. Tobaccos were freely supported. Goulding Debs. and Lever Bros. 7 p.c. Pref. were higher. Textiles were unchanged where quoted. Dolphin Hotel Pref. advanced still further.

There was a big string of quotations listed for Government Funds and War Stocks, and on balance higher prices obtained. Consols fell ⅛ to 57⅞, after touching 57⅞. War Loan 5 p.c. rose ⅛ to 100¾ 1/16, ditto 4 p.c. ⅜ to 100¾, Victory Bonds ½ to 88½, Conversion 3½ p.c. 1/16 to 74⅜, and India 3½ p.c. ¼ to 66¼, while ditto 3 p.c. fell ¼ to 56, and Irish Land 3 p.c. ⅛ to 62⅞, for an odd lot. National War Bonds were active and firm.

In Banking securities Provincial Old rose ½ to 20¾ for a small lot and Hibernians ⅛ to 6¼, but Munsters relapsed 1/16 to 6 11/16 and Nationals ⅜ to 18¼, while Royals repeated 12 x.d.

As regards Breweries, etc., Guinness rose 1/16 to 43¼; and J. Power and Son Pref. repeated 19s. 9d.

Marconi Ord. were flat and fell 3s. 1½d. to 46s. 6d. 46s. 4½d. on the fresh capital required. Radio, in sympathy, gave way 6d. to 20s. 3d. and the Preferred 4½d. to 15s.

Among Home Rails Great Southern and Western Guaranteed rose 1½ to 63, while the Pref. repeated 57, Great Northern Pref. 60, and the Debs. 75½. Midland Great Western was again bid up 1 to 28, and did not offer even at 30.

Dunlop Rubbers closed the turn better at 8s. 9d. 8s. 10½d. 8s. 9½d., but Parent Tyre Ord. were offered and fell 3d. to 14s. 3d., with the Pref. about 13s. 13s. 6d., and the Deferred 20s 22s. 6d. unofficially.

Manufacturing Shares varied within narrow limits. British-American Tobaccos rose 3d. to 87s. 9d. and Imperials 3d. to 69s. 9d. 69s. 7½d. Calico Printers repeated 21s. 6d. and Coats Ord. 66s. Goulding Debs. rose 2s. to 77s. 6d. and Lever Bros 7 p.c. Pref. 3d. to 20s. Dublin Brick Shares fell 3d. to 5s. 9d., and White, Tomkins and Courage Ord. fetched 22s. 9d. Courtaulds changed hands at 55s. 3d., Bleachers at 40s. 9d., and Goulding Ord. at 5⅛.

Trading Shares were idle, but E. and J. Burke Pref. repeated 60s.; and in Miscellaneous Securities Dolphin Hotel Pref. rose a further 2s. 6d. to 70s. Mexican Eagle Oil rallied to 57s. 9d. and the 7 p.c. Pref. 6d. to 19s. 1½d. 19s. 3d. Shells realised 87s. 9d.

MORE MARCONI CAPITAL.

1,000,000 NEW ORDINARY SHARES.

The Marconi debenture proposals will involve an extension of borrowing powers, which are at present limited to one-half of the nominal amount of the issued capital, and also, in order to provide for conversion rights, an increase of the ordinary share capital of the company.

An extraordinary meeting will be held on Friday, 20th October, at the Connaught Rooms, Great Queen street, London, W.C., for the purpose of passing the following resolutions:—

"That the capital of the company be increased to £4,000,000 by the creation of 1,000,000 new ordinary shares of £1 each, to be issued to such persons, firms, or corporations at such times and upon such terms and conditions as the directors think fit, such shares to rank pari passu in all respects with the existing 2,750,000 ordinary shares of £1 each."

"That the directors' powers to raise or borrow money conferred by Article 40 of the articles of association be extended so that the amount at any one time owing in respect of moneys so raised or borrowed shall not, without the sanction of a general meeting, exceed the nominal amount of the capital for the time being of the company."

A confirmatory meeting will be held on November 4.

NORTHERN BANKING COMPANY.

The accounts of the Northern Banking Company for the year ended 31st August last have been issued, and reflect continued success even if total figures in some cases are not up to last year's records.

Gross profits increased by £9,536 to £423,369, but salaries and expenses, £259,297, reflect an increase of £17,701, but the £32,266 bonus to officials shows a decrease of £5,872. Net profits were £131,805, after meeting the bonus, and this sum, with £87,457 brought in, and a special profit of £106,876 from gilt-edged securities realised, gave a total of £326,139 to allocate. The dividend, 17½ p.c. on the "A" and 8¾ p.c. on the "B" shares, again shows no change, and, less income tax, absorbed £66,190. £100,000 is added to reserve, against £20,000, and another £100,000 is set aside for contingencies, against nil, carrying forward £50,042, a decrease of £37,415. The reserve fund, £600,000, is now equal to entire paid-up capital.

Deposit and current account balances with notes in circulation stand at £17,382,000, a decrease of £921,000. The assets total £18,811,000. Cash, etc., stands at £2,247,000, a decrease of £1,300,000, but investments total £5,786,000, an increase of £1,396,000. Liquid assets, £8,033,000, are equal to over 46 p.c. of the total liabilities to the public; bills, loans, and advances amount to £10,412,000, a decrease of £960,000. Bank premises, including two new branches, £240,000, an increase of £15,000.

FIRM STOCKS.

RISES IN FOREIGN RAILS.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT AND THE "FINANCIAL NEWS" OF TO-DAY.)

The trend of markets yesterday was symptomatic of the customary week-end slothfulness. Things were fairly cheerful, except in Home Rails, which were despondent on continued lack of support, but business generally was the reverse of brisk, and the usual indisposition to enter into new commitments was everywhere apparent. A firm opening characterised the gilt-edged market. War Loan Fives were quoted early at 100 1/16 100 11/16, but eased off to 100 1/16 at the close, and on the day they lost 1/16. Consols and Funding Loan were the best features, the former advancing ⅜ to 57⅞ and the latter gaining ⅛ at 85¼. Local Loans were also a trifle better. Among India Stocks the 7 p.c. were prominent with a rise of 1 to 113. Home Rails were dull, with few exceptions, especially in the Light Stocks, of which Metropolitans were the weakest spot, falling 1½ to 54, at which price there were neither buyers nor sellers, while Districts declined ¾ to 40½. Antofagastas were a great feature of strength in the Foreign Railway market, and it is evident that dividend prospects are hopefully regarded. Quoted early on at 74½ 75, the Stock was later buyers at 73, the closing price, which showed a gain of 2 on the session. There was also a strong demand for United Havana, which were likewise marked up 2 to 65½, the market being short of Stock. Some of the Argentine Stocks improved, including Buenos Ayres and Pacific, and it is quite likely that the latter will go further ahead when the report has had an opportunity of being duly appreciated.

LONDON STOCKS STEADY.

CONFIDENT TONE MAINTAINED.

The Stock markets yesterday were generally cheerful, and there was an inclination on the part of business to expand. It was thought that the prospects of an early general election were receding, and this possibility considerably helped the tone of the markets for a time, but later the approaching account exercised the usual lowering influences, and prices rather fell away. In British Funds changes were few. The Funding Loan rose ⅛ to 85, Victory Bonds ⅛ to 88½, and India 3 p.c. ⅛ to 56½. Among new issues the following prices were quoted:—Aerated Bread Pref. 9d. pm., Auckland Electric 5 p.c. 102½, Bengal Telephone Debs. 99½, Charles Baker Debs. 7½ pm., City and South London Debs. 95, County of London Electric Ord. 3s. pm., do. Pref. 2s. pm., Cross and Heatons Debs. 5½ dis., Empire Paper Mills Debs. 102½, Inveresk Paper Pref. ½ dis., do. Debs. 1 pm., London Electric Debs. 95, Platt Bros. Ord. 44s. 3d., do. Pref. 23s. 9d., Port of Bombay 100¾, Prague 85, Tata Iron and Steel 93.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were little dealt in, and prices moved but rarely. French Loans and German Threes were unaltered. Portuguese Threes rose 1 to 25, Egyptian Unified at 71½ gained ⅛. Peruvian Corporation Pref. fell ½ to 30.

HOME RAILS were depressed and generally lower, particularly in Undergrounds. Metropolitan fell 1½ to 54, Underground Electric Ord. ⅛ to 3¼, and the Income Bonds 1 to 86½. South-Eastern Deferred at 34½ lost a point, London and North-Western at 101½ fell ½, Great Northern Pref. at 64½ and the Deferred at 41½ both lost ½. Great Eastern also fell ½ to 36½. North-Eastern Consols at 117 lost ½. There were many smaller losses.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN RAILS were again the brightest market. "Canpacs" rose 1 to 167, while the Guaranteed in Grand Trunks gained a point at 76. Antofagasta were very firm on the big traffic increase, rising 2 points to 73. Argentines were good. "B.A.G.S." rose ½ to 79, Pacifics ½ to 58, and Westerns 1 to 74. Argentine Great Western Ord. gained a point at 70, United Havana put on 1½ at 65½, and Entre Rios Pref. at 59 gained ½. Mexicans were dull, dropping 1 to 12½, while the Sixes were also a point down at 26. Americans barely moved. Southern Pacifics fell 1 to 107.

OIL SHARES STRONGER.

RISE IN MEXICAN 7 PER CENTS.

In common with most other sections of the Stock Exchange, the Oil share market had a quiet appearance yesterday, although the firmer tone which developed on the preceding day in the leading issues continued in evidence, and prices further strengthened. The volume of business in all but a few specialities remained small, as was only to be expected at the end of a slack week, while the approach of the carry-over exercised a restricting influence. A further recovery in Mexican Eagle 7 per cent. Prefs. was one of the best features among the leaders, while the common shares also improved, although the latter left off a trifle below the best. Shells failed to hold an advance, but they left off steady at the overnight level, while a further gain was registered by Royal Dutch. Anglo-Persian Ord. again advanced, but Burmahs were easier. Renewed activity and strength were displayed by Phœnix Oil and Transports, the shares being strongly supported and advancing sharply, causing a rush to cover on the part of "bear" operators. The best price was not maintained to the end, but an appreciable improvement was, nevertheless, recorded. The production figures of the Phœnix for the past month are none too good, the output amounting to 3,050 tons, which compares with 3,250 for August; while the throughput of the refinery was 3,565 tons, as against 7,090 tons for the preceding month. The reason for the decreased production is that Well No. 5, Moreni Stavropoleos only recommenced flowing on September 18, and after an eruption of 46 hours, during which 1,000 tons were produced, became plugged again owing to the increased force of the flow after cleaning the well, recommenced flowing. Latest advices are to the effect that Well No. 1, Runcu, in which cleaning operations have been proceeding, is now producing at the rate of 250 tons per day. Other Rumanian descriptions remained uninteresting. An easier tendency characterised the Trinidad group. Firmness continued to be displayed by the V.O.C. Holding issues, which held the preceding day's advance. Closing prices:—

LONDON MINING MARKET CHEERFUL.

SOME "KAFFIRS" AND DIAMONDS STRONG.

Once more the Stock Exchange, as a whole, presented a rather quiet appearance yesterday, business generally being held up by the prospect of developments in home politics and the approach of the week-end; also the incidence of option day may have checked any great expansion of activity. Mines held their own well, but even in these sections attention was mainly directed to a few specialities. In Kaffirs, for instance, a strong demand sprang up for Crown Mines, Rand Mines, and the Randfonteins, while Robinson Deep A and B were prominent. Paris was inclined to support some of its favourites, though not to any great extent, and it is probable that most of the Continental buying was on behalf of German operators. The Cape was not greatly interested, and as there was no change in the price of gold little incentive to fresh activity existed. On balance the changes were not numerous, but most of them were in favour of holders. The volume of trading in the Rhodesian section was on an increasing scale, and Chartered were bid for on reports that the country is likely to enter the Union. The feature, however, was Cam and Motor, which, despite considerable profit-taking, went ahead on persistent rumours of good developments. Globes were better, and there was a good inquiry for Rhodesia Broken Hill on the improved position of the company, as shown in the monthly returns. Rhodesia Gold Mining and Investment also came to the fore. In the Diamond section, Consolidated Diamond Mines were very prominent, good buying being in progress all day, while De Beers and Jagersfontein also strengthened. The improvement recently noticeable in the Tin Share market showed considerable expansion, mainly on the further rise in the price of the metal to £167 13s. 9d. per ton, which shows a rise of over £4 per ton on the week, and is within £1 of the highest price reached this year—early in January £168 1s. 9d. was touched. Quotations almost throughout the list went ahead. Malayan, with a gain of 1/16, leading the way. West Africans also took a new lease of life, and Akkim registered a substantial advance. Australians were idle, but among Coppers, Rio Tinto and South American Copper moved up. Among Russians, Russo-Asiatic were not materially affected by the publication of the report, and the price receded the turn. Elsewhere, Esperanzas and National Mining were wanted, but Mexican Mines were unaffected by the issue of a circular explaining the development position to date. Closing prices:—

RUBBER SHARES BOOMING.

A FIRM CLOSE.

Apart from the dealings in Rubber shares on the Stock Exchange there were some interesting scenes in Mincing Lane yesterday, for brokers were standing about in the sunshine while buying and selling in Rubber shares became quite brisk. Prices improved, and the market closed firmly. In Rubber shares, business was good, and there were many gains on the day. Kuala Lumpur rose 3s. 7½d. to 43s. 1½d., Java Amalgamated at 16s. were 3s. 6d. higher. Tali River advanced 3s. 1½d. to 18s. 6d., Ashan at 8s. 9d. was 2s. 9d. better, Malacca Ord. gained 2s. 2½d. at 43s. 9d., the Pref. 1s. 10½d. at 36s. 3d., and the Debs. 1½d. at 79. Pataling rose 3s. 1½d. to 21s. 3d., and Tebrau 2s. to 21s. There were many other substantial gains. Falls were few and small. Kampang Kuantan lost 6d. at 5s. 9d., and Sungei Salak 1s. at 27s. 6d. The price of rubber rose to 10½d. per lb. Closing prices:—

FIRM INDUSTRIALS.

BUSINESS RESTRICTED.

Cheerfulness once more pervaded the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday, and a firm tone ruled throughout. Business, however, was still restricted, though in certain directions there was certainly more doing. Chief interest again centred in B. and A. Meat shares, which were dealt in on a large scale. The terms of the deal became known during the course of the day.

Another big turnover was recorded in the shares. They opened at about 2⅞, then gave way to 2 11/16, but, following the announcement of the terms of the deal, went ahead, and closed 5s. 1½d. higher on balance at 3 1/16. Bargains were recorded in the Prefs. at up to 31s. Smithfield and Argentine Meats were in demand at up to 10s. Union Cold Storage Prefs. eased to 21s. Cements showed no change at 18s., and the Prefs. remained at 17s., but British Portlands continued their upward movement and finished at 26s. 6d. Oil Cakes were unaltered at 25s. 6d., and Lever 7 and 8 p.c. Prefs. kept at 19s. 9d. Timber Fireproofing put on 2s. to 27s. 6d., and Welsbachs improved to 14s. 3d. Magadis eased to 7s., and Brunner Monds to 33s., though Salt Unions rose a few pence to 17s. Afghans lost 3d. at 5s. 3d. Dunlops remained firm at 8s. 9d., and there was some inquiry for the Prefs.

On a renewal of the absorption rumours, Booths Distillery were actively dealt in and changed hands up to 15s. 4½d. The shares closed 3d. higher on the day at 14s. 9d. Elsewhere, among Breweries, Watney Combe Def. further advanced to 23⅝, or another 3 points better on balance. Caterers were idle. A.B.C. still ruled at 35s. 3d., and J. Lyons at 4⅛. Liptons eased to 27s. Van Den Berghs went ahead among Foodstuffs, and finished 1/16 better at 1 1/16, though Maypole Def. lost the turn at 6s.

There was rather more doing in Iron and Steels. Babcock and Wilcox came into demand and closed 1s. higher at 61s., and a few inquiries for Cammell Lairds raised the price to 13s. 6d. Sheffield Steels improved to 1s., the Prefs. to 2s. 6d., and the Debs. to 66. Armstrongs continued dull at 15s. 3d. x.d., and Dorman Longs were scarcely so good at 17s. 9d. Among Coal stocks Powell Duffryns strengthened to 34s., though William Corys gave way to 45s., and Norths Navigation to 5s. 9d. In the Ammunition group Nobel Industries Def. relapsed to 5s. 1½d. Shipping issues revealed little of interest. Elder Dempster 5½ p.c. Prefs. hardened to 18s. 9d., and Indo-China Def. rose ½ to 28. Furness Withys, however, eased to 32s. P. and O. Def. held their ground at 310. Gas stocks were featureless.

Marconis closed 1/16 lower at 2 1/16, and the Prefs. also lost that much at 2⅛; while Marines fell 1/16 to 1⅜. Canadians, however, held their ground at 11s. Apart from a fall of ½ in Anglo-B to 101½, Cables displayed firmness. Easterns rose 1 to 184 ex div., and the Extension Shares 1/16 to 18 1/16 ex div. Westerns improved to 18 1/16, British Insulated to 2 1/16 ex div., and Henley's Telegraph to 45s. 6d. Indo-European put on 1 to 35½. Telephone Manufacturing Bonds lost ½ at 99½. Among Nitrates, Alianzas gained ½ at 19, though Aguas Blancas receded to 24s. 6d. With the exception of National of South Africas, which fell ⅛ to 10⅛, movements among Bank Shares were again to higher levels. Hong Kong and Shanghai rose ½ to 117. National of Indias were maintained at 42, and Chartered at 17½. Gains of 6d. occurred in Barclays B at 51s. 9d., and in Lloyds at 58s. London Joint City and Midland improved to 8 1/16, and National Provincial (£4) to 10⅜, while the £3 10s. Shares of the latter put on ⅛ to 9⅜, and National Discount "A" also gained that much at 4⅜. Atlas lost ½ at 18 in the Insurance list, though Sea Insurance rallied to 3½. Brazilian Tractions rose 1 to 49 among Canadian-Americans. Electric Lighting descriptions showed few movements. General Electrics weakened to 18s. 1½d., and Siemens Bros. were dull at 25s. 3d. Anglo-Argentine First Prefs. strengthened to 3⅛ in the Tramways list.

Fresh strength was displayed in the Land section by Hudson's Bays, and the quotation finished another ⅛ higher at 7 1/16. The Prefs. still ruled at 4⅞. Sudan Plantations improved to 5½, Shansis to ⅝, and Pahangs to 5s. 6d. In Textiles, Listers continued in demand on amalgamation rumours, and further improved to 27s., and Bradford Dyers moved up to 44s. 6d. Courtaulds closed quite firm at 55s., or a rise of 3d. on the day after changing hands at down to 54s. 9d. Bleachers gave way to 40s. Little of interest transpired among Stores descriptions. Harrods and Whiteleys both rose 3d. to 29s. 6d. and 41s. 6d. respectively. John Barkers kept at 47s. 3d. ex div. Tobaccos exhibited an easier tendency. B.A.T. and Imperials both lost 3d., the former at 87s. 6d., and the latter at 69s. 6d., though Imperials B Prefs. hardened to 22s. 6d. Albert Bakers shed 3d. at 26s. 3d., and Canadians closed that much lower at 24s. 3d. In the Motor group, Dennis further improved to 28s., and L.G.O.C. 5 p.c. Inc. Debs. put on ½ to 86. Some selling of Rolls Royce caused the price to relapse to 25s. 6d. Among recent issues Platt Bros. came on offer and eased to 44s., and the Prefs. to 23s. 6d. Crosses and Heatons Debs. fell to 5½ dis. Daily Mirror Shares kept at round about 3 1/16.

SHEEP SALE REPORT.

Messrs. Ganly, Sons and Co. held their usual weekly sale of brood ewes, store wethers, and lambs in the Dublin Cattle Market on Wednesday last, when 4,000 sheep were offered for sale. The competition was hardly so keen as at last week's sale, but ultimately the greater portion of the consignments changed hands. The following prices were realised:—Roscommon ewes, 81/- to 75/-; Galway ewes, 78/- to 70/-; Cheviot and Wicklow Mountain ewes, 63/- to 56/-. Mr. Abel Buckley's last draft of 500 blackfaced Scotch horny ewes from the Galtee Mountains realised from 51/- to 41/-; horny ewes from the West of Ireland made from 34/- to 28/-; lambs, from 63/- to 55/-. Mr. Abel Buckley's blackfaced ewe lambs made from 32/- to 25/-. A large number of Roscommon and Galway wethers sold from £5 to £4 2/6; blackfaced horny wethers from the Galtee Mountains, 55/- to 48/-; other horny wethers, 38/- to 33/-. Messrs. Ganly's next sale will be held on Wednesday next, 18th October, at which 130 Suffolk lambs the property of the Marquis of Waterford will be offered for sale.

IRISH BUTTER QUOTATION.

The Irish Dairy (Producers and Shippers) Association have fixed for the week ending Thursday next, 19th October, 205/- per cwt. for choicest salted butter, wholesale, nett, free on rail, Ireland. Special dairies extra. The latest report is that the Danish shippers have again advanced their price about 10/- per cwt., but their prices have for some time been somewhat erratic, and on several occasions they have been unable to secure their figures. Whether, in view of the decreasing production in Denmark, they can do so on this occasion, remains to be seen.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOW TREASURY BILL RATE.

FLUCTUATING MARKS.

Surprise was occasioned yesterday by the result of the Treasury bill tenders. These were much larger than had been expected, a fact ascribed to special competitive demand. The average should approximate 2⅛ p.c. instead of the 2⅜ p.c. that had been anticipated. Bills dated Monday to Friday offered at £99 8s. 6d. and above are allotted in full, Saturday bills at £99 8s. 7d. receiving 83 p.c. For the first time for many weeks some Treasury 4½ p.c. Bonds have been sold by tender, offers at £99 and above receiving allotment.

Bank Rate (Discount) changed July 13, 1922, 3%
60 days (fine)	2⅝%	Trade	3	3½%

Discounts were adjusted in conformity with the above results, next week's Treasuries being nominally 2⅛ p.c. Early in the day this week's bills changed hands at 2 1/16 p.c., and one of the banks was getting late Decembers at 2⅛. Fine three months' bank bills were 2⅜ p.c. Loanable credit was usable, night money being 1½ p.c., fixtures going on at 1½ p.c.

Gold remained unchanged at 93s. per oz. nominal. Bar silver fell ⅛d. for spot and 1/16d. for forward delivery to 34⅛d. for both positions.

There was a great deal of activity in the foreign exchange market yesterday awaiting the re-opening of New York. The tendency was rather better. German marks remained very much in the lime-light, and after starting at 11,400 the rate deteriorated to 12,100, and then recovered to 11,850. The return of the Imperial Bank of Germany issued yesterday shows a further increase of 27,301,832,000 marks in the note circulation to 244,171,631,000 marks. Sterling was firm on New York at 4.43-4.43⅛. There was a slight appreciation in French francs to 58.40-58.50, and Belgium was better at 62.50-62.70, with Italy at 104-104½. Dutch currency was rather firmer at 11.39-11.39½, but there was not much improvement in Switzerland, which remained at 23.85-23.90. Norwegian kroner gained in value to 24.30-24.35. Rupees eased a little to 1s. 3⅝d.-1s. 3⅞d. Argentine dollars improved to 44 1/16-44⅛d., while Brazil was steady at 6⅜-6 7/16d. Greece was 170-180, Austria 320,000-340,000, and Poland 42,000 offered. FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

The first sample of Arghan grown on the Arghan Company's estate in the Federated Malay States has reached London, and it is noteworthy that it was finer fibre than any samples obtained from the native habitat of the plant. Messrs. Cross and Bevan, the analysts to the F.M.S. Government, in a report on the tensile strength of the fibre, state—"These tests for tenacity show breaking strain 2 to 4 grms. per denier-silk units. This, we think, is a satisfactory confirmation of the exceptional strength which we found in the original samples of the fibre." This report confirms the opinion generally expressed by various well-known fibre experts that Arghan would prove a new plantation industry of great potential force to the Empire, and is not without historical interest.

In view of sensational rumours which have recently been in circulation as to the discovery of rich ore bodies on the Mexico Mines of El Oro Company's property, the directors feel that it is desirable to make an official announcement regarding recent developments on the West vein. At the annual general meeting held in March, 1921, the Chairman referred to developments upon this vein. Subsequent developments proved the rich ore to be of small extent and extremely erratic in occurrence, but the few hundred tons extracted materially helped profits for several months. Nothing further of importance was discovered in this vein until June of the present year, when a second lens of rich shipping ore was met with on the eleventh level. Since that date this lens has been traced from a point 30 feet above the twelfth level of the tenth level, and has proved to be approximately 45 feet in length with a width of 8 to 14 inches—high grade sorted ore from which as sent to the smelters for August averaged over 700 dollars a ton. It is owing to the rapid extraction of this ore, rendered necessary by constant attempts by armed ore thieves to get at same, that the output is increased beyond the normal.

The recent arrangement for a settlement of the Mexican debt came at a very disturbed time, and this accounts for the little interest it aroused. Probably soon there will be a better appreciation of the position, and it may be useful to readers to know the relative values of some of the most active Mexican Bonds. If we take the Five per Cent. 1899 External Loan and compare it with the Six per Cent. Treasury "A" Loan, we find that the latter is under-valued. The Treasury Six per Cent. "A" Loan is to be repaid in 1933 at par, and the quotation for a Six per Cent. Bond, repayable in ten years' time, to give a yield of 10 per cent., is 75 per cent. Furthermore, holders are to receive 51 per cent. in "A" Certificates for the arrear coupons, and, taking these at, say, 20 per cent., would give an additional 10.2 per cent., so that the quotation ought to be 85 per cent. The above calculation, of course, is based on the assumption that Mexican credit is to be on a 10 per cent. basis. Making a similar calculation in respect of the Five per Cent. Loan, we find that the quotation ought to be approximately 53 per cent., plus 9 per cent., the value of the "A" Certificates, or 62 per cent. in all. The present quotations are, however, 60 for the Five per Cent. and 68 for the Six per Cent. Treasury "A," so that it should still pay holders of the first-named to exchange into the latter.

Issued yesterday, the report of the Buenos Ayres and Pacific Railway has made a splendid impression upon the market. Substantial recovery has been made from the unfavourable position of the previous year. The good results have been secured at a decreased expense ratio, due mainly to cheaper fuel in the latter months of the company's year. The results of the two years' working, converted into sterling at the par value of the gold dollar compare thus:—

	1921-22.	1920-21.
Receipts	£7,465,112	£6,853,624
Expenses	5,318,508	5,872,227
Profit	2,146,604	981,397

The increase in receipts is thus £611,488 and decrease in working expenses £553,719. After the payment of a 5 per cent. dividend on the Second Pref. Stock, the balance of £70,004 is carried forward, no Ordinary dividend being recommended. The current year's prospects are regarded as promising. In a cable dated October 3 the General Manager stated that the crop conditions "could not be more encouraging." Passenger traffic is expected to increase with the good harvest.

Permission to deal in 750,000 fully-paid £1 Deferred shares of the Associated Newspapers, Ltd., having been just granted by the Committee of the Stock Exchange, the impression has got abroad that it is contemplated to market the 400,000 Deferred shares of the company which were acquired by the recently-formed Daily Mail Trust, Ltd. The capital of the Associated Newspapers now stands at £2,100,000 in shares of £1 each, 500,000 5 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares, and 600,000 Ordinary shares, ranking for cumulative dividends of 7 per cent. per annum, having been issued and paid up. The Deferred share capital is £1,000,000, £750,000 of which has been issued and fully paid. Of these, the 400,000 acquired by the Daily Mail Trust will, of course, be held by that company as part security for the recent issue of £1,600,000 7 per cent. Debenture Stock. Whatever dealings may take place will presumably be in the remaining 350,000 shares.

Sir Archibald Mitchelson has resigned the chairmanship of D. Davis and Sons and the Welsh Navigation Steam Coal Company, and at the unanimous request of the directors Sir David Llewellyn has consented to accept the chairmanship of both companies. Viscountess Rhondda will continue to act as Vice-Chairman, and Sir Archibald Mitchelson will retain his directorships.

We are informed that the Commission at present sitting in London for the purpose of verifying the Roumanian Treasury bills proposes to return to Paris about the middle of next week. So far Treasury bills representing a sterling value of approximately £10,500,000 have been presented in London for verification. Messrs. Helbert, Wagg and Co., Ltd., and the British Overseas Bank, Ltd., state that exports are now proceeding freely, and considerable sums have already reached them for the service of the Roumanian External Debt.

SIGHNITHE AR SON RIALTAIS SHAORSTAIT EIREANN,

1. Certain persons arrayed in arms against the State in an attempt to defeat by force the will of the people have created a state of armed rebellion and insurrection, in the course of which the lives of citizens and soldiers of the State have been taken, their liberty violated, and vast quantities of public and private property plundered and destroyed.

2. The Government, with the sanction of Dail Eireann, has charged the National Forces with the task of suppressing the rebellion, of restoring peace and order and the rule of law, and of securing to the citizens full protection of life, liberty and property, and for the better carrying out of this task the Government and Dail Eireann have sanctioned and approved the exercise by or under the authority of the Army Council of certain powers, including power to set up Military Courts, for inquiring into charges against persons alleged to have participated in the said rebellion and the acts aforesaid, and to inflict punishment in respect of such charges where proved.

3. The Government, however, knows that many such persons have been forced to participate in such actions against their will and better judgment, while others have come to realise that they have in truth put their hands to the ruin of their motherland, and the Government, moved by the hope of restoring peace without further bloodshed and loss, has, therefore, decided that an opportunity be offered, even now, to those who are willing to throw in their lot with the majority of their countrymen to withdraw from this rebellion with immunity for themselves.

KNOW THEN, AND IT IS HEREBY ANNOUNCED AND PROCLAIMED AS FOLLOWS:—

(I.) Every person who is engaged in such insurrection and rebellion against the State as aforesaid, or in such armed opposition to National Forces as aforesaid, or who has been guilty of any offence against the State, directly arising out of such insurrection, rebellion and armed opposition as aforesaid, and who on or before the 15th day of October, 1922, voluntarily delivers into the possession of the National Forces all firearms, arms, weapons, bombs, ammunition, and explosives, and all public and private property, now unlawfully in his possession, and quits all lands or buildings unlawfully occupied by him, and who on or before the 15th day of October, 1922, voluntarily ceases to take any part in, or aid or abet such insurrection, rebellion or armed opposition, shall be permitted to return unmolested to his home, and to every such person we hereby offer, assure and proclaim a FULL AMNESTY AND PARDON for all such insurrection, riot, rebellion, armed opposition and offences as aforesaid.

(II). Every such person may deliver any such firearms, arms, weapons, ammunition, explosives and bombs, and any such public and private property as aforesaid, to the Officer Commanding the nearest military position, or station, or to any such person as shall be nominated by him.

Published at Dublin this 3rd day of October, 1922.

SIGNED ON BEHALF OF THE GOVERNMENT OF SAORSTAT EIREANN,

LIAM T. MacCOSGAIR,
Uachtaran Dail Eireann.
President of Dail Eireann.

PRODUCE AND FOOD.

CATTLE.

BIRKENHEAD, Friday.—Supplies, 2,800 cattle and 3,000 lambs. There was a fair demand for the best bullocks and heifers at 9½d. to 9¾d. Useful bullocks and heifers moved slowly at 9d. Secondary cattle were a slow sale at correspondingly lower values. The lamb trade was slow. A few lots of best quality lambs made 1/4½, the general range being from 1/3 to 1/4 per lb., sinking the offal.

LEICESTER, Friday.—There was a large attendance at the fair to-day, and business was brisk, with newly-calved heifers making up to £40; newly-calved cows realised £38, down calving heifers £38, bullocks £39, and barren heifers £19.

SHERCOCK FAIR.—The above Fair on Wednesday was largely attended, and cattle showed an improvement in price. Springers touched £25; second-class £16 to £20; fresh calved cows £14 to £17; milkers £11 to £13 each; six quarter store bullocks £11 to £13 each; two years and over £18 to £22 each; beef 40/- to 45/- per cwt.; young pigs £5 to £6 per pair; store pigs £10 per pair; sheep £3 to £3 10/- each. General markets—Chickens 2/- to 3/- each; butter 1/5 per lb.; eggs 2/6 per dozen; grass seed 10/- to 15/- per cwt.

LEVER'S Palm Nut Cake and Meal, Hay Spice. Agent: W. Rourke, 35 North Circular road, Dublin. —(Advt.)

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE, Friday.—The attendance continues small, and business of disappointing dimensions; however, a couple of distillers and maltsters have come on market, and this may tend to liven matters up. So far 25/- to 25/6 has been paid for good sound dry wheat for distilling purposes, but the bulk of samples about are of light and soft description, and remain irregular in price—say 23/- to 24/6 per barrel, according to character. Oats more largely featuring; white qualities run from 14/- to 17/- per barrel, and blacks from 13/- to 15/-, but for fancy good bulking parcels 6d. to 1/- more might be obtainable. Barley is nominally around 21/- to 22/- for first grade quality, but these prices for the present must be accepted with some reserve, as it is easier to get extreme terms for choice qualities of grain, while ordinary descriptions are difficult to cash at their relatively lower value.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES.—BALTIC, Friday. —WHEAT—Cargo market firm, and Canadian sorts held for 6d. per quarter advance, with a moderate demand. The Kassaia, 5,200 tons, Rosafe (63lbs.), 10th October, sold 50/4½; No. 1 Northern Manitoba October-November sellers 49/9, No. 2 ditto 49/-; Pacific afloat 50/6, Rosafe (64lbs.) January-February 49/9. Parcels steady; No. 1 Northern Manitoba October-November sold 48/3, No. 3 hard winter afloat 51/6, Rosafe (63½lbs.) sellers 51/- per 480lbs. Indian held above the market. MAIZE—Cargo market firm, and near positions tend dearer. The Mirach, 5,300 tons, Plate, expected ready to load 15th inst., sold 36/7½; a steamer, 5,000 tons, October-November, 35/9; afloat sellers 38/-, September-October 37/6, October-November 36/3. Parcels easier, with fair sales. Plate August-September done 37/9, September-October 36/-, October-November 34/10½ per 480lbs. BARLEY steady for cargoes, and sparingly offered. Dan.-Modavian loading sellers 32/-. Parcels of No. 4 Canadian Western November sellers 31/3, Karachi October-November 33/3 per 400lbs. OATS firm. Plate f.a.q. November-December sellers 24/6, white clipped American (38lbs.) October 26/6 per 320lbs.

MARK LANE, Friday.—ENGLISH WHEAT 1/- firmer. Whites delivered up to 43/- to 48/-, reds 43/- to 48/-. Foreign grades occasionally 6d. dearer. No. 1 Northern Manitoba 54/- to 57/6 ex ship, No. 2 hard winter 54/6 ex ship, Australian spot 57/-, do. 55/6 ex ship, Rosafe (64lbs.) 54/- ex ship. FLOUR—Home-milled 6d. dearer; imported firm, Canadian exports patents 38/- to 43/- ex store, Minneapolis 1st patents 42/6 to 43/6 ex store, Pacific 38/- ex store, London standard straight run 42/- ex mill, Australian patents 37/6 to 40/- ex store. GRINDING BARLEY firm; English 35/- to 52/- f.o.r., Danubian 35/- landed, Persian 30/9 landed. OATS 6d. to 1/- per quarter dearer; English 25/6 to 32/6 f.o.r., No. 2 Canada Western 35/- landed, Plate f.a.q. 28/-, clipped 29/6 landed, American white clipped (38lbs.) 28/6, 36lbs. 28/-. MAIZE firm; mixed American 38/- ex ship, Odessa and yellow African 40/- landed, Plate 39/6 ex ship, 41/- landed.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—American markets were closed yesterday owing to holiday, but the advance in Winnipeg was reflected here, and speculative positions of WHEAT showed a partial improvement at the commencement of operations; values afterwards reacted, and a fair decline from last night was registered, though improved partially on better cables, finishing on yesterday's level for the near months. C.i.f. parcels of No. 1 Manitoba October sold at 50/- to 49/6, October-November 47/6 to 47/4½, November-December 47/- to 46/7½, No. 2 hard winter due 51/- to Liverpool, and No. 1 Manitoba October at 49/9 Manchester. C.i.f. parcels of MAIZE River Plate October-November sold 35/1½, American mixed October all ports 35/9, yellow American 15th November 35/3 per quarter. Wheat on the spot was scarce, and prices showed an advance of about 1d. to 4d. per cental on Tuesday's market rates. Maize spot parcels irregular, with American mixed 2d. over last market day at 8/3½ to 8/4, but River Plate showed 1½d. decline at 8/7½ to 8/8 per cental. FLOUR firm at fully late rates. Graded red wheat futures opened unchanged to ½d. dearer, but later receded with slight fluctuations until ½d. to 1d. under yesterday had been registered. Later on values improved, and December finished unchanged on the day, and other months ½d. to ¼d. per quarter lower. Maize options nominal.

Irish 118/- to 135/-, Danish 112/- to 132/-, Swedish 110/- to 122/-, Dutch 110/- to 122/-, Canadian 106/- to 120/-, American Wiltshire cut 90/- to 100/-. HAMS steady, with a fair demand for American. LIVERPOOL, Friday.—BACON—Owing to the holiday in America yesterday, the trade here were without the usual guiding factor from thence, though live hogs at Chicago showed a liberal decline, but imports into Liverpool were small, and the demand on the whole was quiet, bellies being in moderate request at late rates; but American Wiltshires were slow of sale and easier in value at 93/- to 95/- per cwt., with other selections unaltered. HAMS quiet, and prices in some instances favoured buyers. Shoulders generally steady and unaltered. Irish and Danish sides reduced in price, and Canadian easier in sympathy, with buyers operating cautiously. Canadian Wiltshires now 108/- to 115/-, Irish 130/- to 140/-, Danish 130/- to 135/-, Dutch 120/- to 124/- per cwt. LARD on the spot met only a moderate inquiry, but late prices were maintained. CHEESE continues to be firmly held, but the recent advance restricts business. BUTTER quiet and easier, with lower quotations from Copenhagen, and with Danish now at 224/- to 226/-, Irish creameries 206/- to 210/-, Canadian 198/- to 204/- per cwt. DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE, Friday.—Scarcely since its opening has this market been so consistently heavily stocked with fruit and vegetables, home-grown and imported. Notwithstanding the expansive area occupied, congestion experienced in every foot of space, and supplies are difficult to keep cleared. There is now no comparison with pre-war prices. Everything or mostly is cheaper and irregular in value in effort to clear. Many commodities are selling at merely nominal rates here, but not so in retail quarters. Irish apples unusually cheap; prices generally don't cover expenses of bringing them in. Sales averaged:—Black Guernsey grapes 1/- to 1/3 and 1/9, English and Irish 1/6 to 2/- per lb.; Almeria 13/- to 16/- and 17/6 per barrel; English tomatoes 7/6 to 8/6 per 12lbs.; Dutch 4/- to 4/6 and 5/- ditto; pears, English, 4/- to 8/- and 10/- half bushel; American 9/- to 12/- per box, 27/- to 35/- and 40/- per barrel; Dutch 5/- to 10/- ditto; apples, American Yorks, 28/- to 40/-, others 25/- to 30/-, ditto per box 16/- to 18/- and 20/-; Irish apples 1/- to 3/6 per tray, etc., and 6/- to 7/6 per barrel; ordinary sorts, special cookers, 3/- to 4/3 per tray; plums, 3/9 to 4/6 per half-bushel; damsons, 2/3 to 3/6; Irish pears, 3/- to 7/- per tray; cucumbers, 1/- to 5/- and 6/- per doz.; marrows, 3/6 to 7/- and 10/-; cauliflowers, 2/-, 2/9, 3/-, and 3/6 per doz.; seconds, 9d. to 1/3; sprouts, 3/3, 3/6, and 4/- per float; York cabbage, 12/- to 35/-, and extra 40/- to 50/- and 56/- per load, also 1/- to 1/6 per bag; celery, 2/9 to 6/-, 7/6, and 10/- per bundle; Irish tomatoes, 5½d. to 7½d.; Swedes, 2/8 to 3/-; white turnips, 2d. to 4d. and 6d. per bundle.

DUBLIN WHOLESALE POTATO, Friday.—Supplies of potatoes still coming to hand in superabundance, and difficult to keep near sold up. Prime table qualities of standard branding continue to figure around 4/- per cwt.

HALSTON STREET POULTRY AND GAME, Friday.—Supplies tolerably large. Fair all round trade at generally easier rates. Chickens 10d. to 1/- per lb., crammed 1/2 per lb.; turkey poults, 1/- to 1/3; prime young fat geese 1/- to 1/3 per lb.; stubble, dead, 5/- to 7/- each; store goslings 4/6 each; pullets 4/- to 5/-; prime heavy fat hens 2/6, others 1/6 to 2/-; prime young fat ducks 3/- to 3/6, extras 4/- to 5/-, seconds 1/6 to 2/6, old 1/- each; cock pheasants 4/6, hen ditto 3/6; hares 2/6 to 3/-; rabbits 10d. to 1/-; grouse 3/-, old 2/-; partridge, 3/-, old 1/6. Wild birds much as before.

DUBLIN EGG AND BUTTER, Friday.—The position of market remains quiet but unchanged for creamery butter, but trade response all the same is cautious, and extreme prices are hard to make here. However, in the prospective it is thought that if trade improves in England, creamery butter is likely to go dearer here in the near future, as Danish is getting scarce and shippets are freer buyers from this side, while a good deal going from here is being exported in kells, which leaves a half suspicion that Irish creams are being sold at the other side in some cases as Danish. However, manufacturers extreme pretensions here are for the present impossible to respond to. Choice standard creams rate around 1/10½, and a few special dairies up to 1/11, but the latter figure is barely tenable. Good medium creams can be purchased around 1/10, sound but overesalted qualities 1/9½ to 1/10 per lb.; there is a good deal of secondary stuff about, figuring from 1/7½ to 1/9 and 1/9½. Farmers' butter on the increase, but the sale for it is quiet. Prime cools make from 1/5 to 1/6½ and 1/7; superfine separators 1/6½ to 1/7½ per lb. Average firkins from 1/3 to 1/5 per lb., and rougher classes of butter from 1/1 to 1/3 per lb. EGGS rather weaker, the recent high prices having caused a restricted sale, but supplies are very moderate, and just about equal to trade practicable; however, unfortunately, arrivals are largely decimated by the disproportionate quantity of stale and inferior eggs in same. For reputable consignments of case eggs from best districts, prices are from 24/6 to 26/6 and 27/- per 120; from Western sources 22/6 to 24/-, smalls and ordinaries 16/6 to 21/- per 120, according to character.

CORK BUTTER, Friday.—The market continues featureless, both supplies and values remaining normal. Choicest mild cured, 210/- per cwt.; creameries, 208/- to 210/-; factories, 200/-; fresh arrivals, 168/- per cwt.

DUBLIN FISH, Friday.—An unusually sparse supply here this morning, and good sale for the oddments offered. Five chests lobsters featured, fist pick of which drew 20/- to 31/- per 13; others averaged 6/- to 10/- and 15/- per ditto; a few turbot 10/- to 20/- each; brill, 1/6 to 7/- and 8/-; best soles averaged 45/- to 55/- per 9 pairs, mediums 25/- to 35/-, and slips 9/- to 12/- per 9 pairs; plaice 4/- to 6/- and 8/- per 4 and 8; half-boxes plaice 30/- to 80/- and 99/-; whiting 15/-, ray 10/- to 20/-, conger eels 10/- to 22/6.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MANCHESTER TRADE, Friday.—Turnover in cloth is still confined within narrow compass owing to inadequate purchasing power of markets abroad. India bids, for instance, are to a large extent rendered useless by unworkable limits attached. China is merely looking on, and smaller Far Eastern outlets operate in sorting up lines. Yarns present no new feature, and sales at to-day's full rate unimportant.

LIVERPOOL COTTON (Closing), Friday.—American in moderate request. Brazilian quotations raised 10 points. East Indian quotations raised 25 points. Egyptian moderate business. October, 12.79d.; November, 12.63d.; December, 12.58d.; January, 12.52d.; February, 12.46d.; March, 12.41d. Sales, 8,000; imports, 309 bales. Market steady.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW, Friday.—There was a much narrower gathering of hay on market here this morning, and, as before, bulk of arrivals were from distant districts and of old meadow class. Very few loads of Co. Dublin strong hay featured, and 8/- per cwt. was freely paid for same. Long loads of strong hay averaged 6/9 to 7/6, and occasionally 7/8 per cwt. Fair sale for best descriptions of old meadow hay, but soft and inferior, also poor sorts of second cutting stuff, tedious to find customers for at uncertain terms. Best old meadow, 5/3 to 6/-, and extra good 6/3 to 6/6 per cwt.; inferior 3/- to 5/-; clover hay 3/- to 5/-, and, with good proportion of rye grass, up to 6/- per cwt. Straw in increased supply, but principally oaten classes. Wheaten sold at 4/9 to 5/-, and occasionally around 5/3; oaten 4/6 to 5/-, and poorer sorts 4/- to 4/4. A disappointing and difficult wind up with late arrivals.

LONDON METALS MARKET.

TIN met with good attention, and with sellers exercising some reserve prices advanced, while on balance 22/6 to 27/6 higher per ton compared with the close of Thursday. Cash quoted £167 12/6 to £167 15/-, three months £168 12/6 to £168 15/-, settlement price £167 15/-. Sales, 900 tons; cash sold at £166 10/- to £167 10/-, November dated £167 15/- to £168 7/6, and three months £167 12/6 to £168 17/6 to £168 15/-. COPPER—Market ruled firmer, and a fair demand prevailed, prices on balance being 10/- dearer. Cash quoted £62 12/6 to £62 15/-, three months £63 5/- to £63 7/6, settlement price £62 15/-. 600 tons sold; cash done at £62, 12/6, end December £63, and three months £62 17/6 to £63 7/6 to £62 5/-. Electros £71 to £71 10/-, best selected £66 to £68, strong sheets £96, wire bars £71 10/-. LEAD firmer. Sales, 850 tons; November sold at £24 17/6, December £24 12/6 to £24 11/3, and January £24 5/-. SPELTER dearer. 300 tons sold; November at £32 17/6, December £32 11/3 to £32 12/6, and February £32 3/9 per ton. TINPLATES unaltered. ANTIMONY—Crude spot £17 per ton.

AUCTIONS.

CANGORT PARK, COUNTY OF OFFALY.

SALE OF VERY FINE RESIDENCE AND LAND.

I HAVE been favoured with instructions from James Wallace, Esq., B.L. (whose health compels him to reside in a different climate), to SELL BY PUBLIC AUCTION, At CORCORAN'S HOTEL, ROSCREA, On THURSDAY, 26th OCTOBER, 1922, At 12 o'clock (if not previously disposed of), His Right, Title, and Interest in his very fine property, known as "CANGORT PARK," Containing 341a. 2r. 0p., S.M., or thereabouts, situate 6 miles from Roscrea, 3 from Cloughjordan, and 3 from Brosna Railway Station, held in fee-simple, subject to £131 19s. 0d. per annum, payable to the I.L.C., with beautiful Residence and extensive Out-offices thereon. There is a Tithe Rent Charge of £14 0s. 6d, which terminates in 1927.

The Land is of the finest feeding quality, laid out in convenient divisions, with never-failing supplies of water, and excellent land shelter. There are roads through the different divisions for the convenience of cartage, and two entrances with gate lodges. The fences are in perfect condition. There is a large amount of valuable timber, chiefly Larch, Oak and Ash, which will become the property of the purchaser. The Land is laid out as follows—12 acres of oats, 13 of barley (laid down in grass seeds); 1½ potatoes, 6 of turnips, 1½ of mangolds, 12 of first crop hay. The growing crops will go to the purchaser, who can acquire the hay and straw at a valuation.

The House is a beautiful building, picturesquely situated, and in thorough repair, containing 4 reception rooms, 6 principal bedrooms, and ample servants' accommodation; bath, lavatories, w.c.'s, kitchen, pantries, dairy, larder, etc., with hot and cold water throughout.

The Out-offices consist of enclosed stable yard, with stalls and loose boxes for ten horses, and large coach house, all lofted; harness room and men's room.

The Farmyard contains ties for twenty cattle, barn, large shed, and numerous other houses; also cattle weighing machine.

There is a large walled-in fruit and vegetable garden near the house.

It is many years since anything like the above has come into the market, and owing to the fine quality of the land, the excellence of the residence and outbuildings, and its central position, this sale should prove most attractive to intending purchasers.

Terms—Purchaser, on being declared, to pay one-fourth purchase money as deposit, and 5 per cent. fees.

Private offers will be received, and further particulars given by Messrs. BRIDGE and BRIDGE, Solicitors, Roscrea and Cloughjordan; or
V. A. GROSSO,
Auctioneer and Valuer,
ROSCREA.

CHAPELIZOD, CO. DUBLIN.
BUSINESS PREMISES, WITH POSSESSION,
And Newly-Built COTTAGE PROPERTY, adjoining,
1 to 12 ST. LAURENCE TERRACE, CHAPELIZOD (IN ONE LOT).

Lease 99 years from September, 1892, at £38 14s. 0d. per annum for all.

No. 3 St. Laurence Terrace, formerly known as "The Kildare Tavern," occupies an outstanding business position, and comprises Shop and Dwelling, clear possession of which will be given the purchaser. There are 3 Cottages adjoining the Business Premises (Nos. 1, 2, and 4 St. Laurence Terrace), with frontage to main road, one of which contains Shop. They are Let to weekly tenants at rents amounting to £48 2s. 0d. per annum.

Nos. 5 to 12 St. Laurence Terrace, situated at the side, comprise block of 8 newly-built two-storey Cottage Houses. They are each Let to one weekly tenant at rents amounting to £2 13s. 2d. per week, or per annum £138 4s. 8d. Total annual rental from sub-lettings, £186 6s. 8d. In addition to this very substantial rental, the purchaser will be given clear possession of the Business Premises. This latter has not been occupied for some time past, and will require an expenditure on repairs, etc. Following this outlay, the Premises would be very valuable for any retail business, particularly Victualling, Drapery, or Hardware, for which there is an excellent opening in the village. The frontage is ample for two separate shops.

Together with 7 ACRES & 15 PERCHES (Statute), Lease 99 years from 1900, at £41 per annum for all.

TO BE SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION, in the Salerooms, 2 SAINT ANDREW STREET, on above date, at the hour of One o'clock, by direction of the owner, Mr. Thomas Taylor. The Premises consist of a Two-storey Building, containing a neatly-appointed bar (new fittings and Terrazzo floor), with bar parlour and sanitary accommodation; separate grocery shop, large private yard and garden, containing porter stores, (loft overhead), acetylene house, etc., and having gate entrance. The domestic accommodation (with private entrance) consists of drawingroom, diningroom, four bedrooms, and kitchen. There is gas light throughout the entire ground floor. The entire Property is in very good order, tastefully re-arranged and nicely decorated by the vendor at great expense.

It may be regarded as a first-class country licensed concern. The trading is very considerable, and particulars thereof may be inspected at the Auctioneer's Office. The Killester housing scheme will, it is understood, extend to this district. The Lands, which contain 7 acres 15 perches (Statute), are adjoining the main road, with entrance therefrom, and are Let on the 11 months system at £50 for the 11 months' term. This rent pays the entire head rent, and leaves a profit of £9 per annum.
